Late Returns Break Presidential Stalemate

'Don't Want Sympathy', Says Hubert

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey, his voice choking with emotion, conceded the United States presidential election today to Richard M. Nixon.

"I've done my best," he said. "I've lost. Mr. Nixon has won. The democratic process has worked its will so let's get on with the urgent task of uniting this country."

Humphrey spoke to several hundred cheering admirers at his hotel headquarters.

Earlier, Humphrey had placed a telephone call to Nixon, the Republican winner.

He turned to friends in his hotel suite and said: "I don't want any sympathy from any of you."

These developments were reported to reporters by the vice-president's press secretary, Norman Sherman, who said Humphrey later would deliver a statement in person.

Sherman would not say himself that Humphrey was conceding. But the phone call to Nixon and the comment to friends made it clear that Humphrey was admitting defeat in the long, arduous struggle that began 100,000 miles and more than six months ago.

Sherman said Humphrey would return to his home on Lake Wagerly, 40 miles away, and then go on vacation.

If he had won, Humphrey planned to go to the Virgin Islands. His plans in defeat remained uncertain.

At Humphrey headquarters there was quiet depression but no visible grief or tears among those who had helped their 57-year-old boss make the greatest political challenge of his life.

People began planning their returns to Washington and a quieter life than they had the last six months.

Popular Vote Contest Still Very Close

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Republican Richard M. Nixon, 55, capped a political resurrection today as late returns assured him the U.S. presidency he was denied by a handful of votes eight years ago.

In the closest and most dramatic election of modern times he won at least 290 electoral college votes, needing only 270 to win.

While Nixon wins the election with a clear-cut majority over Hubert Humphrey and George Wallace in the electoral college, the popular vote race continues to be very close.

Here is the result with 93 per cent of the vote tabulated:

	Votes	Per Cent	Electoral College
Nixon	29,519,667	43	290
Humphrey	29,505,016	43	203
Wallace	9,174,925	13	43

George Wallace, 49, the white-supremist third-party force from Alabama, played a powerful spoiler role that threatened to prevent a clear-cut verdict until late returns in Illinois put Nixon over the top.

Final votes were still awaited from Alaska, Maryland, Missouri and Washington State but they could not affect Nixon's victory.

In Minneapolis, Minn., Humphrey apparently conceded victory to Nixon when he placed a telephone call to his Republican rival.

Turning to friends in his hotel suite, Humphrey said: "I don't want any sympathy from any of you."

Nixon's delayed victory, at the end of a long, costly, turbulent and sometimes-tragic campaign, came despite frustrations that recalled his narrow loss in 1960 to John F. Kennedy.

That defeat, coupled with failure to win the California governorship in 1962, relegated Nixon to the political scrap heap, many concluded.

But the man who had made his reputation as a hard-nosed anti-Communist in the early 1950s was a party loyalist in the Republican debacle of 1964, when Johnson trounced Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

ELECTION STORIES 2, 9, 13

Nixon Glued His Party

When 1968 rolled round, Nixon more than any other senior Republican had helped glue the party back together and his presidential nomination in Miami Beach in August was repayment from the party professionals.

He campaigned as the obvious front-runner, but a hard-fighting Humphrey managed to rally enough members of the dissent-ridden Democrats to make it close at the end.

The delay in Illinois was caused by the disappearance of more than 1,000 precinct totals.

Nixon was reversing his razor-thin loss to John F. Kennedy in 1960 by outscrambling Humphrey.

In popular votes Nixon and Humphrey were in a virtual tie. But as the morning wore on, Nixon's electoral vote count surged comfortably ahead of Lyndon B. Johnson's vice-president.

The Nixon gap had narrowed slowly today hours after heavy voting had ended. CBS, ABC and NBC said he had won.

But the prolonged battle to succeed President Johnson as the 37th president remained in doubt. Humphrey trailed with 172 electoral votes.

Early returns had threatened to delay a decision until Dec. 16 and perhaps until the new 91st Congress—still under Democratic party control—could tackle the deadlock Jan. 6.

Re-Run of Kennedy Race

For Nixon the former vice-president, it was a rerun in many respects of his paper-thin loss in 1960 to John F. Kennedy.

The results in the major states of Illinois, California and Ohio controlled the outcome.

The magic number required to put either man over the top was 270 of the 538 Electoral College votes.

Americans voting for a president actually choose slates of persons by state who comprise the college. These slates normally support the candidate getting the most votes in each state.

In cut-and-dried presidential contests, the electors meet in state capitals Dec. 16 as a formality.

'Ignominious Defeat' Charge Irks Wallace

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — It began as a one man adventure and at the end George C. Wallace seemed terribly alone.

He sat in a beige leather chair opposite the large brick fireplace in his panelled den, almost oblivious to the few around him, and watched the results of his long U.S. presidential election ordeal flicker on the color television screen.

"I've got a good popular vote," he said. "It's all right. It's all right."

He finally napped on the floor between the folds of a thick quilt, to be awakened when it was time to go to the huge coliseum where a disappointingly small crowd of followers awaited him.

His staff was at a motel across from the arena waiting for him. His running mate, Curtis E. LeMay, was waiting there too, and Wallace talked to him once by phone early in the evening. He talked twice by phone to a top assistant, Cecil Jackson, but both calls were incoming and apart from them his staff did not bother him.

DIDN'T AGREE

At one point, a television commentator remarked that Wallace had "gone down to ignominious defeat." He made the remark when 17 per cent of the vote was in and Wallace's total was 3,436,000. Wallace bristled.

"A deep Southerner getting that many votes is not ignominious," he said.

He said it looked as though he would get 10,000,000 votes in all.

"I think 10,000,000 would be a mighty good vote, he said.

"A third party movement from the Deep South—why that would be fantastic."

Wallace seemed genuinely unshaken by the number of states he won.

He rarely revealed disappointment.

At one point, he said: "Maybe we should have concentrated more in the border states and the South—but we didn't want it to be a sectional movement."

At length, he could delay his trip to the Coliseum no longer. His speech there was brief. He introduced his family, his staff and his running mate.

Open to New Ideas—Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Richard M. Nixon, wearing a broad victory smile, thanked his campaign workers today and said he hoped "we'll be worthy."

Nixon praised his defeated opponent for the United States presidency, Hubert T. Humphrey, saying: "He never gave up."

He said that in a telephone conversation with Humphrey he had told the current Democratic vice-president: "I know how it is to lose a close one."

Nixon said his would be "an open administration, open to new ideas."

"We want to bridge the generation gap," the president-elect continued, saying he was confident about that task.

Nixon said he and his family plan to go to Key Biscayne, Fla., but en route would stop in Washington to visit former president Dwight D. Eisenhower, who is in Walter Reed Hospital.

He said that he looks forward "in the next administration to having a relationship with former president Johnson such as President Eisenhower has had with him (Johnson)."

Nixon remained up getting election returns until 7:30 a.m., when he retired for what was described as a 90-minute rest. In the morning, he visited with members of his family in his Manhattan hotel suite, then went back to checking returns.

LBJ Pledges Smooth Changeover

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — President Johnson today wired president-elect Richard Nixon his congratulations on winning the election and promised to do everything in his power to make his burdens lighter when he takes over the White House.

"I hope our people will now turn from the devisive contentions of the political campaign to a united search for peace and justice." he said.

"You can be certain that I shall do everything in my power to make your burdens lighter on the day when you assume the responsibilities of the president."

Prices Rise On Market

TORONTO (CP) — Prices picked up after a hesitant start on the Toronto Stock Exchange today, in response to the rise in New York where the market was boosted by the news of Richard Nixon's apparent victory in the United States presidential race. See Page 12.

U.S. Breaks Agreement On Talks, Hanoi Charges

PARIS (Reuters) — North Vietnam accused the United States today of breaking its promise of an enlarged Vietnam peace conference.

A statement issued by the Hanoi delegation spokesman said the U.S. and the "Saigon administration" must bear full responsibility for the failure to hold an enlarged meeting today as scheduled.

The statement said the U.S. had told the Hanoi delegation in a communication Tuesday that in view of the absence of the representatives of the Saigon government, today's scheduled first meeting of the four-sided conference would not be held.

"Thus the United States side did not implement its agreements and pledges with the representatives of the government of the Democratic Republic of North Vietnam," the statement said.

The 500 word statement, issued in English and French, said that in order to show "its good will and to move towards peace," after consultations with the National Liberation Front, the North Vietnamese government had agreed with the United States on the holding of a four-party conference.

The enlarged conference would have brought together representatives of the United States, North Vietnam, the Saigon government and the National Liberation Front.

The four-sided conference was announced by President Johnson in connection with the U.S. bombing halt of North Vietnam.

But President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam said later his government would not attend the Paris talks because it refused to talk with the NLF. He said direct Saigon-Hanoi negotiations was the only road to peace in Vietnam.

The statement, issued at a news conference, said Hanoi chief negotiator Xuan Thuy proposed that if the Saigon representative could not come in time, a three-party meeting should be held today.

Such a meeting would comprise representatives of North Vietnam, the NLF and the U.S. The Saigon representatives would participate in the conference when they arrived, it said.

"But the representative of the United States government did not agree to this," it added.

"This is not an enlarged conference between the Democratic Republic of North Vietnam and the United States, but a four-party conference to find a peaceful settlement of the Vietnam problem," the statement said.

Oldtimer Saved Quarters And Waited for the Knock

By W. RALPH THOMAS

The United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal canvasser knocked on the door of a small weather-beaten cottage in the Colwood area, half expecting she would go away empty-handed.

An elderly man answered and smiled when he saw her United Appeal card. He asked her in.

The canvasser was surprised and thought the householder might give a dollar or two after all.

She sat down and the man told her he was not very well off, but he had been saving "quarters" all year for the United Appeal campaign.

He gave her a little more than $50 and apologized for not being able to give more.

The canvasser, aware that such a large contribution was probably more than he really could afford, assured him that a smaller donation would be just as welcome.

The man declined. He was a member of Silver Threads and his $50 donation could not begin to pay for the "good times" he's had there.

He explained he saves his quarters every year for the canvasser and his target for next year is $70.

The canvasser said she thanked him for his donation and walked away from the house "feeling very warm inside."

HOW NIXON WON is illustrated in this map of the United States. At press time, with 92 per cent of the vote counted, Nixon had won 30 states with 287 electoral votes and was leading in one state with three votes. Humphrey had won 11 states and the District of Columbia with 172 votes and was leading in three states with 31 votes. Wallace had won five states with 45 votes.

. . . NIXON VICTORY

But twice before, the last time 144 years ago, no decision could be reached and the House of Representatives had to make the decision.

Voting had been heavy in most areas, normally a good sign for the Democrats who outnumber Republicans on the basis of registered party memberships.

The turnout was expected to surpass the record 71,000,000 who voted in 1964.

In comparison with the three-way presidential contest, the selection of the 91st Congress ran relatively smoothly — and for the eighth consecutive time produced Democratic party control.

Thirty-four of the 100 Senate seats were refilled. Republicans, needing a net gain of 14 seats, made some yards but fell far short of a bare majority of 51.

All 435 House of Representa- two-year terms and the Democrats, who now have held control in 34 of the last 38 years, turned back Republican challenges.

The Republicans needed a net gain of 30 seats for a bare ruling edge of 218 and hardly made a dent.

The threat of an indecisive election that Congress must solve had been spawned umonths ago as George Wallace began putting together his American Independent Party.

Nixon's early campaign lead, nourished by Humphrey's late start and the party discord displayed at the chaotic Chicago Democratic nominating convention, had eased the prospect somewhat.

Only 17 states and the District of Columbia actually instruct their electoral slates to vote for the popular winner in those states and only three lay down any kind of penalty for refusing to stay in line.

That opens the door to possible switches by some state elections away from the candidate with the most popular votes. Wallace had publicly stated he would attempt to make some bargains if he could in the event of a stand-off. Neither Nixon nor Humphrey indicated aceeptance.

Vote-Shifting Debated

One additionally-confusing element this year was the opinion by a Harvard constittiuonal expert that an obscure law enables Congress to challenge any move by Electoral College members committed to George Wallace to shift their votes elsewhere as part of a deal.

One of Nixon's top advisers, Herbert G. Klein had predicted that the Republican candidate would wind up with an electoral majority of more than 300.

Klein said that Wallace "cut in on us heavily" in Pennsylvania, which Humphrey won. No Republican has been elected president in this century without Pennsylvania's support.

Appearing on early-morning television, Humphrey called the contest a donnybrook."

Nixon, counted out by a 120,000-popular-vote margin in 1960, made a startling comeback eight years later although he had renounced future political ambitions in 1962.

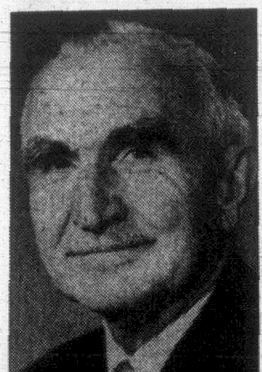
Humphrey's main strength was built around New York, Pennsylvania and Texas, all heavy electoral-vote states, with support in the northeastern states.

Nixon fashioned his electoral vote strength largely from midwestern and Western areas, as well as a fringe of states around the Deep South and New Jersey.

How much President Johnson's Thursday decision to halt attacks on North Vietnam affected the outcome remained problematical.

Nixon's advisers thought Johnson's action may have added a percentage point to Humphrey's support. But they also thought refusal of South Vietnam to send a delegation to the Paris peace talks might have subtracted this.

The Vietnam issue seemed to have no overriding effect on Senate races, where doves and hawks registered victories and defeats.



TRAILING Republican opponent in close contest for senator from Oregon is staunch dove Sen. Wayne Morse who has long been critical of U.S. actions in Vietnam war. He trailed Robert Packwood by 3,000 voes out 747,697 counted by press time today.

'Churchill' May Win

DOWAGIAC, Mich. (AP) — Write-in candidate Winston Churchill might have been elected to the Cass County board of supervisors from Volinia Township.

This Winston Churchill is a retired army major and a farmer, and he got 75 write-in votes.

He may get the office, despite 197 votes for Edward McDaniel, whose name appeared on the ballot, because McDaniel has moved from the township since qualifying for the race in which he originally had no opposition.

Election authorities were not certain immediately whether there would have to be a new election or whether McDaniel might be disqualified and Churchill declared elected.

Swedish Flyers Badly Hurt By Strafing Nigerian Plane

By JOHN BEST

SANTA ISABEL (CP) — Two Swedish flyers working for the International Red Cross were seriously injured today when Uli-Ihala airport in secessionist Biafra was bombed and strafed by a federal Nigerian aircraft, it was reliably reported here.

The attack raised immediate questions about the future of Red Cross relief operations in Biafra, in which a Canadian Hercules aircraft is engaged.

The injured flyers were evacuated to Santa Isabel, on Fernando Po island, by another relief aircraft. They were being treated here by Dr. Raymond Hillson of Vancouver, Canadian forces medical doctor assigned to the Canadian detachment.

Santa Isabel is the base of operations for Red Cross relief planes flying into food-short Biafra.

RUSSIAN-BUILT

The attack was reported to have occurred about 2 a.m. and was carried out by a single Russian-built MiG plane firing both machine-guns and rockets.

The Swedes were reported to have been standing on the apron of the airport while their DC-7 plane was being unloaded.

Names of the victims were not immediately released.

Another Canadian aircraft engaged in Biafra relief operations did not fly Tuesday night because of a propeller malfunction which occurred the night before. It was expected to be out of action for two or three nights at least.

The strike at Uli-Ihala, through which beleaguered Biafra gets food and weapons, coincided with reports of renewed federal land attacks on three fronts.

Strangled to Death

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — A 13-year-old boy missing almost a month was found dead Wednesday in west-end Port Arthur and police said he had been strangled. The body of John Bortolen was found by a rural resident lying in short brush off Central Avenue near the Avila Centre Convent.

Voters Veto Log Change

SEATTLE (AP)—Proposals to restrict log exports and permit special school levies to be voted for two-year periods appeared to have failed in Tuesday's Washington balloting, but most other statewide measures were getting a majority of "yes" votes.

Initiative 32, to limit export of timber from state lands, was being rejected by a margin of roughly 60 per cent.

Another measure allowing two-year special tax levies, was going down by about the same margin. It was the third time voters had turned down a similar proposal.

Referendum 18, a $64 million bond issue for construction of state college and university and state government buildings, started slowly but picked up steam and was carrying by nearly 60 per cent.

Jordanian Rebellion Appears to Be Over

AMMAN (AP) — The two-day confrontation between King Hussein of Jordan and rebellious Palestinian guerrillas appeared ended today.

Commando sources in Damascus reported Hussein and leaders of four commando groups in Jordan had reached an agreement. There was no immediate confirmation from Jordanian officials.

A curfew here was lifted at midnight Tuesday.

Earlier Tuesday night machine-gun bursts sounded in scattered sections of the Jordanian capital, but they were believed to be warnings for curfew violators. A fire broke out near a refugee camp outside Amman and was believed set by dissident commandos.

REPORTS VARIED

Reports varied of the casualties in Monday's fighting between the Jordanian army and one of the guerrilla groups that uses Jordan as a base for raids into Israel. Some sources said 17 persons were killed and 40 were wounded, but some diplomatic sources said more than 25 were killed and about 70 were wounded on both sides.

Jordanian authorities said earlier they had arrested the leaders of the Victory Phalanges, a splinter guerrilla group accused of starting Monday's fighting. The government accused the group of being paid agents of an unidentified foreign power whose aim was to stir up civil strife in Jordan rather than fight Israel. The foreign government was not identified.

In Jerusalem, meanwhile, Israeli Prime Minister Levi Eshkol told Parliament that Israel will never agree to any peace settlement that permits an Arab army west of the Jordan River.

In the Arab sector of Jerusalem, shopkeepers ended a strike after the Israeli High Court instructed Defence Minister Moshe Dayan to show cause within 30 days why his military police had seized 15 struck Arab stores last Saturday. Dayan was forbidden to seize any more stores meanwhile.

The military government seized the stores in an effort to break an Arab general strike.

Germany Seizes Arms Shipment Sent to Arabs

FRANKFURT (UPI) — West German authorities have seized 32 crates of military rocket parts being shipped from the United States to Saudi Arabia, officials said Tuesday.

They said the rocket parts, which bore a false manifest declaring the contents "machinery," could build 12 to 15 operational rockets.

Customs officials said the parts were shipped by an undisclosed manufacturer from California to an unnamed recipient. But airport spokesmen said Saudi Arabian Airlines was to have picked up the crates and flown them to the Saudi city of Jeddah.

West German officials became suspicious of the shipment when it arrived Saturday because the bill of lading failed to properly describe the parts. It is illegal to transport military weapons across West Germany without government authorization, the spokesman added.

American authorities have been asked to co-operate in investigating the case, the officials said.

Seeks Endorsement

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ald. Peter Graham said Tuesday he is seeking endorsement of the civic Non Partisan Association for mayor in the Dec. 11 municipal election. He said that if he doesn't get it he will not run against independent incumbent Tom Campbell.

A Long Night of Waiting

PERHAPS THE MOST OUTstanding casualties of the confusion and indecision that for many hours marked last night's presidential election count were the computers and electronic predicters which had been expected to convey the winner's name to a waiting public long before the balloting was completed. So close were the results in key states that the machines were unable to indicate a sure victor and the experts were unwilling to go out on a fluctuating statistical limb.

The election could therefore best be assessed as a reflection of the nation's mood rather than of its specific preference for a new tenant for the White House. And it is very tempting in this regard to draw a parallel with the pre-Trudeau decade in Canada. Admittedly, the voting for Senate and House of Representatives was relatively clear cut, with workable Democratic control being continued. But in the presidential contest the country provided no clear directive, and Mr. Nixon will have no unassailable mandate on which to base his administration.

This situation corresponds to the period in Canada when we failed to give either Liberals or Conservatives a bright enough green light, when Mr. Pearson struggled to manage two minority governments, and the political doldrums of the electorate were duplicated in the periods of ineffectiveness which reduced Parliament to petty bickering and public criticism.

Today's situation in the United States is surprising, in view of the very strong tides of public opinion that have swept the country in the past few years. A strong leaning to the right followed an equally strong trend to mob demonstration and the demand for greater speed in social developments. But the polls have not reflected the heated social opinions of the American citizen, the extremism of the war-and-anti-war dichotomy, and the violence of crowd action in the streets and universities.

As one commentator pointed out, the United States voting appears to have been dominated by the traditional rivalries of city versus rural populations, North versus South, East versus West, and so on. There has been no domination of the polls by the extreme Right, and there has been no discernible extreme Left. Behind all the ostensible furore and unrest of the United States today, the election results have indicated a marked adherence to the social patterns of the more stable past. There was, however, no apathy, as the vast voting total shows. The whole election, so unsatisfactory in some ways, might with some justice be interpreted as an indication of the underlying soundness and orthodoxy of the country.

Whether this aspect eventually develops as a weakness or a strength will depend on the manner in which the nation supports the new president. If the inherent indecisiveness of the eventual choice results in widespread rejection by dissidents, then the United States will enter upon a still sorrier period, and the resulting chaotic conditions may well encourage the ambitions of a "strong man" to restore order. But if the new leader governs with a proper appreciation of the many people who opposed him at the polls, the country's passage through these difficult years will be greatly eased. As close friends and neighbors, Canadians cannot avoid a keen concern for what lies ahead.

Who Runs the Hospitals?

FOLLOWING THE RECENT hospital construction referendum there has been increasing discussion in this area about ways in which to encourage greater public participation in the hospitals system. The proposal causing most debate is that members of hospital boards be elected rather than appointed as at present. The idea has merit and deserves further study.

The suggestion springs not so much from dissatisfaction at the way hospitals have been run in the past as it does from a belief that the public is entitled to a greater say in their operation. In the past when provision of financing was left largely to the individual hospital associations, the system could be justified. But now that the citizen is paying the bills directly through municipal, provincial and federal taxation he has a right to be heard.

The Victoria Labour Council recently called for an elected regional board which would administer all hospitals in the district. Mayor J. B. Cumming of North Saanich has also publicly supported wider public participation.

Mayor Stephen disagrees, arguing that some volunteers who have given valuable service as board members would not be willing to stand for election and their contributions would be lost. This would be unfortunate but should not be allowed to stand in the way of improvements to the system. The same argument could be applied to other levels of administration including municipal councils and school boards, but democracy requires that persons be found who are willing to face the public and be responsible to it.

It might be practicable to open up the membership of hospital associations to the public, advertise their meetings and hold board member elections at their annual sessions. This would at least give the public an opportunity to demonstrate its interest and concern. Or consideration might be given to electing the board on a community-wide level in conjunction with municipal elections, as with school boards.

Pencils, Not Shovels

IN MAKING HIS BID FOR THE top job at B.C. Hydro Mr. Gaglardi said he was well-qualified because the Crown corporation is so involved in his specialty of construction work. "Rate-setting and other administrative chores are a mere detail when the overall role of Hydro is viewed," said the former highways minister. That is an interesting view of the Hydro operation, especially to the customer who once a month might wish the corporation's top executives could direct a sharper focus on the setting of rates.

Now that the Peace River dam is switched on and the Columbia River projects are moving toward completion B.C. Hydro construction can be expected to slow down for a while. When all the bills are in for the two-river projects the cost will come close to one billion dollars. That should take care of our power needs for a few years.

The task ahead should be, Mr. Gaglardi's opinion notwithstanding, to consolidate, pay off some of the enormous debt and attempt to reduce costs so that British Columbia's consumer bills do not continue among the highest in Canada. Hydro needs sharp-pencilled accountants now, not dam-builders.

Military Toll Forcing Hanoi Negotiation

HANOI'S negotiators in Paris are now talking with time against them—with time, indeed, as their prime enemy. Unless all signs deceive, that is the real meaning of the remarkable and dramatic recent developments. One must begin by pointing out, of course, that the signs may too easily be deceptive. Hanoi's concessions to secure a complete bombing halt may be mere elements in a cover plan, intended to mask the preparations for the big "winter-spring offensive" that some of the captured documents have mentioned.

Alsop

Or the problems between Washington and Saigon may become further inflamed. They are troublesome enough in any case, and Hanoi will inevitably do everything possible to make them more toublesome.

With these provisos. however, and other things being equal, a grave and progressive deterioration of the enemy's military situation in South Vietnam can now be logically forecast. And if this forecast is correct, the situation of Hanoi's negotiations in Paris will also weaken gravely and progressively, reflecting the deterioration of the military situation.

The base-line for the foregoing forecast is simply the nature of the choice Hanoi had to make in early October. It was a choice, really, between going forward or going back; and the cost of going forward was horrendously high.

From January 1 to October 1 of this year, the counted toll of enemy dead had been rather more than 150,000 men. These hideous losses had in fact been the main results for the first, second and third-round offensives, the last of which was attempted in August-September. Yet to go forward, it was still necessary to prepare the winter-spring offensive.

Too Heavy a Demand

For this purpose, Hanoi had to throw in another 80,000 men, according to the minimum estimate or 100,000 men according to the more generally received estimate. Make the needed conversions to allow for the huge population difference. You then find that in the short space of nine months, Hanoi had already sacrificed the American equivalent of close to 1,800,000 men; yet Hanoi was being asked to sacrifice the American equivalent of another million-plus.

It can be understood then, why the Hanoi war-leaders chose the other alternative. This was to make the needed concessions to President Johnson in order to get a final bombing halt, and thereby to open the way for serious negotiations.

Yet the negative aspect of Hanoi's choice was, and is, more important. To keep the pot of the southern war boiling, the manpower requirement was the further 100,000 men that Hanoi has seemingly decided not to throw in. And if the men to keep the pot boiling are in fact not thrown in, then the pot can only be expected to go off the boil.

Here, of course, is the crucial military factor which makes it so important to watch for indications of a cover plan. For if there is no cover plan and if Northern reinforcements to the South are therefore held to a bare minimum, the military consequences are bound to be far-reaching.

The military consequences are bound to be far-reaching, simply because the whole VC military-political infrastructure in South Vietnam squarely depends on the actively supporting presence of the enemy's main force units. For many months, moreover, those main force units have been almost exclusively manned by North Vietnamese in the three more northerly corps areas.

Weakened Corps

In I Corps, in the provinces to the north of Da Nang, there are no longer any main forces at all, at any rate operating as organized battalions. In the rest of I Corps and in II Corps most of the main forces have again retired across the Laotian border. There is a heavy divisional concentration on the fringe of III Corps, but what seemed like a forward movement has now turned into a retreat to the Cambodian border. In the Delta, finally, the only place where VC-South Vietnamese have continued to carry the burden of the fighting, the enemy's situation is now reported as quite literally coming apart at the seams.

Maintaining Pressure

In these circumstances, General Abrams intends, with the President's authorization, to maintain relentless pressure on all remaining enemy main force units and above all on a VC infrastructure now deprived of main force support. There are strange signs already, such as reports from VC-controlled areas of leading VC cadres surreptitiously selling their land and other property — obviously because they think the villages they have tyrannized so long may soon become too hot to hold them.

There is no way, in truth, of getting away from the central fact. If Hanoi is unable for unwilling to pay the manpower bill, the enemy's military situation must deteriorate. Hence Governor Averell Harriman probably holds much stronger cards than he perhaps suspects.

FROM LONDON

By TIM TRAYNOR

Backlash From Student Militancy

STUDENT demands for dialogue in the lecture hall and the de-emphasis of examinations are far more inimical to Continental academic traditions than to those of Britain, where much emphasis has always been placed on the tutorial and the essay. In large measure, discontent here arises from the relentless and mechanical extension of the university system throughout the post-war period. This is seen as the source of a besetting bureaucratization and dehumanization which, it is said, aggravates traditional rigidities. The university student population has grown from 40,000 to 400,000 since the beginning of the war but, it is said, there has been no corresponding development in university attitudes and procedures.

Traynor

The National Union of Students, for its part, has foregone grandiose claims for control of academic affairs. The agreement recently reached with university authorities stipulates that administrations should have exclusive responsibility for decisions related to staff appointment and promotion and student admission and assessment. It is also stipulated that student participation in decisions on course content and teaching must be subject to the teachers's right to decide how he is to present his material. "Once this right is infringed from whatever quarters ... the way is open to censorship and interference of every kind," the agreement states.

Assessments of Ability

There is also a recognition that student interests are served by assessments of ability, or at least those which "recognize the very varied abilities of university students, and which are accepted by the public and employers generally." Finally, it is stated that nothing should be allowed to inhibit freedom of discussion and that students share a responsibility for ensuring that within universities all sides of a controversy get a fair hearing.

The comparative moderation of the NUS has not, however, forestalled a public reaction against the goings-on in the university world. There is the inevitable disgust with the revolutionary militants, and one hapless academic found himself in the middle of a terrific row after advocating mixed residence facilities at a northern university. Central and local governments bear the cost of student fees and there have been proposals to cut grants and replace them with loans.

There have, too, been deep rumblings within the academic community. Some professors fear that university administrators are ready to buy off student militants with concessions that could detract from scholastic endeavors. There have been warnings against the erosion of facilities for professorial research and writing. One vice-chancellor has mounted a strong attack against the basic assumption underlying the trend toward expanded student influence. He sees in the current student agitation symptoms of lingering adolescence rather than the claiming of adulthood — as depicted, most notably, in the concordat between the NUS and the body representing university authorities.

Logic Questioned

He further questions the logic of democratic participation by students in university government. "The talk this year will be of 'democracy' in the university. The analogy with the state is tempting. Yet even the most stalwart nineteenth century radical would have hesitated to advocate granting universal suffrage to a population the vast bulk of which would emigrate in three years time, which had no stake in the country's future, which was not committed to its values, and which on the contrary threatened to distort the nation's life in such a way as to destroy its greatness." Students whose appetite for power is not yet satisfied can expect to encounter strong resistance from here on in.

Looking Back

From the Times, November 6, 1908.

Many of the Indians who were employed on the sealing schooners have been in the city for their wages which are always paid them here. The rest of the Indians will arrive soon. They prefer to be paid in gold and silver, preferably silver, if the amount is not too large.

This year they drew large amounts, especially those who came down on the Bayard. The Indians now think she is a lucky ship and they will want to sail on her next year.

Canada's Historic Sites

Ottawa Journal

A man just back from a New England holiday remarked on the many historical sites and landmarks that dot the highways in those states. Along the Kennebec River in Maine Col. Benedict Arnold's 1775 Quebec expedition is well chronicled. Besides the markers showing where Arnold made a portage, there are excerpts from his diary which make the man and his times more relevant.

Driving in Canada later, our man said he noticed that historic markers were less common and he regretted it.

His point is well taken. Ontario has been energetic in marking points of interest but more has to be done in preservation.

Historians this year welcomed the announcement that the Dominion and Ontario governments had made a working agreement to accelerate the acquisition and preservation of historic structures in the province. The sums involved are not large by present standards of Government spending — each government has agreed to make $50,000 available annually — but some historic buildings in danger of being replaced by a plaque or a cairn can now be saved.

Nothing becomes so tiresome to a tourist driver as the white line in the middle of the highway. Give him markers showing the way to worthwhile historic sites, even those far off the highway and his trip will be the easier, happier and more interesting.

Letters

Greeted as Citizens

With reference to the editorial, "Belated, Broke, and Disbanded" which appeared in the Times Wednesday, October 23, 1968, we wish to state that the Greater Victoria Citizenship council, though formerly affiliated with it, is not affected by the disbandment of the Canadian Citizenship Council. We also wish to clarify our position with regard to what takes place at the time of a Citizenship Court presentation ceremony.

Admittedly we do not have personal contact with the candidates prior to the ceremony. The process of immigration has changed in the past few years. Newcomers now are either sponosored by relatives or have some connections which help them on arrival here. We realize that they should receive much more attention but when this council is not allowed to have the names and addresses of these people until after they receive their citizen status a definite difficulty arises. It is our hope that this situation will be changed in the near future and then immediate steps will be taken to establish personal contact with all landed immigrants on their arrival or very shortly afterwards.

At the citizenship ceremony, after the presiding court officer has presented the certificates, this council welcomes the candidates, a speaker addresses them and all are invited to a coffee party arranged for at a place convenient to the Law Courts.

This is not a belated welcome to New Canadians, it is a warm, friendly hour spent with people, as our guests who have ended a period of great decision. They have finalized the transition from one part of their lives to another. It is an important day and we endeavor to add just a little to it.

The court ceremonies are open to the public, representatives of the groups affiliated with the council, members of the Girl Guides, CGIT and students are often present and anyone interested in attending the reception may do so for a minimal sum.

May we say that our effort has been appreciated by our guests, we greet them, not as New Canadians but as Canadian Citizens and there is a difference.—Ethel Carson, president, The Greater Victoria Citizenship Council.

Grateful

Canadian Aid for Vietnam Civilians extends kindest thanks to all people in your province who have helped us to raise over $70,000 in cash for the people of Vietnam. Much of it has been spent on medical and surgical supplies, school supplies, powdered milk and artificial legs for the children of Vietnam.

Your readers may not realize that we assist people in all three sections into which Vietnam is divided:—the North, the Southern liberated areas, and the U.S.-controlled sections.

We will do our best to carry on our efforts to help all Vietnamese by sending aid so long as their agony continues.—A. M. Inglis, M.D., F.R.C.S. (C) Chairman Canadian Aid for Vietnam Civilians, Box 2543, Vancouver 3, B.C.

LETTER FROM JAIL

'Our Young People Are Coming on'

By FATHER DAN BERRIGAN

(Father Berrigan is one of nine persons to be sentenced Friday in Baltimore for burning draft board files. This is a letter he wrote to the National Catholic Reporter.)

What did our trial mean to me? Hard to say — perhaps a lot of things that I haven't grasped quite yet.

You know, many experiences in life have to be caught up with later. They often catch one unprepared, or come to one too fast or too complicated to be absorbed.

Yet I can say this — that trial meant hope to me. Hope because none of us were prey to any illusions about the verdict. We understood that we would be convicted and we understood why. And that's a great freedom!

Odd indeed that the court, supposedly a refuge for free men, should be an accomplice in bureaucratic injustice, and should pollute the Christian springs of law. While we congratulated one another for conviction, prayed the Our Father, and thanked the court for its courtesy.

Joan Baez says that freedom is a state of mind. And a friend of mine from Allenwood remarks from time to time, usually to newly arrived draft-resisters: "They can pen up your body, but they can't have your mind. Unless you give it to them!" An extraordinary man, he is a political prisoner like them, and knows whereof he speaks.

Secondly, that trial meant hope because of people. Now, it's very un-Christian to lose hope in people — indeed, it's as bad as losing hope in God.

But the fact is, since Oct. of last year and the bloodpouring we were strongly tempted to lose hope in people. With literally no help from the Movement, with general contempt from the press, with only a tiny circle of friends and relatives around us, we were as lonely as Roland against the Saracens.

But people have to have time, and they have to have their Chicagos, Humphreys, Agnews and LeMays. And I, for one, tended to forget that. You'll remember the profound confidence that Jefferson and Lincoln invested in people. Their confidence will be verified yet.

Americans have been brutalized by affluence, by racism and war, and by the devious machinations of empire. But they are, nonetheless, a great people.

★ ★ ★

Other men seem to understand this. As one quick African said recently, "You make us want to vomit more often than not. But we're stuck with you. Mankind will live or cease to live, depending on the choices that you Americans make."

Over two years ago, an official of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency told me that the chances of avoiding nuclear war were less than half, and plummeting. They are still plummeting.

Our Congress has just rejected the non-proliferation treaty, which was in effect, an agreement by 80 non-nuclear nations to cede responsibility for doomsday weapons to those powers irresponsible enough to build them and to use them. Like the United States. But the treaty was still rejected. It is that bad.

But it is that good also, because people are coming on. Our young people, the most superb breed this country has yet produced, are coming on.

And they are saying to the barons of industry, and to the chiefs of government and military: "You don't represent us, because your values are not our values. You're ruining our country by abusing innocent people everywhere, and by threatening the world's peace. You must stop what you are doing, or you must go!"

Yes, that trial meant hope — more hope than we need and more than we can use. Mary Moylan said on the stand she went to Catonsville "to celebrate life."

And John Hogan said that he went to illustrate that "people have a right to be left alone." Both these great people were really talking about truth and love and justice. That is to say — about life. See you at sentencing.

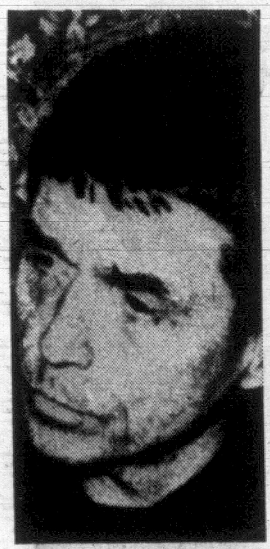
'SORRY WE BURNED PAPER INSTEAD OF CHILDREN'



Father Berrigan

I. F. STONE'S WEEKLY

In the days of the New Deal the Work Projects Administration had something called Living Theatre. Living theatre is what radicals have begun to produce.

One example is the black comedy a wild horde of hippies and yippies wove around the House Un-American Activities Committee, driving it to suspend its hearings into the Chicago peace demonstrations.

Those shopworn inquisitors did not know what to do with witnesses who acted out the procedure's essential irrationality.

Another example is the Morality Play the Catonsville Nine have been enacting.

They staged their first act on May 17 when they entered a local drafts board in Catonsville, Md., and burned up its files, with napalm they manufactured themselves from a recipe in the U.S. Special Forces Handbook.

"Our apologies, good friends," said Father Daniel Berrigan, the poet-priest who was one of their leaders, "for the fracture of good order, the burning of paper instead of children."

The second act was in a federal court in Baltimore before Chief Judge Roszel C. Thomsen.

The Nine are all Catholic, clergy and lay. Their types are recognizable through history: the stuff of which saints are made, moved by a deeper sensitivity to human suffering.

They joyfully admitted their guilt, like early brethren preparing for the lions. No legalisms spoiled the second act curtain.

The government, in its own dramaturgy, picked a black man to prosecute them. First Assistant U.S. Attorney Arthur G. Murphy said the morality of the war was not at issue, though he admitted in passing that a reasonable man might think it illegal. The issue, he said, was simply destroying property and obstructing the law.

The chief defence attorney, William Kunstler, insisted "The trial is not as simple, any more than those of Jesus and Socrates were simple."

★ ★ ★

Judge Thomsen, like a certain forerunner, kept washing his hands of the affair by allowing the defendants extraordinary latitude in explaining why they did it.

The two most wondrous characters among the Nine, the ex-priest Thomas Melville and his wife, the ex-nun, were even allowed to touch on the sufferings they saw in Guatemala which ended by driving them into the arms of the guerrillas and out of the church.

Their quiet sobriety is in strange contrast to the traumas that so transformed their lives.

The trial drew some 2,000 zealots from all over the country. The deepest appeal of the spectacle for them was in Father Daniel Berrigan's testimony when he said, "I was in danger of verbalizing my moral impulses out of existence. I sought a way to defy the state even if I was too old to defy the draft."

★ ★ ★

Of ourse they were found guilty. Not to acquiesce in murder, the chief and most ancient business of the state is clearly subversive. On Friday they will be sentenced.

The third and longest act will be when they and their supporters use the appeals to put the show on the road. We cannot think of a finer way to stir the sluggish conscience of the nation.

When my father bought John Reed's new book "Ten Days that Shook the World" shortly after the First World War, we thought it one of the less inflammatory volumes on the shelves of his living room. It wasn't the sort of document whose ownership would endear him to the Establishment, but in comparison to some of the pamphlets carefully secreted between the rafters in the attic, it seemed reasonably safe. Its possession, we felt, did not invite the police to descend upon our home and cart Father off to the pokey as a traitorous revolutionary.

That period of my life was recalled the other evening as we watched on television the Russian Revolution program based largely on Reed's book. Whatever the technical quality of the production—old movie shots in which men walked with the jerky locomotion of puppets on a string—the fact that this treatment of "Ten Days that Shook the World" was considered acceptable enough for prime-time TV viewing impressed me.

When my father bought the Reed book, there was only one popular way of looking at the then recent events in Russia. The leaders of the proletariat were wild-eyed, whiskery criminals in ill-fitting clothes who had murdered the czar and his family. They intended to kill off all decent people in all other countries to which the world revolution should spread, and their pockets always bulged with bombs.

The violence in the television production was all the other way. Apart from a shot of men packing off and dumping into the river the body of Rasputin, the atrocities were almost entirely views of unarmed working populace being slaughtered by the czar's troops and the decimation of ill-equipped, ill-led and ill-sheltered soldiers fighting the Germans.

The Russian royal family was pictured as people living in another world, not entirely insensitive to the killing of the protesting populace, but moved no more by it than they might have been had misfortune befallen one of their animals—not as much, in fact. After all, the soldiers had to remove the rebellious serfs.

The production the other evening represented once more the swing of public sentiment—and the pendulum has swung more than once in my lifetime.

We, in Victoria, seldom remember the days of close Canadian-Soviet ties, formally cemented by the city when its council adopted Sevastopol as the centre on which our attachment should be fastened. This was the time of the brave Russians trying to recover from the inhuman slaughter of so large a percentage of their men and the destruction of their towns by the Nazis.

★ ★ ★

Civic Victoria marked this welling of affection for the Soviets with an Empress Hotel dinner honoring the crew of a ship from the Crimean port—a bewildering affair at which aldermen, officials, their wives and the press alternated around the table with officers and seamen from the visiting vessel—and gained a lasting impression of the language barrier.

Then came the cold war and the love affair froze. Who'd ever heard of Sevastopol? The Bolsheviks, now often clean shaven, had become those Communists. The spy trials broke. A little-lamented Senator McCarthy swung the whip in the United States. Pinkos, if not outright subversives, lurked under every bed. Common sense withered and perished.

Now we're back on the other track. We may not love the Russians as we did briefly in the Sevastopol days here, but we're ready to look at them again as people, humans who bleed when they're pricked and who haven't been doing too bad a job in scientific advancement and sport, including ice-hockey.

The repetition of trends could make a man a bit cynical were it not for the comment of U Thant following a visit to Moscow some years ago. He offered the suggestion that time, wearing down the rough edges, would bring the Russians closer to the North American way of life, with a presumed appreciation for the rights of the individual, while the North Americans moved further along the road toward socialism until the two became indistinguishable ideologically.

Anyhow, it's safe now to move John Reed's book back to the front of the bookshelf. Nobody's going to flip about it.

Distemper of Our Times—PART 9

Last Desperate Hours Of John Diefenbaker

By PETER C. NEWMAN

John Diefenbaker must have known that he was beaten, his brand of politics dying, but custom and courage can outlast reality.

When he stalked into Maple Leaf Gardens that Saturday, Sept. 9, 1967, when the Conservatives were voting for their new leader, he was going out on his particular path to the end.

All of the sweetness and all of the bile that he inspired had by now been expended, so that he had become one of history's truly irrelevant figures and the whole elaborate drama of his candidacy was pointless, even as a gesture.

Through the long afternoon he sat in a tier of box-seats, just left of the stage, with his wife Olive and her 10-year-old grandson, while his aides, Gordon Churchill, Senator David Walker and party organizer James Johnston, came to report the fragments of conversation and miasma of rumors enveloping the Gardens.

Directly in front of him, an arm's reach away, two dozen reporters, television cameramen and radio beepers watched his every gesture, their metallic voices demanding his comments, flashing lights and thrusting microphones at their victim.

Diefenbaker's face showed the strain; his eyes were hooded in apprehension. But he remained composed throughout the ordeal, talking during the 2½-hour delay before the first ballot the way a hungry man eats, for comfort as well as nourishment:

"You've done what you had to do," Olive is saying.

"When does the vote begin?" Diefenbaker replies, just as a convention official makes an announcement in French.

"He's speaking in the language of the second nation," remarks Olive.

"Yes. The Queen's picture isn't even here."

"What do you thing of the convention?" asks a radio man, pointing to the voting machines, holding up his mike to catch the reply.

'Bring on More Balloons'

"Remarkable. In past conventions things moved faster without all those gadgets. But they do look impressive."

"Will all this hoopla rejuvenate the party?"

"If the balloons that are up there attached to the ceiling bring on rejuvenation, bring on more balloons!"

"Watcha gonna do when this is over?"

"Go fishing in the north of Saskatchewan. I haven't had a successful fishing trip in years."

"You like fishing with a bamboo pole?"

"What about you," Diefenbaker is suddenly angry. "Do you have a bamboo pole? Are you a bambooer or a bamboozler?"

"You gonna write your memoirs?"

"I never think of memoirs. I'm still making history."

'What about the voting delay?"

"Everything's electrified today. But they can't find the plug. That's for sure."

"You read anything by Marshall McLuhan?"

"Oh, that's a very interesting thing. When I was in Regina the other day. . . ."

Finally, at 3:21 Eddie Goodman announces that voting can start. Diefenbaker makes his way toward the machines. He gets bursts of applause along the way. He has trouble with the machine, has to be shown how to use it, and when he returns to his seat is questioned about the experience. "If that be not complication, I know not what complication is," he answers.

Reporters ask about the silver tray presented to him during the convention's opening ceremonies.

"Didya get a chance to look at your tray? Is it engraved, the silver tray they gave you?"

"It is not engraved."

"It's not, eh? D'ya know where they got it?"

"I don't. They say it's a Macdonald tray."

"How much d'ya think it's worth?"

"I dont' look at it from a collector's eyes. It's a question of value, intrinsic value, not a matter of consideration of dollars, when the smallest of things have behind them tradition."

It is time, now, for the results of the first ballot, and the circle of reporters tightens: "How d'ya feel, Mr. Diefenbaker?"

"I'm one of those who believes in the democratic process. You have never heard me exult in victory. I was never craven in defeat. . . ."

"You never where WHAT?"

"Craven in defeat. If you stand for a principle and the principle is right, ultimately you triumph."

"There's a gorgeous color story in the old boy," says a smooth radio voice.

Davie Fulton comes, for a moment, to perch beside Diefenbaker, and asks: "How did you like the voting machines?" There is no reply and Fulton, looking like a spoiled boy caught trying to curry favor from his school principal, sneaks away.

Gordon Churchill follows with a fistful of telegrams. "FOR CANADA'S SAKE KEEP FIGHTING" he reads, and passes it on. "GLAD TO SEE YOU BACK IN ACTION, KEEP ON KEEPING ON." The two men smile, and give each other a playful elbow poke.

Suddenly, Eddie Goodman is announcing the results of the first ballot. Stanfield is leading and Diefenbaker has only 271 votes; he is fifth among the contenders. He leans forward, writing the figures on a pad. They show that after eleven years of leading his party, he has retained less than 12 per cent of its support.

Just for an instant, a frozen flutter in time, he sits staring at the figures, caught up and held in some stillness of insight. The pouches under his eyes seem suddenly heavier like purses containing the remnants of a played-out life.

'How d'ya Feel Now?'

"How d'ya feel now, Mr. Diefenbaker, huh? How d'ya feel right at this minute? Huh?" a voice persists.

The Old Chief draws himself together. "I feel as I've always felt," he begins. Then he asks the reporters his one question of the afternoon: "What would be your summary of me, if you were being entirely objective?"

The same voice but in subdued tones: "I'd say you're bearing up extremely well under the strain."

"I've served my country. I shall continue to take those stands that I believe to be right."

Diefenbaker leaves his seat to fetch soft drinks for Olive and her grandson. An elderly delegate reaches out for him. "John, you'll always be my chief," he cries, trying for a little while longer to keep alive the legend of John Diefenbaker as the defender of society's underdogs.

Maple Leaf Gardens that day is filled with average Canadians who still believe the legend. But they can no longer support the man.

The second ballot. Diefenbaker goes to vote and when he comes back, there is joy in his gloating. In silent mime he shows how he pushed and pulled the voting machine's lever, and comments sarcastically on the long time it takes to count the ballots: "Well, it certainly shows what technical advances can do."

Then he suddensly seems distracted and tells Gordon Churchill beside him: "Nasser says, next time his people are going to understand who to vote for."

The microphones and the lights are still there, but the questions have stopped. The reporters are looking at Diefenbaker as if they expect him to begin haemorrhaging at any moment.

It is now Diefenbaker who leans forward, trying to engage their attention with a long anecdote about a Tory convention held in the late Twenties.

The reporters laugh, a little too loud, and just then the second-ballot result is announced: John Diefenbaker's support has dropped to 172 votes. Now his smile becomes a grimace, without its adornment of the afternoon's brave joy. He has dropped a hundred votes. He is asked if he will withdraw.

"I have no observations to make."

"Well, never mind, Chief," says Senator Walker gently, "maybe we'll go for a little walk and maybe you can get a glass of ginger ale."

Hees Envoy Rebuffed

Walker and Churchill lead Diefenbaker out to a room under the Gardens galleries. After quick, dismal consultation, Diefenbaker decides to withdraw. Douglas Bassett, a young Hees supporter, flahses in to say that George will give the Chief anything for his support, but finds himself rebuffed.

As always, Diefenbaker has waited too long to act. It is too late to withdraw. The thrid ballot has started. Diefenbaker goes to vote, and the applause he gets is thin, the polite clapping of a cricket-match crowd. Back in his seat, he looks at the reporters and they look at him.

No one says anything. Then the convention co-chairman is announcing the third-ballot tally: John Diefenbaker's support is down to 114 votes—less than 5 per cent of the delegates. "That's it," he says, and suddenly he is going.

He is still somehow holding himself together, like a sheet of broken safety glass. The conductor of the house orchestra catches the occasion and begins playing "Hail to the Chief".

But there is no music left in the old man, as he makes his way out of that hot hell of a hall, jammed with shamefaced reporters, ungrateful Tories and shattered illusions.

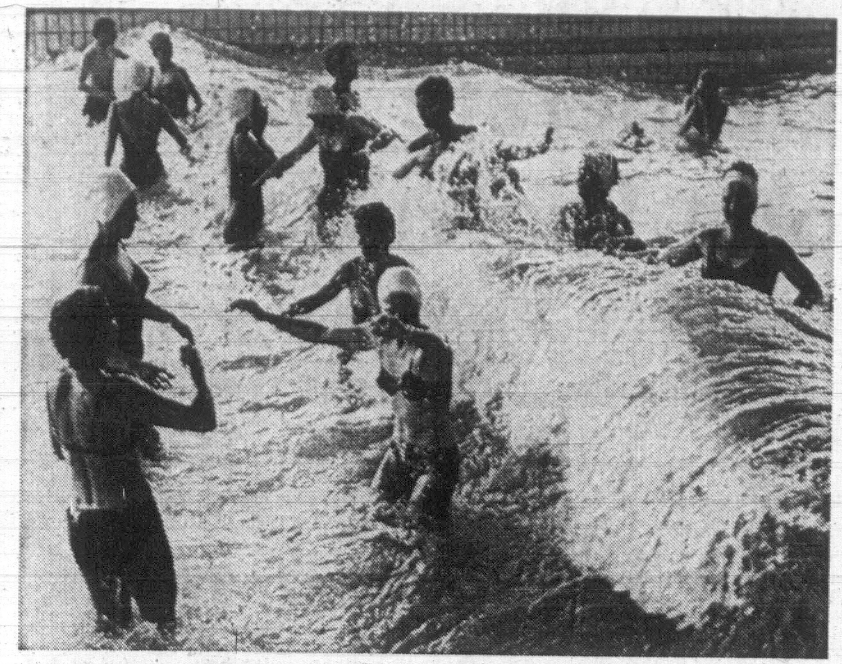
Now Frampton Starts Making Waves



HERE'S WHAT VICTORIA will get if members of the recreation and community services committee have their way on swimming pool design. The waves shown here are being created by a wave-making machine which can vary the size of the breakers to the swimmers desires and can also be switched off entirely during swimming meets. The pool in the photograph is located in Germany. At the shallow end the water tarts at a depth of two inches to encourage youngsters to join the fun. At the deep end the depth is 15 feet for high-diving enthusiasts. Ald. Percy Frampton says he would like to see the Victoria pool of wider design to permit competition swimming across the width of the pool.

By JIM HUME

The cry of "surf's up" will be heard regularly in Victoria in 1970 if Ald. Percy Frampton has his way.

Once opposed to a futuristic swimming pool equipped with wave-making machinery Ald. Frampton said Monday he is now completely converted.

Mayor Hugh Stephen first introduced the concept of a new-look in swimming pools to replace the soon-to-be-demolished Crystal Garden.

He urged fellow council members to consider building a replacement pool of such design that it would sever not only for swimming and diving contests, but would also attract thousands as a recreation centre.

Ald. Frampton, chairman of the city's recreation and community services committee, balked at the cost.

"I admit quite frankly that the mayor has changed my mind," he said.

"The problem of cost still bothers me, because for a pool of this kind we shall have to pay a great deal of money. But I am convinced now that if we can swing it, we should."

THREE PHASES

Ald. Frampton said his ideal pool would be 25 meters in width and long enough to permit three phases of acquatic activities simultaneously.

"The wider pool isn't such a great feature in the final cost as might be thought," he said. "If we get a pool 25 meters in width we could leave the one end open for recreation swimming, the other end open for diving contests while running organized races in the centre section.

"In this way you put the pool to full use all the time. You don't throw the youngsters out just because you want to run a swimming meet and you don't delay a swimming meet just because a recreation group needs the pool."

While both the mayor and Ald. Frampton back the concept of a pool with wave-making machinery, neither has any idea of the final cost of such a project.

"That's one of the things we have to get down to in the near future," said Ald. Frampton. "It may prove just too costly for us, but I hope not."

The first step towards a definite cost figure will be made Thursday when the recreation committee meets to decide on the appointment of a consultant to guide the city to its final decision on a new pool.

UNNAMED SITE

In the meantime land acquisition in the, as yet unnamed area where the pool will be located is at a halt pending expropriation proceedings against several hold-out property owners.

"I am still not prepared to say just where the pool will be located," Ald. Frampton maintains. "There are a few more bridges to cross before we get to that."

Since the Crystal was virtually condemned by a team of investigating engineers, the general area of the Central Park region has been mooted as the logical location for the new pool.

Almost a year ago proponents of the Central Park area backed their arguments with the claim that the location would give the city one of the finest sports complexes in Canada.

Central Park with its ball diamonds, Royal Athletic Park, Memorial Arena and the Curling Rink are already located in the area.

'HIGH HOPES'

Asked if he had any target date for a construction start Ald. Frampton repeated an earlier statement.

"I still have high hopes that construction will start before the end of 1969," he said. "I don't see why it shouldn't if we move fast enough. The pool, if all goes well, should be ready for use sometime in 1970."

Regional Planning Change Before City

Victoria city council will be asked next week to endorse a move to bring the Capital Region Planning Board under regional jurisdiction.

But not until the letters patent governing the regional district board have been charged to spell out clearly that Victoria, as an urban area, will control its own planning destiny.

In asking for support from the public works committee this morning Ald. Ian Stewart said it would be advantageous to have regional planners actually under regional control.

"But we want it clearly stated that Victoria will be designated as an urban area and that within that area planning will be done as it is now," he said.

"The amendments we have proposed in the supplementary letters patent would remove the danger that at some future date, by unilateral decision, we could lose this function."

Victoria will be asking three things before voting in favor of the transfer.

"Simply spelled out they are these," said Ald. Stewart:

"Autonomy for local planners; greater community participation on the technical planning board and elimination of the simple majority rule which makes it possible for that simple majority to inflict a decision on the region as a whole."

Mayor Hugh Stephen complimented Ald. Stewart on his presentation and suggested that the changes as drafted provided the city with greater protection than existing legislation.

Before the marriage of the two boards can take place members of the regional district board must give unanimous approval.

Esquimalt and Central Saanich have already agreed to the move.

ANTLERLESS ELK SEASON ENDS FRIDAY

Minister of Recreation and Conservation Kenneth Kiernan announced Tuesday an early closure of anterless elk hunting on Vancouver Island, effective at sunset Friday.

Decision to close the season three days early came on recommendations of regional game bioiogists, who felt that an expected increase of hunting pressure over the long weekend could have a detrimental effect on population of herds.

Antlered elk remain "in season" until Nov. 11.

Biculture Expert To Speak Here

A Uvic student political forum Friday will feature a lecture by Stern Ryerson, a magazine editor and writer on French-English relations in Canada.

Mr. Ryerson will speak on French Canadian separatism and English Canada at 12:30 in Room 167 of the Elliott Building on campus.

He is editor of Horizons Magazine and has just written a book on the Canadian constitution entitled the Unequal Union.

The lecture is open to the public.

Teachers Charge Harsh Treatment in Quebec City Jail

MONTREAL (CP) — Six directors of the Syndicat des professeurs de l'etat du Quebec, among 13 who served brief jail terms for violating an injunction, levelled some heavy criticism Tuesday at Quebec's penal system.

Twelve directors of SPEQ, a teachers' union, were released Saturday and another was set free Monday after serving most of their 20-day terms for ignoring a back-to-work injunction during a 1966 teachers' strike.

The six told a news conference Tuesday they did not receive special treatment in the Quebec City jail, where terms for 12 of them began Oct. 18 and that of the 13th started Oct. 19.

"I am really ashamed of being a citizen of Quebec when it has such a deplorable penal system," said Claude le Lorimier, SPEQ's president.

"Although we were imprisoned under civil law and did not acquire a criminal record, we believe we were more badly treated than those imprisoned under the penal code."

Mr. de Lorimer said the teachers were incarcerated "a few feet away" from the solitary confinement section which prisoners call "the hole."

"That's where we lived in three damp and dark rectangular vaults . . . clothed in the humiliating garb of the prisoner.

"We were confined to these cells so as not to be in contact with the other prisoners. And apparently for this reason we were refused permission to walk in the interior courtyard of the prison."

Only after "strong protest" were they "allowed to go out for one hour." But other prisoners were permitted "three hours out in the open air."

The teachers told reporters that visiting time to other prisoners was reduced to 10 minutes from 30 because jail officials said the teachers needed the visiting room.

But the teachers said they had only five minutes on Sundays for visits from relatives and friends.

Claude Sabourin—last of the teachers to be released, for good behavior—said he entered jail 15 hours after his 12 colleagues, but was released 30 hours after they were.

The SPEQ officials said another example of arbitrary behavior by jail officials was how the teachers had to mount pressure to obtain newspapers and even shaves.

Their food was cold and their cells were like echo chambers. Their cells were "bugged" with microphones so their conversations could be recorded.

Teachers Complain They're Out in Cold

By DON VIPOND

The Greater Victoria Teachers' Association wants a bigger role in shaping the local education system.

In a blunt and sometimes steamy session with the school board Tuesday night, executive members of the association complained the experience and expertise of the 1,260-member teachers' organization aren't being utilized.

"We feel we are on the outside so often," said GVTA president John Smith. "We have a lot to contribute to preliminary work leading to policy.

"It seems to me the job we have to do is so important we can't afford to do anything but work together."

FAILED TO SHOW

The meeting called by the board had been termed an "education open house" and was intended to give several groups associated with education a chance to share their views.

But debate centred on dissatisfaction of the teachers' association when other organizations failed to turn up, some apparently feeling an open meeting involving several groups wasn't for them.

A basic conclusion from the meeting is that there are tangles in lines of communication between trustees and teachers.

Trustees bristled when told least no better than two years ago. And teachers were miffed when it was suggested the liaison problem lay within their own ranks.

There is no GVTA representation on the variety of committees studying education issues, said Mr. Smith, and it is needed to improve communication between trustees and teachers.

"Our complaint is we simply don't know what's going on."

Board chairman Peter Bunn suggested the delinquency may be that teachers on committees are not reporting back to their association.

Other questions the GVTA executive put to the board:

- What role do trustees see for the teachers' association?
- Where is a board policy statement on its long and short-term education objectives and the priority plan for carrying them out?

TWO-YEAR WAIT

Mrs. Kory Regan, last year's GVTA president, said she wrote each trustee on the first question two years ago and was still waiting for the first reply.

On the second point, Mr. Bunn said he sees the current provincial education system based on politics with standpoints changing from month to month, making planning impossible.

The board has been so involved with trying to provide needed school space it hasn't been able to attend to improving education.

One concrete result of the meeting: the school board will advise the GVTA on just who, including teachers, is sitting on a critical advisory committee formed two years ago.

BUILDERS TO PROMOTE HOUSING

TORONTO (CP) — Builders, real estate men and building material manufacturers have decided to set up a council to promote housing.

Nigel Puttock, chairman of the group, said Tuesday the housing industry "hasn't promoted itself with the consumer."

"The share of consumer spending going into residential construction is declining while spending on cars and holidays is rising."

William Connelly of Ottawa, past president of the National Housebuilders Association — one of the members of the new group — said the aim of the council is to have all sections of the housing industry pool promotional dollars to "advance housing of all kinds, not just houses for ownership."

'No Stimulus in Budget To Halt Unemployment'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Donald MacDonald. president of the Canadian Labor Congress, protested Tuesday that the latest federal budget provides no stimulus to head off unemployment.

He told the British Columbia Federation of Labor convention:

"All our warnings have apparently been disregarded. . . . The most recent government figures have verified the CLC's warnings that unemployment would be in the five-per-cent level.

"There is no sign of unemployment lessening but it is going to increase. Canada is still in a state of rapid expansion.

"We will have the highest growth of any country in the world but we are also at the same time failing to provide jobs for the young people now being educated and entering the labor force."

Mr. MacDonald said that when the CLC warned Ottawa in February that unemployment was approaching five per cent, Lester Pearson, then prime minister, said the CLC was being overly pessimistic.

Several delegates and union leaders complained at the convention that labor is not playing an adequate leadership role in pressing for world peace.

They passed a resolution condemning the Russian occupation of Czechoslovakia and another demanding that supplies of Canadian arms for use in Vietnam be ended.

In provincial affairs, delegates called for a provincial department of resource development to ensure that no resources are tapped before all uses for it have been investigated.

They also urged a provincial department of pollution control.

Republicans Make Sharp Gains in Races for Governor

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republicans ousted Democratic governors in six states Tuesday and increased to a minimum of 29 their majority of the state houses in the United States.

Democrats snared Rhode Island and Montana from the Republicans, but lost control in New Hampshire, Delaware, Indiana, Iowa, Vermont and West Virginia.

Of the 21 governorship contests, Republicans were assured of 11, Democrats of eight, and two races—Arkansas and Illinois—remained in doubt. Before election day Republicans held a 26-to-24 edge.

Governors winning re-election included Republicans Jack Williams of Arizona, David F. Cargo of New Mexico, Daniel J. Evans of Washington and Warren P. Knowles of Wisconsin; and Democrats Robert Docking of Kansas, Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri, William L. Guy of North Dakota and Calvin L. Rampton of Utah.

In Rhode Island, Democrat Frank Licht, a former state judge and legislator, defeated Republican Governor John H. Chafee, who was trying for a fourth two-year term as governor. In Montana, Democratic Attorney-General Forrest H. Anderson frustrated the second-term bid of Governor Tim Babcock, a Republican.

Delaware's Charles L. Terry Jr., a Democrat who at 68 was the country's oldest governor, was defeated in his re-election bid by Republican Russell W. Peterson. Terry suffered a heart attack Oct. 9, his second.

Vermont's governorship reverted to a Republican for the first time in six years with the victory of Deane C. Davis, who defeated Lieutenant-Governor John J. Daley, 45. Governor Philip J. Hoff, a Democrat, retired.

In Kansas, Robert Docking became only the second Democrat in the state's history to win a second two-year term, defeating Rick Harman. Docking's father, George, was the first Democrat to repeat as governor.

In 1965, in his first year as Missouri's governor, Democrat Warren Harnes pushed through a constitutional change to allow a second consecutive four-year term for the state's governors. Hearnes, 45, won that second term handily, defeating Republican Lawrence K. Roos.

Lieutenant-Governor Preston Smith, a Democrat, was successful in maintaining the party's hold of the Texas governor's mansion, vacated after three two-year terms by John Connally.

Smith, 56-year-old businessman, defeated 49-year-old tax lawyer Paul Eggers, making his first political race.

Democrats Keep Control Of Congress

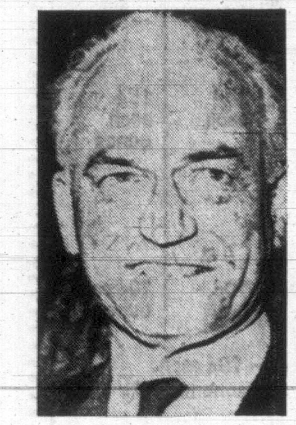
WASHINGTON (CP) — Tuesday's United States election assured the Democrats a numerical majority in both branches of Congress.

They will retain their grip on the key Senate and House of Representatives offices and committee chairmanships that play major roles in shaping and handling legislation.

Although it will look much like its predecessor, the 91st Congress nevertheless will have a somewhat more conservative cast, with the Republican gains and the return of Southern Democrats who frequently vote with Republicans.

The Democrat margins were reduced in both chambers.

Thirty-four of the 100 Senate seats and all 435 seats in the House of Representatives were filled.



GOLDWATER
. . . easy victory

Latest returns gave the Democrats 58 Senate seats, compared with 63 in the 90th Congress. The Republicans were given 40 seats, compared with 37. Two seats were doubtful.

In the House, returns tabulated so far gave the Democrats 242 seats and the Republicans 187, with six seats doubtful. This compared with 246 Democrats and 186 Republicans, with three vacancies, in the previous Congress.

VETERANS LOSE

Veteran senators from Oklahoma and Pennsylvania were toppled as Republicans whittled down—but failed to overcome—the Democrats' substantial majority.

Republican Barry Goldwater of Arizona, whose crushing 1964 presidential defeat helped maintain the Democrats' powerful congressional control, returned easily to the Senate.

Goldwater's victory and the defeat of Democratic Senators Joseph S. Clark in Pennsylvania and A. S. (Mike) Monroney of Oklahoma highlighted a Republican net gain of at least three seats.

Republicans also took away seats in Florida and Maryland.

Republican Max Rafferty lost to Democrat Alan Cranston in a close battle for the seat held by California Republican Senator Thomas Kichel, defeated by Rafferty in the primary nominating election.

The Republicans needed to capture 14 seats from the Democrats to clinch control of the Senate, but no sweep of that size developed.

Monroney, three-term veteran and a longtime champion of congressional reform, was defeated by Henry Bellmon, Oklahoma's first Republican governor. The campaign was marked by disputes over the Vietnam war and federal spending.

Clark, an outspoken foe of the Vietnam war, seeking his third Senate term, lost to Republican Representative Richard S. Schweiker despite Hubert H. Humphrey's capture of Pennsylvania's presidential electoral votes.

BREWSTER LOSES

Democrat Daniel B. Brewster was defeated in a Senate race by Republican Charles McC. Mathias. Brewster supported the administration's Vietnam war policies, Mathias called for bombing halt before President Johnson ordered it last week.

But the Vietnam war had no clearly discernible impact on Senate races.

Democratic Senator J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee and an outspoken dove, won re-election, as did other critics of the war, such as Democratic Senators Frank Church of Idaho, Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin and George S. McGovern of South Dakota.

But such leading hawks as Goldwater and Republican Edward Gurney won Senate seats for the Republicans.

Goldwater captured the Arizona Senate seat from which 91-year-old Democrat Carl Hayden is retiring. Goldwater defeated Roy Elson, Hayden's administrative assistant. Goldwater said new leadership is needed to win the war.

Gurney, a Republican member of the House advocated carrying the war to North Vietnam and blockading the port of Halphong. He defeated his Democratic opponent, former governor LeRoy Collins, by a substantial margin. Collins had called for pushing the Paris peace talks and for gradual de-Americanization of the war.

TALMADGE WINS

Among the Democratic incumbent senators who won re-election were Warren G. Magnuson of Washington, Alan Bible of Nevada, Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut, Birch Bayh of Indiana, Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii, Herman E. Talmadge of Georgia, Russell Long of Louisiana, Sam J. Ervin Jr. of North Carolina and Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina.

Republican senators re-elected included George D. Aiken of Vermont, Peter H. Dominick of Colorado, Norris Cotton of New Hampshire, Jacob K. Javits of New York, Milton R. Young of North Dakota, and Wallace F. Bennett of Utah.

Election Late Show Study in Frustration

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States presidential election returns turned into a frustrating late show on the three major U.S. television networks.

Returns on the presidential race from most of the big, pivotal states were so close that none dared to project winners.

Television did a superb job of pulling together reports that started before the Eastern polls closed and continued all night.

It was enormously complicated, but all three networks managed to keep the public abreast of the changing race and at the same time keep up with the state governors, Congressional and local contests.

All followed approximately the same basic programming pattern. They cut to reports on local races at about the same time. They often flashed the same presidential vote totals on their screens at the same time. And frequently, all three were showing commercials at the same time.

PARTNERS IN NES

Since the networks are partners with The Associated Press and United Press International in the National Election Service, which collects the national totals, all had the same access to the vote tabulations at the same time.

Network competition for audiences was mostly confined to the way each, with its computerized projection system, picked winners on the basis of returns in sample precincts.

As the hours wore on, however, projecting winners on incomplete returns slowed to a crawl.

The commentators had to do a lot of commenting after midnight. Eric Sevareid of CBS talked informally with Theodore White, the student of politics, and produced some interesting moments. Gore Vidal and William Buckley continued their commentaries on ABC—but not appearing together. NBC stuck with its regular staff.

For those who wanted to save their eyesight there was also excellent radio coverage.

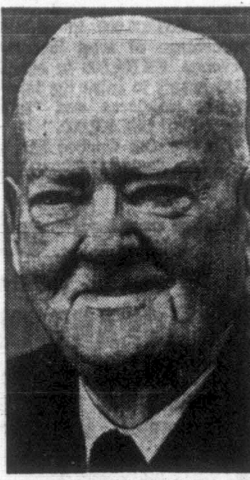
Speeches of Yesterday So Quickly Forgotten

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD
Special to The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The oratory always grows in volume as the campaign nears an end. How much of the torrent will be remembered when the battle for the presidency is over? Very little, you can be sure.

No matter how hard I try, I can remember only one remark made in the 1928 campaign, the first campaign I was assigned to cover.

This was Herbert Hoover's characterization of prohibition as a "noble experiment." Actually, Hoover put it differently, saying that prohibition was "a great social and economic experiment, noble in motive and far-reaching in purpose." This satisfied the drys but brought jeers from the wets.



HOOVER
. . . prohibition issue

Hat Recalled

I am sure that Alfred E. Smith made some good speeches in 1928, but all that I can remember about that colorful New Yorker was his brown derby, his pronunciation of radio as "raddio," and the bands playing "East Side, West Side, All Around the Town."

Flying is now scarcely more exciting than a bus ride, but in 1932 Franklin D. Roosevelt seemed almost a daredevil when he flew to Chicago to accept the Democratic nomination and promise the country a "New Deal."

What I remember most vividly about 1932, however, was the way Roosevelt frightened the City of Washington with his promise to balance the budget.

He said he would do it by cutting federal expenditures by 25 per cent. This was bad news for a city that depends on the government payroll for its very existence.

A few months after FDR was inaugurated, of course, he reversed himself and became the greatest peacetime spender ever to occupy the White House up to that time.

And Landon, Too

I don't remember anything that was said by Alf Landon in 1936, although he must have made some good speeches, and I remember only one thing said by President Roosevelt in his campaign for a second term. That was his denunciation of "economic royalists."

The most striking and memorable remark of 1936 was made by Al Smith when he said that "nobody shoots Santa Claus."

Al, who had broken with FDR, was suggesting that the president had made himself unbeatable by handing out so much federal money to people on relief.

In running for a third term in 1940, Roosevelt assured American parents "again and again" that he would not send their sons into a foreign war.

Wendell Willkie, his Republican opponent, said pretty much the same thing. It was a dangerous promise, and in retrospect both men seemed guilty of deceit.

My Little Dog

In 1944, when FDR ran for a fourth term, I happened to be on hand at the Statler Hotel here when he made the most talked-about speech of the campaign.

Addressing the Teamsters Union from a wheelchair, he said that he didn't mind the Republican attacks on himself, his wife and his sons, but he did resent the attacks on "my little dog, Fala."

The teamsters cheered wildly and pounded the tables with cutlery. It seems odd now, 24 years later, but it was adjudged Roosevelt's most effective speech of 1944.

Looking back on the 1948 campaign, I remember vividly a strange remark that President Harry S. Truman made in Eugene, Ore. Referring to Premier Josef Stalin, whom he met at the big three' conference at Postdam in 1945, he told a crowd: "I like old Joe but he is a prisoner of the politburo."

Later on, the campaign train of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey backed into a crowd at Beaucoup, Ill., and Dewey blurted out from the rear platform: "That's the first lunatic I've had for an engineer."

First Lunatic

As for the two battles between Dwight D. Eisenhower and Adlai E. Stevensonin 1952 and 1956, I remember best Adlai's poignant remark in defeat: "It was like running against George Washington."

John F. Kennedy was a brilliant campaigner in 1960. His refrain, "it's time for America to get moving again," lingers in my memory — that and his quoting of a Robert Frost verse when he would be leaving a crowd: "The woods are lovely, dark and deep, but I have promises to keep and miles to go before I sleep."

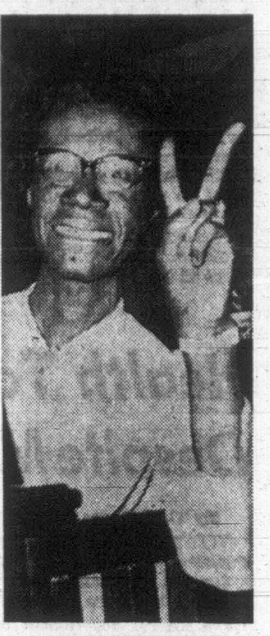
In the 1964 campaign, Barry Goldwater started out with an explosive statement: "Extremism in the defence of liberty is no vice. Moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue."

Asian Boys

I had to look up the precise wording of that, and also of President Lyndon B. Johnson's remark: "We are not about to send American boys nine or 10 thousand miles away from home to do what Asian boys ought to be doing for themselves."

What about 1968? What will we remember of all the hundreds of thousands of words uttered by the candidates? Of Richard M. Nixon, we may remember that he went after the votes of those he has called "the forgotten Americans, the non-shouters and the non-demonstrators." Of Humphrey, we probably will dwell not so much on what he said as on his gallant, uphill battle as the underdog.

George C. Wallace had the most colorful vocabulary of any of the candidates, and the political reporters doubtless will long remember his tirades against "the pointy-headed pseudo-intellectuals."



MRS. CHISHOLM
. . . capacity for surprise

First Negro Woman In Congress

NEW YORK (AP) — When the United States Congress convenes in January, it will have in its membership for the first time a Negro woman —Shirley Chisholm, a Democrat with a capacity for confounding her male colleagues.

She defeated Republican James Farmer, former head of the Congress of Racial Equality, in the predominantly Negro Bedford-Stuyvesant district of Brooklyn.

As an assemblywomen in the New York state legislature, Mrs. Chisholm lectured the legislators on their political practices and often walked out of party caucuses.

The wiry, articulate 43-year-old former teacher has succeeded within the labyrinth of New York's political system.

At the Democratic national convention in Chicago in August, she became the first Negro woman to be elected a national committeewoman — from either party—and as a state legislator, her name was attached to a large share of successful legislation including a bill to give unemployment insurance to domestic workers.

An operation for removal of a benign fibroid tumor kept her in hospital three weeks during the campaign.

Mrs. Chisholm was born in the Bedford-Stuyvesant district she represents. She won scholarships to Brooklyn College and later received a master's degree in early childhood education from Columbia University.

NEW YORK LANDSLIDE SURPRISE OF NIGHT

NEW YORK (AP)—Hubert H. Humphrey, once rated a sure loser in New York, walked off with the state's 43 electoral votes today in a triumph over Richard Nixon that was surprising for its ease.

The Democratic presidential candidate scored his victory in a climate that produced such Republican successes as Senator Jacob K. Javits' emphatic re-election and Republican capture of majority control of the state Assembly.

Republicans also added two seats to their majority bloc in the state Senate, while Democrats managed to retain their wide numerical superiority in the state's 41-member delegation to the House of Representatives.

Among those elected to Congress was the first Negro woman to achieve such a high post—Shirley Chisholm, a state assemblywoman who ran in a new district in Brooklyn. She defeated civil rights leader James Farmer.

At the outset of the campaign, Nixon had been pegged as a heavy favorite to carry New York, but Humphrey came from behind in the closing days of the campaign. The contest was regarded as a tossup on election eve.

Instead, Humphrey ran away with it and gave promise of matching or exceeding the glamorous John F. Kennedy's 383,000-vote trouncing of Nixon in this state eight years ago.

HAD BIG MARGIN

Incomplete returns gave Humphrey a 500,000-vote lead over Nixon, but it appeared this margin would be reduced as late reports from predominantly Republican counties drifted in.

The latest tabulation, from 12,090 of the state's 13,581 election districts, gave Humphrey 3,136,381 votes, Nixon 2,603,973 and third-party contender George C. Wallace 307,497.

Wallace's showing was disappointing to his adherents. He had been expected to snare about 10 per cent of the total vote but won only about 5 per cent.

In the three-way Senate contest, Javits crushed his nearest competitor, Democrat Paul O'Dwyer, a Vietnam peace candidate.

But Conservative William F. Buckley, a brother of columnist William F. Buckley Jr., was a happy third-place finisher. He was within striking distance of his goal of polling 1,000,000—twice the number of any previous Conservative candidate.

Latest returns in the Senate race, from 10,354 districts, gave Javits 1,941,189; O'Dwyer 1,151,223 and Buckley 641,968.

GREGORY OVERLOOED

The Freedom and Peace parties' candidates, Negro entertainer Dick Gregory, running for president, and Herman B. Gerguson, a former school administrator who ran for U.S. senator, fared poorly.

Republicans were jubilant over their recapture of the Assembly majority, which they had lost in the Johnson landslide of 1964. It insured a solid Republican front to work with Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in the 1969 legislature.

The new Senate lineup will be 33 Republicans and 24 Democrats.

IKE VOTES FROM BED

WASHINGTON (CP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republican president of the United States from 1952 until 1960, cast his U.S. presidential election vote Tuesday at Walter Reid Army Hospital where he is recovering from his seventh heart attack.

Harry Truman, Democractic president from 1948 until 1952, voted in his home town of Independence, Mo.

Provinces Leave Parley With Plenty to Ponder

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson has sent his provincial counterparts away empty handed but with plenty of ponder about future tax-sharing deals in the six weeks before they meet again.

The two-day federal-provincial finance conference agreed, as expected, to leave personal income tax collection in federal hands, with distribution of the provincial shares as at present.

The conference disagreed on the revenue from Mr. Benson's new, two-per-cent income tax being reserved for the federal treasury instead of being shared.

The ministers suspended judgment on a federal plan to turn over some shared-cost welfare programs completely to the provinces along with a bigger piece of tax revenue.

Provincial ministers left Tuesday night unhappy about federal taxing and welfare policies, but with general willingness to consider seriously the federal plan to withdraw from welfare and hand more revenue to the provinces, on the pattern of present Ottawa-Quebec arrangements.

Quebec and Ontario in particular are angry because Mr. Benson bluntly refused to apply the same compensation-for-opting-out formula to medical care.

WILL STUDY NEEDS

As a start towards trying to clear up some pressing differences, the ministers decided to reactivate their 1966 tax structure committee to assess needs in preparation for meetings on tax sharing Dec. 19, and next year.

The federal and provincial ministers also will exchange ideas by correspondence on how to deal with what Mr. Benson called "the spiralling costs of post-secondary education," a field in which the federal treasury helps with capital expenses.

In combination with a parallel meeting of health ministers, the closed conference agreed to set up a committee to study cost-trimming in health-service grants.

Mr. Benson attached some cash figures to his slightly-revised renewal of a 1966 offer to reimburse the provinces for taking over full responsibility for hospital insurance, provincial pension supplements and national health grants.

He said these programs now cost the federal treasury $1,215,000,000 a year. The provinces would get the same amount under his hand-over formula—$835,000,000 in additional percentage of total income-tax revenue, $95,000,000 in equalization grants to raise the take for poorer provinces and "adjustments" of $285,000,000.

Ontario and Quebec had said that their citizens should be exempt from the new two-per-cent tax or reimbursed, arguing that the so-called social development tax is meant to meet federal costs for a medical care program neither one has joined. Mr. Benson insists the new tax is for general welfare costs, not just medical care.

Quebec Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand said Mr. Benson's refusal to exempt Quebec from the tax was "genuine domineering federalism."

Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said he would consider other methods—possibly through a revised provincial medical plan—to avoid a situation whereby "our people are being taxed for a service which, for a variety of reasons, we are not prepared to enter."

Saskatchewan Treasurer D. C. Steuart said:

"It's the same old thing. Father Ottawa knows best. They set up new welfare programs and then when we're fully committed pull out. . . .

"They're talking about getting out of medicare and most provinces haven't even got in yet."

Health Talks Useful Despite Medicare Fray

By Times News Services

OTTAWA — Provincial health ministers went home Tuesday in a state of uncertainty over the future of medicare programs.

The federal government indicated it would withdraw from the program by 1973. The provinces urged Ottawa to stay in, except for Quebec which said that the federal government should get out now and leave medicare to the provinces.

British Columbia Health Minister R. R. Loffmark said he was left with the impression that Ottawa would force all provinces into the scheme before it, itself, withdraws.

Despite the medicare snarl, the conference made progress on other topics:

General Health Grants: They will be abandoned over a three-year period, with the exception of those for public health research and professional training. The federal government would spend at least $5,000,000 a year on these two. This withdrawal prompted "strong displeasure" from the provinces.

Hospital Construction Grants: These will be dropped entirely by 1970. "No consensus" was reached at the conference.

Health Resources Fund: Begun with $500,000,000 and no annual limit to outlays, this program will be reduced to annual payments of $37,540,000 for 1968-69 and probably similar amounts in future. Provinces with projects under way will be give priority over those with none, although a province's eventual share will not be affected.

Indian Health: The federal proposal is to stop reimbursing reserve Indians if the charges are higher than those charged any other resident. Payments for Indians in remote areas and the territories are not affected.

Air Pollution: Mr. Munro suggested both levels of government co-operate to establish national pollution standards under the framework of a proposed national clean air act. Now under way are plans to establish a national sampling network and to develop standards of air quality and emission standards for motor vehicles.

Drug abuse: There was agreement on the need for a co-ordinated approach encompassing the medical, legal, sociological, psychological and educational aspects of the problem.

Mr. Munro said it was impossible to estimate the dollar value of the reductions in federal involvement in the programs.

The alders down by the cove are still green as summer, but in the wildlands above, the autumn leaf-fall is well along.

It began with the broadleaf maples, perhaps because the enormous leaves they flaunt are fair game for every passing breeze. Let a brisk wind strike in among them, and almost overnight, their boughs are stripped.

Up where we maintain a truce between encroaching second growth and tame garden, this foliage yield means present or future raking. The pawky compost their leaves, and so do we, until we run out of patience. Then we dump our loads in a pile and burn them, trading soil enrichment for the autumn incense that tolerant Saanich still permits its residents to enjoy.

Beyond the garden fringe all's different. There, nature can be left to her own disposal scheme, which is carried out quietly and efficiently.

Before the maples are green again, their old leaves will be weathered and leached to frail grey skeletons.

That time will come; but in November, those leaves still lie in brown carpets and windrows. Stand quiet . . . listen . . . and you may hear sounds among them that are blanked out when summer's in possession.

A deciduous tangle offers a home to many crestures, and the woods of fall reveal their presence.

★

Most mornings, we step into the rubber boots that sit handy in their back-porch box, and jog down to the beach stairs by a way of fallen leaves.

Lancer the Lab ranges ahead, nose busy with the scents that night and first-daylight foragers have left behind them.

These are tangled trails, and he unravels them as a matter of duty.

Close by in an ocean spray-thicket, the dry-leaf rustle betrays a brown wren smaller than a mouse. It darts from its twig into thicker cover. Off to the right, a pheasant is tramping about on spurred feet. We can't see him, but we can picture him easily enough.

He flushes with a cackle, a fine, long-tailed rooster, launched rudely into flight. But he does not go far. Give him an hour or two, and that plump ringneck will be picking and scratching at the foot of the garden.

For anticlimax, two quail whirr out and away in the opposite direction. Dog emerges, grinning. He has put up game birds, and is well pleased with himself. For a while now, he will be content to pad sedately along the leaf-brown path.

★

Farther down where the trail opens out, the leaves lie very thick. Our coast does not run to the brilliant colors of eastern fall, but the cascara makes a fair enough show with such boat-shaped leaves of lemon as still cling to its slender twigs.

The late-shedding Pacific willows make a tracery of flawed gold against a sky turning blue for a sunny day.

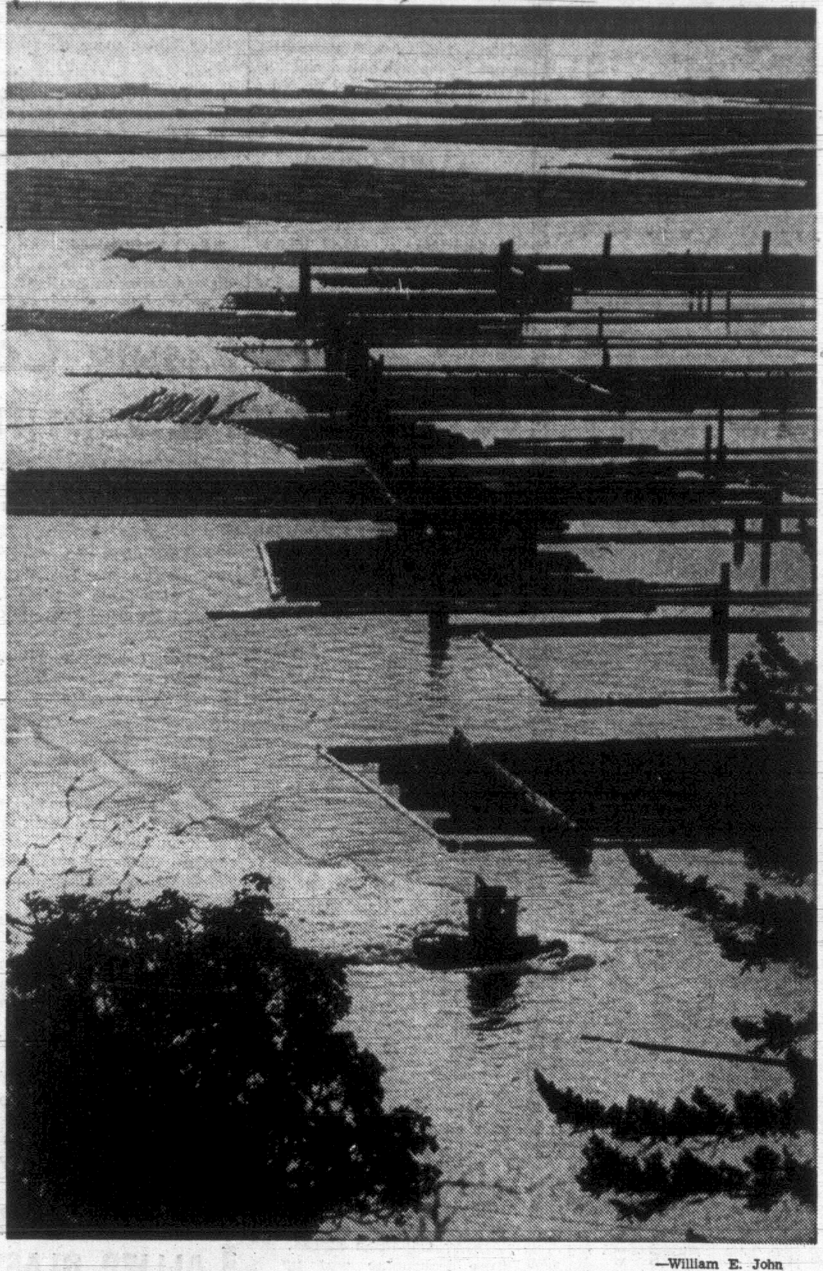
These last are not especially handsome trees. Their trunks are crooked, and their limbs tend to be brittle. But they are hardy where their roots are well-watered, and they make a background for fall long after the maples stand leafless.

Being deciduous, shed they must when the great gales come crashing in.

Even then, though, color remians. There are evergreens, and plump white snowberries hanging in clusters from their wiry twigs.

And always on this mild south coast, there is the copper-limbed arbutus, to glow against the dark of fir or balsam. The arbutus flowered well this year, and never have we seen such a richer berrying.

As for the leaf-cycle, winter in these parts is no more than a breathing space. In January, from a trail made sodden by the rains, I expect we'll spot the first green of a new season.



—William E. John

BUSY BOOM BOAT scuttles about its chores, cutting swath across tranquil scene of sea and rafts at booming grounds of Sooke Forest Products in Cooper Cove. Versatile little boats carry a one-man crew and a variety of colorful names—log broncs, boom cats, sea dozers, side winders—and are used to sort logs, make up booms and to straighten out "jackpots", jumbles of logs. Powered by inboard motors ranging from 80 to 150 horsepower, they can turn on a dime to ride herd on logs, filling the same role as the cattle-herding quarter horse of the early West.

Saanich Terminal For Hovercraft?

Pacific Hovercraft Ltd. is proceeding with plans to begin Vancouver Island service Dec. 21.

But whether the terminal will be in Greater Victoria remains in doubt after Oak Bay council's rejection Monday.

Separate statements issued by company officials at Vancouver left the future of the wave-skimming craft literally "up in the air."

Executive vice-president B. W. Heeney said council's decision "must quite logically force us to a serious re-appraisal of our plans for Southern Vancouver Island . . . our plans for Vancouver-Nanaimo service are continuing."

DOOR OPEN

But he left the door open for Oak Bay to change its stand, pointing out that council's decision apparently stemmed from objection by only 25 people.

"I personally find it difficult to accept or comprehend that some 25 people purportedly representing some 400 residents of Oak Bay is an accurate indication of the will of some 18,000 residents.

"It is obvious then that there are more than 17,000 people who have not yet made their wishes known to council."

He said it was a classic example of a well-organized minority exerting influence over apathy.

Mr. Heeney said a re-appraisal of plans might not be necessary if "a significant number of those taxpayers not represented at the meeting . . . make their wishes known to council."

Barry Jones, president of the firm, told newsmen that fears of excessive noise, expressed to council Monday, are completely unfounded.

"Properly operated, a hovercraft is not even as noisy as a boat with two big outboard engines."

GOING AHEAD

He said his company will go ahead with plans to open service next month, using another site as a Vancouver Island terminal. But wouldn't pin-point it.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said this morning the company has not approached the municipality on the possibility of a terminal site.

But if they did they would be "received warmly," he said, adding he would like to see a hovercraft service between the mainland and the lower Island.

While he did not want to sound negative, terminal possibilities are obviously "pretty limited" by open water conditions, private and public land holdings.

Meanwhile, Oak Bay alderman G. Scott Wallace, charged Tuesday that council was pressured by "lynch mob rule" into refusing the hovercraft berthing rights without a one-month trial.

He said Ald. Frances Elford had "played to the gallery" throughout the council meeting.

Two weeks previously council had indicated approval would be granted the hovercraft scheme under certain conditions.

"Ald. Elford could have objected at that time. She didn't. But Monday night she couldn't place her negative motion on the floor fast enough. We couldn't even have any general discussion.

"This wasn't fair to the applicants. It reminded me of the things you see on TV with a lynch mob where people are so worked up they don't know what they are doing . . . refusing to listen to reason in case somebody came up ith facts that disagree with their preconceived ideas."

Not Guilty Plea On Drug Counts

A second charge of possessing certain hallucinogenic drugs illegally imported into Canada was read against an American doctor in central criminal court today.

James Sutherland Watt, of California, elected trial by magistrate on the charge and also on a previous charge. He pleaded not guilty to both. He is represented by Lloyd McKenzie, Q.C.

Trial dates have been set for Nov. 26 and 27.

The new charge under the customs act reads that between Nov. 1, 1967, and Oct. 28, 1968, at or near Vancouver he did without lawful excuse have in his possession certain goods unlawfully imported into Canada, namely a quantity of LSD and a quantity of mescaline, the value for duty of said goods being $200 or over.

Dr. Watt is not in custody and is on a court remand.

Delays Inexcusable Hellyer Probe Told

City, B.C. Roasts Housing Red Tape

Present procedures for housing developments are slow, frustrating and create unnecessary costs, the province and the City of Victoria said today.

Administrative delays and the absence of information on how a municipal request is faring within the red tape of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation "is acutely embarrassing," says the city in a brief to Transport Minister Hellyer's housing inquiry which sat at the Empress Hotel this afternoon.

The brief cites the Rose-Blanshard urban renewal development and says it was seven months before the federal financing agency gave its formal approval in December, 1966.

Nearly two years later the land is available in downtown Victoria but contract documents and drawings are not available for the 180 vitally needed housing units.

The city has not been able to call tenders although Mr. Hellyer was expected to announce a go-ahead today.

While the delay "is inexcusable for a renewal scheme involving redevelopment by public agencies," the city says it makes it impossible to interest private money in such projects.

The prospect of drawing private capital into the field is negligible "unless an effective decision-making process is evolved by government."

B.C. Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, in the provincial brief, suggests a solution:

"Our primary recommendation . . . is that we simplify the procedures."

Four-Year Wait for Houses

He says it usually requires four years for a housing development idea to become houses. The recommended system could cut this time by half.

It goes like this: the municipality applies for a number of houses for a particular group of people in certain areas; the province gives approval in principle and makes a recommendation to the federal government.

Federal approval is forwarded to the B.C. Housing Management Commission—an existing body of federal, provincial and municipal representatives—which works out details and acquires the necessary land.

A final proposal, incorporating builders' recommendations, goes to CMHC for financial arrangements and a final recommendation is made to the three levels of government.

It still sounds complicated, but the brief says it is streamlined compared with the present system. It suggests over-all building costs might thus be reduced as much as 20 per cent.

It says the benefits of this system will be partially "thwarted" if technical decisions continue to be made in Ottawa.

In the past the "nit picking—not to mention the red tape" there has led to "the absurdities under which we have already suffered."

Unless the system is changed, says the province, "we really do not feel that we can justify to the public the protracted time and cost involved."

The city describes CMHC's present approach as "you-come-to-us-and-we'll-think-about-it-and-let-you-know."

The approach "simply will not work."

Particular mention is given housing needs of elderly persons. It notes that the city now has a greater percentage of citizens over 65 than any other Canadian city and says this number grows annually.

"With the increasing scarcity of all types of housing units, there is little incentive to the private investor to build accommodation suited to the needs of older persons at rentals that they can afford."

Closer Communication Asked

This housing burden is placed on voluntary non-profit groups and "few have the ability or the resources to raise their share of the capital and operating costs or to thread their way through the maze" of local, provincial and federal housing regulations.

The city calls for closer communication between technical advisers to the three levels of government.

In a section on urban renewal, the province says present methods often create as many problems as they solve and do not always "lead to the rejuvenation of an area."

It recommends "less dramatic approaches" such as street improvement and beautification, addition of parks and play areas.

"These can be supplemented by demolition orders in respect to structures beyond reasonable repair and by loans for the rehabilitation of buildings where such is possible."

"Not only would this approach be less disturbing to the social fabric of the community but would retain much of the housing which, at far less cost than the construction of new housing, could be brought up to acceptable standards."

MINISTER TAKES FIRST-HAND LOOK AT CITY PROJECTS

By JOHN SLINGER

Rose-Blanshard was lifeless and silent as the face of the moon when Transport Minister Hellyer got off his tour bus today to look at urban renewal in Victoria.

He walked into the windowless bungalow recently expropriated from an elderly Chinese couple and saw the shattered remains of a half-destroyed chimney strewn across the living-room floor.

Mr. Hellyer doesn't know the Chinese couple. He didn't hear them talk a month ago about the home they had been forced to leave after 20 years.

He didn't hear the husband say moving "breaks my heart."

But it is for them and for the thousands of other Canadians unable to afford a home in the first place that the 45-year-old minister has led his housing task force on a two-month journey across Canada to Victoria.

In the bungalow, Ald. Ian Stewart described the city's plan to build 180 housing units in the 30-acre area around the new Blanshard elementary school.

The Victoria hearing is the first time all seven members of the federal inquiry have been together to listen to local presentations.

Members include a builder, an economist, a planner, a banker, an architect and an urban development specialist.

From Rose-Blanshard they travelled to Yates Street to see what the merchants association has done in the 700 Block.

And they made stops in Bastion Square, at the centre of the planned Inner Harbor renewal scheme and at Centennial Square.

'REINFORCED'

With the task force were Mayor Hugh Stephen, city manager Dennis Young, local planners, architects and members of city countil.

Earlier Mr. Hellyer met for an hour with Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell. Mr. Campbell said he "reinforced" some of the recommendations included in the B.C. brief to the inquiry.

A housing contractor himself before entering politics, Mr. Hellyer said a report on the task-force's findings would be prepared by the end of the year. After that it would be up to governments, the building industry, banks and unions to put the recommendations into effect.

Leslie's Got a Secret: It's Mind Over Muscles

By PETE LOUDON

If somebody hands you a trowel and tells you to rebuild the pyramids in Victoria, the helper to get is a girl named Leslie.

If you had to mend a spider web, Leslie would be right there.

•

Any job that calls for determination, solution for one problem at a time, for putting one foot ahead of another — get Leslie.

Leslie is like the ant that couldn't possibly budge the rubber tree plant. You believe that until you see the rubber tree disappearing in the distance.

Leslie is 15, a pleasing brunette in mesh stockings and a mod-leather dress. She remains in your mind once you've met her because she is also physically handicapped by cerebral palsy.

•

She's one of the 107 youngsters at the Handicapped Children's Clinic at 1937 Argyle Street. But it's a tossup whether she's there to help or be helped.

She's been taking classes and treatment since she was an infant lacking any muscle control. She had to learn to crawl, walk, talk and feed herself with limbs which wouldn't behave. She still can't make her rebellious muscles co-ordinate sufficiently to enable her to write.

She conquered that problem with a typewriter. And although it takes her 45 minutes to fill a page of paper, she qualifies as a brilliant academic course pupil. She belongs to horticultural and nature study groups — even struggles along on hikes with them. She plans an entry in the next science fair.

•

Two years ago she decided to build a miniature garden, so tiny that she had to make the fence with toothpicks — over and over again. She entered it in a contest and won a silver bowl.

She cooks, she trains dogs, she cares for tropical fish. She goes shopping and she swims. In the water, aided by natural bouyancy and the muscle-relaxing effect of submersion, she recaptures some of the ease of movement she lacks on land.

Yet before she could swim she shared the terror of deep water that stops many other people from ever learning.

People in the process of fighting cerebral palsy often draw stares. This doesn't bother Leslie. She's got a secret strength more powerful than muscles.

She wishes her physical shackles would let her move faster. But if the little kids need their coats and if it takes Leslie 10 trips to help them, she makes the 10 trips.

•

And the teacher who could do it all in two trips often finds Leslie on the job ahead of her.

If the toddlers need feeding, Leslie is in the front line of the volunteer helpers.

"Her future won't ever be dull," say her teachers, nor will her physical problems ever conquer her natural friendliness or good cheer.

Leslie is one of the finest examples of how the Handicapped Children's Clinic can teach a child to live a whole life despite an incurable ailment.

•

They told her story to remind Victorians of the importance of wholehearted support to United Appeal which donates about a third of the clinic's $60,000 annual operating budget.

If everyone gave as much to others as Leslie does, they say, the target would be oversubscribed long ago.

CONSTANT BATTLE to make vocal chords and limbs obey can leave a cerebral palsy victim locked in a cage without a key. But Leslie, right, somehow projects herself through the bars. Helen Keller and John Milton did this. Leslie may never achieve their triumphs but she has their spirit. Here she assists physiotherapist Mrs. Norma Wilson with clinic sweetheart, Lianne, three-and-a-half. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

Ask The Times

Q. Would you please tell me the highest speed limit on a highway in B.C.? J.F.D.

A. Two highways in the province have top speed limits of 70 mph in certain parts. Highway 401 has a top speed of 70 mph between Vancouver and Chilliwack. Parts of the Deas Tunnel Throughway from Vancouver to the U.S. border also have 70 mph speed limits. On all other highways in B.C., however, maximum speed is 60 mph.

Q. Could you tell me me where to write film star Oskar Werner, whose movie "Interlude" was recently shown in Victoria? S.M.B.

A. Care of Columbia Picture Corporation, 1438 Gower St., Los Angeles, Calif.

In the industrials, PWA was up $1 at $13.25 and Great National Lands was .25 better at $2.70.

Stampede was up .30 to $7.90 in the oils and Bata put on .10 to $4.

Dynasty led the mines with an 87-cent jump to $13.25 and Arctic regained .26 to $1.9 on 67,300 shares. Copper Ridge rose .15 to $2.20 Northlode was up the same amount to $4.10 and Venus improved .27 to $2.87.

Rising Costs Force Newsprint Price Hike

NEW YORK (AP) — Producers say advancing production costs have forced them to raise the price of newsprint.

Most suppliers of newsprint to newspapers in the U.S. West recently announced a price boost to $142 a ton from $137, effective Jan. 1.

Earlier, eastern suppliers increased their price to $147 a ton from $142, also effective Jan. 1.

A spokesman for Crown Zellerbach Corp. of San Francisco, a major producer, listed these factors increasing prices:

Rising costs of wood, transporation, labor and other manufacturing operations; higher capital costs involved in additional newsprint capacity; higher costs in delivery terms, and considerable improvement in the quality of newsprint.

"Production is booming," says Richard Crane of Garden State Paper Co. of Claremont, Calif. "In fact, that's what puzzles a lot of the publishers. They can't understand why prices go up when there is a flood of newsprint coming out of Canada and elsewhere. But what they don't see is the increase in labor and transportation costs that are forcing our prices to rise."

Most producers decline to speculate on the price outlook beyond the Jan. 1 increase.

Among companies going from $136 a ton to $142 are Crown Zellerbach, Southwest Forest Products Co., Flagstaff, Ariz.; Powell River-Albany Sales Co., Vancouver; Macmillan, Bloedel Ltd., Vancouver, and British Columbia Forest Products Co., Vancouver.

Eastern suppliers raising to $147 from $142 include Kimberly-Clark Corp., Neenah, Wis.; Bowaters, Inc., Calhoun, Tenn., Newfoundland; International Paper Co., New York; Great Northern Paper Co., New York, Price Co., Quebec; Domtar Ltd., Montreal; Consolidated Bathurst Ltd., Montreal; Southland Paper Mills, Inc., Lufkin, Tex.; Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd., Toronto, and Great Lakes Paper Co. Ltd., Fort William, Ont.

Ottawa Fears U.S. Isolation

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prospect of increased protectionism in the United States looms large in Canadian government circles following the outcome of the American presidential election.

There has been mounting concern with the Canadian government as the election campaign raged across the border and both the Republican and Democratic parties went on record as promising help for various industries in the U.S.

When Hubert Humphrey was first nominated there was a comfortable feeling here that he would follow the relaxed trade policies of President L. B. Johnson. It was recognized that Republican Richard Nixon would strenghten the hand of the protectionists if he was elected. But as the campaign progressed both Nixon and Humphrey were adopting hard protectionist lines.

* * *

Prime Minister Trudeau has never met Mr. Nixon or Mr. Humphrey. Following long standing tradition the Canadian prime minister does not comment on the outcome of American elections. Nixon and Humphrey have both promised help for the American textile industry against rising imports of woolens and synthetic fibres. President Johnson refused to take such action.

Steelmakers in the U.S. have been making demands on the administration at Washington for increased protection. They want action against subsidies and other forms of unfair competition by European and Japanese companies.

The American tariff commission has stated making "tough" rulings involving "dumping." There will be more to come under a new Nixon administration.

* * *

There has been talk during the election campaign that Mr. Nixon might propose a value-added tax. This is a type of national sales tax already used for protection by West Germany, France and other European countries.

The more conservative administration will be probably more sympathetic to pleas from the U.S. shoe, glass, chemical steel and other industries.

In Europe there has been grave concern over the election of a Republican president. A president of one of the world's largest central banks was quoted as stating: "I fear a revival of protectionism and a return to import controls."

A Scandinavian banker said: "U.S. may turn to protectionism if it runs into difficulties with its balance of payments next year."

* * *

Trade authorities in Ottawa echo those sentiments. There is fear that the U.S. may turn inward and become more isolationist. Just at this stage in the slow progress towards freer trade it would be "a tragedy" if the American government lurched to the right towards excessive protectionism, said one Canadian government official.

On spending, Mr. Nixon has pledged curbs on federal spending. He wants to get the federal government out of areas where private enterprise and the people can do the job — only then can the government be reduced to a size that the American people can afford, he has said. He contends that the tax level in the U.S. rather than going up should be reduced.

GM Names New Canadian Head

OSHAWA (UPI) — General Motors of Canada announced Monday the election of Roland S. Withers as president and general manager of the company. Withers, for the last eight years head of sales for GM's Buick division in the U.S., succeeded Edwin H. Walker, who held the position for over 10 years.

The announcement of Withers' election by GM of Canada's board of directors was made by R. Samuel McLaughlin, chairman of the board.

Van Luven Brings VSE to the People

With an all-time trading record already set this year, the Vancouver Stock Exchange wlil go on to end the year 70 per cent ahead of the 1967 volume and dollar value of around $600 million.

The estimates were made by Vancouver Stock Exchange president John Van Luven in a visit to Victoria Tuesday for the opening of the exchange's first lecture series in the capital.

He noted that his estimate of 500 million trades had first been made early in 1968, after the exchange had rung up its trading volume record of 351.8 million shares having a record value of $337.4 million last year.

"We are already over 400 million shares this year," he said.

Interest in the stock market is at a peak comparable with the mild hysteria accompanying the Pyramid and Pine Point developments that set off a B.C. mining boom in autumn 1965.

●

It was due to that period, with its million-shares-a-day trading, that VSE began its adult education series, How to Understand the Stock Market.

"People were calling the stock exchange, even though we don't deal with the public," Mr. Van Luven told a crowded Oak Bay Junior High School auditorium.

"They might say, 'I've got $1,000. Buy me something.' Well, what would you like? 'Oh, it doesn't matter — anything that's going up.'

"Something was wrong. We decided to do something about it." And the lecture series was born at Point Grey High School in Vancouver, where up to 700 adult students have since jammed the hall.

●

In Victoria the exchange had been led to expect token interest of between 200 and 250 persons signed up for the five-session series. They were staggered by the 425 who showed up.

Public participation in the stock market is vital to a healthy economy, the president said. If citizens are not financially involved in domestic companies, then "foreign capital will come in which could lead to foreign ownership.

"Our intention is to educate you and get you interested in industries of your own country and teach you what to buy as investments or as speculation."

●

A wide range of ages, a surprising number of younger people, and many women were represented in the audience.

They heard assistant to the president S. W. Thompson, counsel and listings manager Angus Ree, examiner Frank W. Tippett and administrative assistant C. M. Petch speak on various subjects.

These included corporate structure, role of a prospectus, means of financing, types of equity investment and priority of stocks, bonds and debentures.

Other subjects will include mutual funds, reading a balance sheet, speculative stocks, short selling, listed and unlisted stocks, promotion and trading.

●

The exchange panel invited written questions from the floor, for example: How will the U.S. election affect stock markets generally? Why does a company issue preferred and ordinary shares? Does the government inspect prospectuses? What is the difference between a holding company and a private company? What is the difference between a security and a stock?

One student asked whether the stock exchange had control over the promotion of penny stocks, then went on to describe the practice as a wicked scheme to make quick money at the expense of the unwary.

Mr. Van Luven hoped that by the end of the series there would be no unwary ones.

Qantas-CP Air Go Weekly

OTTAWA (CP) — Australia's Qantas Airways Ltd., has been given approval for weekly flights between Sydney and Vancouver.

The air transport committee of the Canadian Transport Commission announced approval, arranged under a deal which also permits Canadian Pacific Airlines to make a round trip each week between the two cities.

Previously the two lines made trips every two weeks.

Finance In Brief

Markets Steady-On

To Victoria investment dealers, Canadian and U.S. stock market reaction to a Republican win across the border was surprisingly mild. It indicated to what extent the markets had discounted a Democratic presidential defeat.

The New York market was better and the Toronto and Montreal markets also showed moderate gains.

In the Canadian area where fears of greater protectionism by U.S. authorities would affect major export markets, steels, oils and the Canada-U.S. Auto Pact were areas of concern.

But in mid-morning crude oil pipelines and steels remained firm. Senior oils posted some gains.

Broker comment indicated that the early reaction was perhaps of short duration and that more reliable trends could be expected later.

One dealer said protectionism is "a definite possibility if the past holds true."

Another said the Nixon victory looks good for the U.S. market and business community, but it is too early to tell how he will work with the Congress with its weight of Democrats.

Merger Planned

NEW YORK (Reuters) — Marathon Oil and Cities Service Co. have announced they plan to merge.

They have combined assets of nearly $3,000,000,000 and sales of more than $2,000,000,000.

THE ACCOUNTANT'S ADVICE

Gift Tax Simpler, Harder on Rich

By EDGAR A. DOWNEY, CA

(This is a service provided by The Times and the Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia.)

The gift tax changes proposed by the 1968 Federal Budget have caused some confusion in the minds of many people.

The rather complex rules under which gifts up to Oct. 22, 1968, were taxed have been replaced by a more simple exemption basis and higher gift tax rates.

For gifts on and after Oct. 23, 1968, the proposed new rules are easier to understand.

All gifts from a husband to his wife (or vice versa), and all gifts of up to $2,000 in a year to any other person, will be exempt from gift tax.

This will completely eliminate the whole problem of gift tax for most people. Even the man who wants to make a gift of $4,000 (the former basic exemption) to his son, or daughter, can still do so without incurring tax. He makes the gift by firstly giving $2,000 to his wife, and then both the wife and the husband each give $2,000 to the son. Thus, the son receives the whole $4,000 and the man gives the whole $4,000 but there is no gift tax because no one gift exceeded $2,000.

NO LIMIT

For the wealthy man and wife who want to make a large number of such gifts to any persons there is no limit to the amount they can give providing that no one individual receives more than $2,000 from the man or wife.

However, for the very wealthy man, or a man who has no wife, the gift tax becomes increasingly excessive because the rates are progressively higher upon the cumulative total of all gifts made since Oct. 22, 1968.

If a man makes annual gifts of $20,000 a year for 10 years for a total of $200,000 the total tax will be $71,500. On the $20,000 in the first year the tax will be only $2,550 but on the $20,000 in the 10th year the tax will be $12,000; that is, a 60 per cent tax rate. And if he makes a further gift of $20,000 in the next year to make the total of his gifts $220,000 to that time, that last $20,000 will be subject to 75 per cent rate of gift tax and cost him a further $15,000.

The over-all effect of this is to make it uneconomic for a wealthy man to distribute his estate to his children during his lifetime.

RELIEF TO SOME

Although the Budget proposals were said to have been heavily weighted against the small income earner in the extra 2 per cent special tax on income, the gift tax changes have relieved the problems of people with modest means and struck very hard against the very wealthy.

The further effect of sharply increased federal estate tax rates has also imposed even heavier burdens upon the estate of the wealthy man at the time of his death. The whole concept of existing estate plans will require careful review because some such programs may cause the estates to be charged with enormous amounts of gift tax and estate tax.

It is not yet practical to say how the new estate tax rules and rates will be integrated with the provincial successsion duties.

In his budget speech, Mr. Benson said that where an estate is subject to provincial duties the abatement of 75 per cent of the federal estate tax will be continued. But the Budget resolutions do not show how this is to be accomplished. When the actual working of the legislation is drafted the situation may be clarified. In the meantime it may be questionable whether a very wealthy man can afford to die.

BIG GUNS of the Canadian Armed Forces section of the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal were presented with achievement awards by Times publisher W. A. Irwin at an Appeal luncheon Monday. The awards were for outstanding contributions made to the drive by top military units. Accepting the awards were representatives Leading Seaman Patrick Walker, HMCS Yukon (left); Lt. Eric Crump, Canadian Forces Hospital Esquimalt; Lt.-Col. Leslie Price, CO Venture Division Fleet School; Commissioned Officer John Holden, HMCS MacKenzie, and Lt. Kenneth Eliason, UV-33 Pat Bay.

Noblemen Split Over Reforms

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Two peers whose fortunes and family are linked with Canada reflect the heated conflict that accompanies the government's plan to strip many of these noblemen of their ancient powers in a sweeping reform of the House of Lords.

"I think it is a good thing," said Lord Thomson of Fleet, Canadian-born publisher and hereditary peer whose title on death will go to his son, Kenneth, chairman of the Times and Sunday Times.

"I don't think the House of Lords should have the right to frustrate the House of Commons.

"It isn't democratic."

"It will be a sad day when hereditary peers are forced from the House," said Donald Howard, fourth Baron of Strathcona and Mount Royal whose ancestors built their fortunes through the CPR and Hudson's Bay Co.

"The hereditary principle is a blunt weapon, but it has thrust into the chamber successful industrial leaders who have provided the parliamentary system with much-needed advice and guidance."

Under reform measures outlined in a white paper last Friday and likely to be translated into a government bill in a few months, the number of voting peers will be reduced to about 230 from the present 1,062.

Of those 1,062, only about 675 ever enter the red-robed chamber and only about 300 are considered frequent visitors, attending more than one-third of sittings. For example, while Lord Thomson, 74, has spoken in the House, he has never voted. Lord Strathcona, 47, has neither voted nor entered the debates.

Under contemplated changes, those empowered to vote will be limited to "life" peers who must retire at the age of 72. They can be picked from any group including the hereditary peers but they must attend at least one-third of the sittings for which they will draw a fixed minimum salary, perhaps about $5,000 a session.

This would automatically exclude such busy persons as Lord Thomson. And the fear among some critics is the chamber will become "an old man's club" sought by those no longer pursuing a full life.

At present, a hereditary peer can enter the house at the age of 21, which Lord Strathcona thinks is a good thing, since it allows members to reflect the current generation.

Eventually, of the proposed 230 voting members, 105 would be government supporters; 80 would support the main opposition; 15 would support other opposition groups and 30 will be independent or so-called cross-bench peers.

22ND HEART TRANSPLANT AT HOUSTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Houston's 22nd human heart transplant recipient, a New York state assemblyman, was listed in satisfactory condition at St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital today.

Sidney Lebowitz, 50, of New York City, received the heart of a 15-year-old traffic crash victim Tuesday.

The donor was identified by the Houston Chronicle as Jimmy Rickey Mulkey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mulkey of Houston.

Twelve of Houston's heart recipients survive.

Illogically Logical Pact Limits on ABM Defences

LONDON (AP) — The new edition of the Western world's best known survey of military aircraft says the Soviet Union and the United States appear to have an unwritten agreement to limit their anti-ballistic missile defence.

Citing U.S. proposals for negotiations to frestall construction of costly American and Soviet ABM systems, Editor John W. R. Taylor wrote in the 1968-69 edition of Jane's All the World's Aircraft:

"It is often claimed that the Soviet Union and U.S.A. have an unwritten, unadmitted, perhaps reluctant, but illogically logical agreement to limit their ABM defences. This is supported by what we know of the present deployment of Russian ABMs. The 'Tallinn' defence system being set up across the northwest approaches to the Soviet Union is intended to deal with aircraft rather than missiles.

"It is interesting, too, to note that Russia's unique fractional orbital ballistic 'space bomb', described for the first time in this edition, is envisaged primarily as a weapon to neutralize the U.S. Air Force's manned bomber bases."

$100 grows to $250 with Canada Savings Bonds

$250 for each $100. That's what you can get with this year's Canada Savings Bonds. Here's how.

The new Bonds have fourteen regular annual interest coupons which can be cashed each year as they come due. The first pays 5.75%; the second, 6.50%; the next three, 6.75% each, and the last nine a big 7.00% each. Total regular annual interest amounts to $95.50 on each $100 Bond.

If you choose you may hold all these regular annual interest coupons uncashed until your Bond matures. If you do, you will then get interest on your interest totalling an additional $54.50 on each $100 Bond.

At maturity, therefore, you can get back total interest of $150 plus your original $100 investment. This way each $100 Canada Savings Bond becomes worth $250. Other denominations can grow at the same exciting rate.

Adults, children, businesses and institutions—all may buy Canada Savings Bonds. They are available in convenient amounts of $50 up to $50,000 for cash or on instalments, wherever you work, bank or invest. And, as always, Canada Savings Bonds are cashable any time at full face value plus earned interest.

Few investments are so profitable. None builds more surely for the future. Buy Canada Savings Bonds and make your savings really grow.

Charge Sir Knight!

By BART BARNES
The Washington Post

PORT REPUBLIC, Md.—Alas for the days when jousting was in flower and knights ate dragons for breakfast. Since the days of Sir Lancelot, jousting—like gladiating, dueling and other quaint ways of settling arguments—has become all but extinct.

But wait! Suddenly, out of the past comes the sound of thundering hoofbeats and the cry of "Charge, Sir Knight!"

The Lone Ranger? Danny Kaye? Wrong. It is the men and women of the Maryland Jousting Association.

Perhaps appropriately, the medieval sport is the official sport of the State of Maryland by decree of the 1962 legislature.

Every summer, there are people in Maryland who give up tennis, golf, sailing, going to the beach or just relaxing in their back yards to drive all over the state and joust.

★ ★ ★

There were 50 jousting tournaments in Maryland this summer and—for the first time—there was a national jousting tournament on the Eleipse in Washington. Since there isn't much jousting anywhere else these days, Maryland won everything.

But if jousting is making a comeback in the free state, the sport is still a long way from King Arthur.

For one thing, it is no longer a body contact sport. The idea is to get on a horse and try to spear three metal rings over an 80-yard course while riding as fast as you can.

A good jouster can do it in the time it takes to say "the pellet with the poison's in the chalice from the palace."

★ ★ ★

One of the older jousting tournaments is held here at Port Republic every summer and this year's tournament was the 101st.

Port Republic is in Calvert County, which is named after Cecil Calvert, who also happened to be the first Lord Baltimore. He was the man who brought jousting to Maryland.

As jousts go, the Calvert County joust is probably as good as any of them.

In addition to everything else, there was a three-piece and drums—on the other side of the field and for some reason that nobody ever explained they played a few bars of "Bill Bailey, Won't You Please Come Home?" when a knight speared all three rings.

★ ★ ★

There were a few speeches, one by state legislator Henry J. Fowler, who said, "We are very proud to help keep this medieval sport alive."

Fowler looks after jousting interests whenever his duties as chairman of the entertainment committee permit. A few years ago there was an attempt by some Baltimore County delegates to have lacrosse declared the official Maryland sport but Fowler rallied his knights and the move was checkmated.

Missing second ring is Henry Fowler.

Oak Bay Retains Title In Annual Swim Meet

Oak Bay amassed 182 points to capture its 19th straight inter-high school swimming gala crown Tuesday night at the new Colwood Centennial pool.

Esquimalt came second, finishing 46 points behind the Bays in competition for the team trophy, donated this year by the Colwood merchants.

Belmont became the first winner of the novice event trophy, with 88 of its 94 points in the novice events for the the third team spot.

The meet, held for the first time outside of Crystal Garden, was the largest in history, said organizer Randy Smith of Belmont. The entry list took in approximately 170 swimmers.

TWO VICTORIES

Laurie Cosby of Mount View was the only competitor to win two events, placing first in the 100-metre backstroke with a 1:22.9 clocking and 100-metre freestyle in 1:13.0 during the girls' races.

Mary-Pat Pumfrey of Oak Bay captured the other individual win in girls' events with a 100-metre breaststroke in 1:24.1.

Oak Bay's Ingrid Strauss (breaststroke) and Lee Jones (freestyle) took girls' novice events along with Victoria's Heather Robertson (backstroke).

In the individual boys' events, Oak Bay captured two victories with Ross Bruce winning the 100-metre butterfly in 1:06.9 and Ken Munn the 100-metre backstroke in 1:10.5.

Jim Gollmer of Victoria took the freestyle in 1:01.3 and Vito Dunford of Esquimalt won the breaststroke in 1:13.5 during the other events.

Neil Bodnaruk (backstroke) and Barry Alexander (freestyle) paced the Belmont victory in the novice events. Bob Peerless of Esquimalt (butterfly) and Ryan Langkamer of Mount View (breaststroke) were the other individual victors.

Oak Bay swept all relays except the boys' novice event in which Esquimalt netted first in the 200-metre medley and Belmont gained the front during the 200-metre freestyle race.

Because the Colwood pool is 25-metres long while the Crystal is 50-yards, all events will stand as records.

Farmers Tripped; Three Share Lead

Victoria Senior Men's Basketball League play Tuesday night produced a traffic jam, with three of the four teams in a tie for first place.

Red Lion Inn upset formerly-leading Farmer Construction 73-61 despite the 25-point performance of Farmers' Pete Simmonds.

In the second game of the night at Mt. Douglas High School, Labatts grabbed a share of top spot with a 60-51 victory over Colony Inn.

Red Lions' win was paced by Jack Newnham's 15-point effort and 14-point contributions by Jack Lusk and Morris Douglas. Lions led at the half 32-26. Dennis Horn was the only other Farmer to score in the two-figure bracket, adding 11 points to Simmonds' total.

Labatts win came despite having only eight men to Colony's 12.

Ken Gregory paced the attack with 15 points while Gordie Jones contributed 11 and Ed Kowalyk 10.

Vikettes Defeat United in Opener

University of Victoria Vikettes opened the new Victoria Junior Women's Basketball League season at S. J. Willis Junior High School Tuesday by trimming First United 42-18.

Veteran Curlers Boost Club Ranks

Victoria Seniors' Curling Club is operating this season with 148 members, largest number in the club's history.

The membership increase has required the scheduling of three draws each Tuesday and Friday at Victoria Curling Club. President P. McIntyre expects that more rinks of 60-and-over curlers will soon be added to the 38 already competing in club draws.

First Medals Decided

TEL AVIV (CP) West Germany and Israel carried off the first gold medals in the third international Wheelchair Olympics which opened here Tuesday.

Some 750 paraplegic athletes, including 23 from Canada, are entered for the two weeks of competition. Canada did not take part in the two opening events, fencing and table tennis.

Athletes from 28 countries are entered. Competition is divided into five classes, A to E, graded on degree of competitive ability. Class E is for mobile cases out of wheelchairs, with braces, while Class A is for those with the least mobility.

Imlach Last to Operate As Manager and Coach

John Muckler Takes Over As Pilot of North Stars

By The Canadian Press

Just last week, John Muckler was concerned with how his Memphis South Stars would perform in the Central Hockey League. Now he has more important problems.

Muckler, 34, makes his debut as a coach in the National Hockey League tonight when his Minnesota North Stars play host to Toronto Maple Leafs.

Wren Blair, then manager-coach of the North Stars, announced last Wednesday that Muckler had been appointed coach. The move allowed Blair to concentrate on his duties as general manager.

In other NHL activity tonight, Philadelphia Flyers meet the Bruins at Boston, New York Rangers play the Kings at Los Angeles, Detroit Red Wings visit Chicago Black Hawks and St. Louis Blues are at Pittsburgh Penguins.

Thursday, Pittsburgh plays the Canadiens at Montreal, Minnesota is at Detroit and St. Louis visits Philadelphia.

Punch Imlach of Toronto, Muckler's opponent in strategy tonight, now is the only man in the NHL serving in the dual capacity of general manager and coach.

IT'S TOO DEMANDING

"Obviously the dual job of general manager and coach is far too demanding in today's market and expanded league," Blair said last week.

Sid Abel of Detroit and Emile Francis of New York obviously agree. Abel gave up the coaching job to Bill Gadsby during the off-season and Francis named Bernie Geoffrion Ranger coach. Both Abel and Francis, of course, stayed on as general managers.

Muckler, in the player personnel department of the Rangers before taking the Memphis job, is the youngest coach in the NHL.

TIED FOR FOURTH

The North Stars, with three wins and a tie in 10 starts, are tied for fourth in the Western Division with Los Angeles Kings. But they are only two points back of first-place St. Louis Blues.

With the first-place Canadiens idle, Boston and New York have an opportunity to move into top spot in the Eastern Division tonight. Both trail Montreal by only one point.

Meanwhile, the word around the league is that manager-coach Punch Imlach is less than happy with his Toronto Maple Leafs. He got some bad defensive lapses from veterans in Saturday's loss to Philadelphia and intimated Tuesday that he is scouting around for some fresh blood.

SCOUTS McKENNY

He was in Rochester scouting defenceman Jim McKenny and also hinted that he is considering recruiting two Vancouver players—Ted Taylor and Brian Hextall.

Another fifth-place club, Los Angeles Kings, also is having its problems.

With one player ill and another injured, coach Red Kelly announced he is switching centre Gordon Labossiere to right wing for tonight's game.

Lowell MacDonald, in bed with a virus, and Real Lemieux, recovering from a sprained ankle, are the usual right wingers for the Western Division club.

Dinsdale May Join O'Keefes

Peter Dinsdale, star player with professional Vancouver Royals of the now defunct North American Soccer League, has expressed an interest in playing with Victoria O'Keefes of the Pacific Coast League.

Both he and his wife enjoyed Victoria when Royals trained here last year and all O'Keefes have to do to gain his services is provide a good job.

A rangy defensive back, Dinsdale joined Royals from Huddersfield Town of the English Football Association and carries excellent coaching qualifications.

★ ★ ★

With several years of playing ahead, Dinsdale was chosen by the Canadian association at 26 to coach the national World Cup team.

"He would be a tremendous asset to our club," said manager Jack Metcalfe. "He's particularly interested in our policy of developing young players and should be a great help in that area."

Victoria, holding down third spot at present, plays second-running UBC Thunderbirds in Vancouver Monday and are at home to league-leading Firefighters the following Saturday.

BUTLER QUITS BOMBER POST

WINNIPEG CP — Assistant coach Joe Faragalli will be back with Winnipeg Blue Bombers next year but Bill Butler, the other assistant, has resigned

The announcement was made by Earl Lunsford, the Western Football Conference club's general manager, following a meeting of the assistant coaches and Joe Zaleski, head coach who earlier signed a new two-year contract.

Butler, 31, was in his second season with the club.

Detroit Pitching Ace Receives MVP Award

NEW YORK (AP) — Detroit's Denny McLain, 31-game winner who last week won the Cy Young award as the American League's best pitcher, Tuesday was unanimously named the league's Most Valuable Player.

McLain, who led the Tigers to their first pennant in 23 years, is the first American League pitcher to win both awards. Don Newcombe of Brooklyn Dodgers and Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles Dodgers won both awards in the National League in one year, Newcombe in 1956 and Koufax in 1963.

FIRST PITCHER

The 24-year-old right-hander also is the first AL pitcher to win the MVP award by a unanimous vote, the first AL pitcher to win it at all since Philadelphia's Bobby Shantz in 1952 and the first Tiger to receive the award since Hal Newhouser, also a pitcher, in 1944 and 1945.

McLain, who also was named the Cy Young winner unanimously, was placed first on every ballot by the 20 members of the voting committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Bill Freehan, McLain's battery mate, was runner-up in the voting, the only other player who was named on all 20 ballots cast by two writers in each league city.

The catcher received 161 points to the winner's 280 and was followed by Ken Harrelson, Boston, 103 and Willie Horton, Detroit, 102.

In all, 27 players received votes from first through 10th with 14 points awarded for first, nine for second and so forth, down to one for 10th.

Interceptions Helped Esks Edge Stamps

EDMONTON (CP) — If defensive halfback Ian MacLeod and safety Robbie Campbell, of Edmonton Eskimos, were asked to pick their favorite team in the Western Football Conference, it would likely be Calgary Stampeders.

In turn the Stampeders, who entertain the Eskimos in Sunday's sudden-death semi-final, would undoubtedly put MacLeod and Campbell at the top of their nemesis list.

MacLeod, 23, from Edmonton Huskies of the Alberta Junior League, had excellent success against the Stampeders this season. The six-foot, 185-pounder, in his third year with the Eskimos, intercepted four passes for 76 yards and recorded a touchdown against Peter Liske and company.

WON TWO OF THREE

The Eskimos took two of three games from the Stampeders, winning 10-8 and 14-13, and losing 12-7. In the first win, MacLeod scored the go-ahead points on a 19-yard touchdown with an interception midway in the third quarter. In the same game, he picked off a pass on the Edmonton five to spoil a Calgary drive late in the final quarter.

In Edmonton's one-point victory Sept. 20, MacLeod intercepted a Liske pass on the Eskimos' 14-yard line with the Stampeders threatening again.

MacLeod scored a touchdown and made four interceptions for 127 yards in 1967.

HAS GOOD FUTURE

"Ian has had a tremendous year," coach Neill Armstrong said in an interview. "He has a good future in the game because he's a fine tackler, plays positional football and is an intelligent player."

Armstrong said MacLeod always plays well against Calgary because the Stampeders are one of the better teams in the West "and Ian comes up with that extra effort in key games."

Campbell, a graduate of University of Western Ontario and a strong back up for veteran John Wydraeny, intercepted three passes against Calgary this year, including one on the Edmonton 23 in the 10-8 triumph.

The Eskimos, outclassed completely in the statistical department this season with the Stampeders, intercepted nine passes in the three games compared with two by Calgary.

Liske, who recorded 31 touchdown passes for the high-scoring Stampeders, managed two against the Eskimos, both to Bob McCarthy in the 14-13 setback at Edmonton.

The game will be televised nationally by the CTV network.

Nationals Post Win At Stockholm

STOCKHOLM (CP-Reuters) — Canada's national team defeated Stockholm's national B team, 5-3, Tuesday night in an exhibition hockey game. It was Canada's third win in five exhibitions.

Centre Morris Mott, 22, of Creelman, Sask., led the Canadian attack with two goals. Fran Huck of Regina, Gerry Pinder of Saskatoon, and Ted Hargreaves of Foam Lake, Sask., scored the others.

Earlier in Canada's European exhibition hockey tour, the nationals lost, 3-2, and won, 6-2, against the Finnish nationals in Tampere and Helsinki. Canada lost to Sweden, 5-1, Saturday but won, 3-2, Sunday.

The Canadians are scheduled to continue their exhibition series against Norway on Friday. They return to Canada on Nov. 12.

Nevele Pride Easy Winner

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Nevele Pride won by a landslide at Roosevelt Raceway Tuesday.

The United States champion three-year-old trotter, driven as usual by Stanley Dancer, won the $32,106 United Harness Writers trot which featured a non-betting card of six races.

It was the 21st victory in 24 starts this year for the colt who has swept the trotting triple classic for co-owners Nevele Acres and Louis Resnick of Ellenville, N.Y.

Marg Robertson Elected Captain At Glen Meadows

Marg Robertson has been elected women's captain at Glen Meadows Golf and Country Club.

Also elected during the annual meeting of the women's division were Emma Silverberg, vice-captian, and Bea Davies, secretary-treasurer. Named to head committees were Edna Hay, Joanne Morrison and Molly Blackburn.

Playing on their home course at Glen Meadows, Grace Anderson and Andy Drew retained the district senior buttons by defeating the Ardmore pair of Dorie Camsusa and Ros Terry on the 16th green.

Higuchi, Shane Take Mat Bouts

Dean Higuchi and Bobby Shane won their bouts on a double main event professional wrestling card by defeating John Tolos and Tom Andrews, respectively, Tuesday night at Memorial Arena.

Froelich and Kostas downed Savage and Heidemann in a four-man tag team match. Jack Bence fought War Eagle to a draw in another bout.

PREPARATION FOR PLAYOFFS

There is feverish activity among Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League ranks this week as four teams prepare for Sunday's semi-final playoff battles. Working to get their offensive patterns clicking are quarterback John Smith (10) and halfbacks Mike Herold (27) and Ron Bickford (16) of Chew Excavating Hornets. Unbeaten Saanich team will face Cowichan Timbermen in sudden-death semi Sunday at Glanford Park. In other semi-final, Oak Bay Farmers clash with James Bay Mustangs at Macdonald Park. Game times are at 2 p.m.

Even Coaches Nervous Before Chinook Opener

BILL CARISON
. . . tall Chinook

Athletes aren't the only people who get nervous before contests. Coaches can also get into the jitters act.

It seems to be that way today for Moe Turner and George Alexander, a pair of pilots in the Inter-City Junior Men's Basketball League who are hoping to collect a Canadian championship this season.

Turner, back at the helm of Victoria Chinooks, watched his club get away to a flying start in the current campaign by taking a pair of decisions from CYO Saints at Vancouver last weekend.

Alexander, again calling the shots for Killarney, also launched the new season on a winning note, guiding his Vancouver club to a victory over North Shore Mountaineers.

COLLISION COURSE

Now the Killies and Chinooks, rated the two teams that will fight it out for league honors, are running on a collision course and, despite optimistic predictions, both coaches are worried that title hopes could take a beating.

It will be a moment of truth, when league action returns to Victoria and fans, players and coaches learn which club has accumulated the better collection of talent. For one pilot, it could be a distressing occasion.

The crash comes Saturday night at Central Junior High School, when the Chinooks and Killies open a two-game, weekend series at 8:45. The same teams will return to the Central court Sunday at 2:15 to continue the league's hottest rivalry.

Playing in preliminary games will be teams in the new "mini league," a fun circuit for one-time and never-were players who will be required to suffer only half the regulation time. On Saturday, a squad of principals and vice-principals will meet a Victoria Press crew at 7:45. On Sunday, it will be CFAX against the city police at 1:30.

Often a target of Victoria fans, Alexander plans to start a tall forward line against the Chinooks, with six-five centre Ron Olynyk flanked by six-four Vic Couture and six-three Doug Dougan. Bob Steeves, perhaps the most accurate outside shooter in the league, will get the call at one guard position and will probably work with holdover Paul Pederson.

TOWERING NEWCOMER

Included in the Killarney reserves is Jim Singleton, a six-foot seven-inch newcomer who could turn out to be Alexander's secret weapon.

While admitting respect for the potential Killarney power, Turner today continued to display confidence that his club could handle the Killies. Chinooks have finished on top in four of their five seasons in the league and Turner believes his current crew has greater depth of talent than any previous Chinook club.

There's no doubt of the depth at the guard positions with five holdovers — Dave Wirtanen, Glenn Moffat, Barry Turner, Greg Schroeder and Drew Schroeder — ready for action.

FORMER VIKINGS

Important additions to the front line of the Chinooks this season are six-five Bill Carlson, Alvin Glover and Tom Child from last season's University of Victoria Vikings, and Dave Baade from Claremont High.

Helping give the Chinooks good height under the front-court boards are two tall returnees, six-five Mike O'Connor and six-four Dan Wade, both impressive in opening games.

There's something new on the sidelines, too. The Chinooks have acquired a colorful group of cheerleaders and Turner intends they'll have plenty to shout about this season.

Wings Recall Watson

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League have recalled defenceman Jim Watson from Baltimore Clippers of the American League and sent defenceman Bob Falkenberg to the Clippers.

Piggott Pays Penalty For Currency Attempt

UXBRIDGE, England (AP) — Lester Piggott, Britain's champion jockey, was fined £750 (about $1,930) Monday for attempting to illegally export currency.

Piggott, described by the defence as "an ambassador for his country," was alleged to have had £686 ($1,983) on him in sterling, U.S. dollars and French francs when he arrived at London Airport for a flight to Paris last May.

Britons are allowed to take only £65 ($169) abroad in a year. But the court was told that Piggott had an arrangement with the treasury for a business allowance of £28 ($52) a day when riding overseas.

The prosecution said Piggott told a customs official he was taking £5 ($13) in sterling and 45 new francs with him.

But on further questioning he produced £60 in sterling, 1,500 French francs and $1,203.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Returning to victory stand in Bowler-of-the-Week competition is Rod Caddell, who has captured men's tenpin award in fifth week of annual Times-sponsored event. Winner of provincial tenpin championship last November, Rod scorched lanes at Mayfair for 205-180-266—651 series in Major "A" League.

New Pin Event Slated in City

New on this season's city bowling horizon is an "Elimination Tournament", supervised and sanctioned by the Victoria Fivepin Association.

Under the format of the new contest, styled in the pattern of the former, nation-wide Tournament of Roses, almost every bowler has an opportunity to win the grand prize of an imported car on Easter weekend.

Verified league averages for entrants will be accepted up until Nov. 15, with a minimum of 12 league games having been bowled.

A scratch of 225 and up to 90 per cent handicap will be observed.

Competition is open to every league bowler under the jurisdiction of the VFA and entry forms must be in the hands of league secretaries by Nov. 15. First week of competition runs from Nov. 17 to 23.

Five weekly rounds of play, using the scores from three league games, will end on Mar. 22 with a registration fee of $1 payable for each round. Top 50 per cent of bowlers advance to the next round.

House finals still are to be arranged with the final five-game rolloff slated for Easter weekend at Capital City Lanes.

Harry Welch, manager of Capital City and promotor of the new contest believes that it will, "create new interest in league bowling for the Victoria Area."

Alf Hunt stated that although Capital City is the only house in Victoria not belonging to the Canadian Bowling Proprietors' Association, sanction by the VFA would ensure that "all others are going to co-operate."

SUPPORT ASSURED

"As president of the Victoria Fivepin Association," Hunt said, "I gave Mr. Welch my word several weeks ago I would support this tournament."

Final confirmation of the support came through at an executive meeting of the VFA Sunday night.

Hunt further stated that, "All operators are going to benefit, Harry no more than the rest, because of the initial cost of starting the ball rolling."

At least 1,000 entries are needed to cover the cost of the new car as grand prize.

CALGARY IS CONFUSED BY PARADE FEE BOOST

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary will pay the Grey Cup parade entry fee of $500 this year, but city officials aren't happy about it.

Mayor Jack Leslie says the city expects the Canadian Football League to rectify the matter of parade entry fees before the 1969 game for the Canadian professional football championship.

The Junior Board of Trade in Toronto, in charge of the November 30 parade, has set the entry fee at $500 compared to the $25 charged in Ottawa last year.

"It astounds us," Mayor Leslie said. "It just seems mighty strange to us when we invite participation in the (Calgary) Stampede and don't charge anyone any entry fee."

"It seems a tremendous amount of money and we find it hard to comprehend in any way that the city should be charged any fee of any type."

It's All Matter Of Bookkeeping

OTTAWA — Who's the better bookkeeper — Finance Minister E. J. Benson or Premier Bennett?

And where's the $18 million?

When the verbal dust finally settled at the finance ministers' meeting here, it was clear the two had had their differences.

Bennett on Monday at the close-door talks took Benson to task for his claims that B.C. is not using its medicare money for the purposes intended by Ottawa in putting up a half-share.

Benson on Tuesday told Bennett that he stood behind his earlier statement.

Bennett claimed all the money B.C. gets is earmarked for medicare and goes into a special fund.

Benson said there's $18 million at least that disappears into general revenue.

Bennett said Benson obviously was misinformed.

Benson said he wasn't, and that Bennett "tried to convince me he was a better bookkeeper than I am."

B.C. will get approximately $22 million this year from Ottawa for the nine months of 1968-69 during which the medicare plan applies — it came into effect July 1.

Benson said Bennett had been operating his plan previously from premiums paid by the people of the province and from $18 million in general revenue.

He maintained that since getting Ottawa's share, Bennet had not reduced premiums or reduced taxes.

"He has $18 million he is doing something with," said the federal finance minister.

And what can he do about it?

DO NOTHING

"I can not do anything except try to embarrass Mr. Bennett," said Benson — meaning embarrass him into passing all the effects of the federal share.

But while there were some ministers at the meetings of finance and health ministers who were unhappy with medicare, Bennett, despite his difference with Benson, maintained that he was perfectly happy with the way it is working in B.C.

He said that health is the key factor in life, and that he could not see how it could not be financed across the country.

B.C. and Saskatchewan are the only provinces in the federal scheme so far.

Federal Health Minister John Munro gave this rundown of the other provinces.

Manitoba and Nova Scotia have indicated they are coming in next year. Alberta, New Brunswick and Newfoundland are giving consideration to joining, and Ontario, Quebec and Prince Edward Island still are uncertain.

Two Men Sentenced

NELSON (CP) — Two men were sentenced Tuesday after pleading guilty to a series of charges of breaking and entering. David William Cole, 19, sentenced for 18 months definite and 18 indefinite on 11 charges. John William Kooznetsoff was sentenced to 15 months definite and 15 indefinite on six charges.

TIME IS LIMITED

The British House of Lords may block legislation, but only for a year.

Gov't Scores Easy Victory

OTTAWA (CP) — The government took some scathing criticism about fiscal policies Tuesday but breezed to an easy voting victory in its first confidence test on the tax-raising budget of Finance Minister Edgar Benson.

A New Democratic motion stating that the special two-percent income tax imposed by the budget constituted an "outrageous burden" on taxpayers in middle- and lower-income brackets won support from Conservatives and Creditistes.

But it was easily handled by the Liberal majority in a vote of 127 to 83.

The NDP motion noted that a ceiling had been placed on the special tax. No taxpayer would pay more under it then $120 a year.

The motion said the net effect of such a limited tax was to make the taxation system more inequitable than it is.

Eleven Creditiste MPs and 56 Conservatives joined the 16 New Democrats present in voting for the motion.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberal 155; Conservative 72; New Democrat 21; Creditiste 14; Independent 1; vacant 1.

TEST AGAIN TODAY

The government faces another test during the six-day budget debate on a Conservative motion that claims the government has "repeatedly deceived" the Commons and the public about the extent and gravity of its 1968-69 deficit and has "destroyed its own credibility" with forecasts that budgets would be balanced but continued budgetary deficits.

Before Tuesday's vote, Gerald W. Baldwin (PC—Peace River) noted a spate of political books have come out lately.

Apparently the time was ripe for another one—"The Great Swindle; Or How to Wreck the Economy in Five Easy Budgets."

The Liberals had compiled an aggregate deficit of $1,800,000,000 since coming to power in 1963 and it was time this was stopped.

The Liberal government that had imposed medical care insurance on the provinces, making an "unequivocal commitment, a guarantee" that it would shoulder 50 per cent of medical care costs, now had served notice that it would get out of this shared-cost program in five years.

Mr. Baldwin said this was equivalent to getting the provinces "hooked on the habit" of medical care and then withdrawing the drug supply.

This action alone was reason enough for MPs to register their opposition to the budget.

CHARGE STUPIDITY

Hugh John Flemming (PC—Carleton-Charlotte), former New Brunswick premier, said the budget capped "five years of blundering" and "financial stupidity" by the Liberals.

The government had been on a "spending spree" when it should have been holding down expenditures to counter inflation. Now the people were being subjected to higher taxes to pay for government mismanagement.

Mr. Flemming said the $120 ceiling on the new social development tax means that a man with $5,000 annual income would put 12 per cent of his tax into this category. The man with annual income of $25,000 would be nicked for 1½ per cent.

This made a mockery of Liberal election election campaign pledges to bring about a just society.

Robert Thompson (PC—Red Deer) said Mr. Benson's budget ran directly counter to promises the Liberals made before the June 25 election that they would aim for balanced budgets and fiscal responsibility.

Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver Kingsway) said tax exemptions should be raised to $4,000 for families and pensions should be brought into line with galloping costs of living.

Mary's Wishes Could Be Costly

WASHINGTON (WP) — If the congressman adds a "Merry Christmas and Happy New Year" at the end of his newsletter, he can send along his seasonal greetings without violating the congressional franking (free mail) privilege.

But a postcript saying that his wife, Mary, joins in the best wishes will make it nonfrankable.

Recipe of the Week

Dark Christmas Cake

Cream ½ cup of butter and ½ cup margarine. Add 1 cup of sugar. Beat until fluffy. Beat 6 egg yokes and add to cream mixture. Stir well. Sift 2 cups of flour, measure, and set aside ½ cup. Sift remaining 1½ cups flour with 1 tsp. salt, ½ tsp. mace, ½ tsp. alspice, ½ tsp. cloves, ½ tsp. cinnamon and ½ tsp. nutmeg into creamed mixture, mix well. Add ½ tsp. vanilla, ½ tsp. lemon extract, ¼ cup of sherry or cider. Combine 1½ cups currants, 1½ cups seedless raisins, ¼ lb. of candied cherries cut in half, ½ lb. of citron, thinly sliced, ¼ lb. of candied pineapple, ¼ lb. candied orange peel, ¼ lb. candied lemon peel thinly sliced, ½ cup of halved blanched almonds, ⅜ cup of chopped walnuts, ⅜ cup of chopped pecans with the ½ cup of flour, add to cake batter and mix. Beat the 6 egg whites until stiff; fold into cake batter and mix well. Spoon into pan or pans; bake. Store. Makes 5 lbs. Approx. baking time: 5 lbs., 9" spring form pan, 300 degrees, for 3 hours. Test for doneness 15 to 30 minutes before the suggested baking time has elapsed. The cake is done when a toothpick inserted in centre comes out clean.

Recipe of the Week:

Creole Pot Roast

Set out a Dutch oven or a heavy sauce pot having a tight-fitting cover. Mix a finely chopped onion with 1 clove garlic, finely minced or crushed in garlic press; 1 teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon pepper; ¼ teaspoon thyme; ¼ teaspoon cayeene pepper. Set this seasoning mixture aside. Wipe a 3 to 4 lb. pot roast of beef (chuck, blade, round, or rump) with a clean, damp cloth. All over surface of meat, cut slits several inches apart. Cut crosswise into thin strips 3 slices of pot roast and set aside. Heat ¼ cup butter or margarine in the Dutch over over low heat. Slice 2 onions and add to heated fat; cook until lightly browned. Place onion slices on top of meat and put meat into Dutch oven. Cover and slowly brown meat. Wash 3 carrots, 1 turnip and cut into small pieces. Finely chop 3 onions. When browning second side of meat add vegetables to Dutch oven with 2 tbles. finely chopped parsley and 1 crushed bay leaf. While meat is browning turn vegetables several times. Add ½ cup sherry or Madeira wine when meat is well browned.
Cover tightly and cook slowly over low heat about 3 hours or until tender. Add more wine or water during cooking period if necessary. At all times liquid surrounding meat should be simmering, not boiling. Remove the meat from liquid when tender. Strain the liquid and use for gravy. Serve Daube cutting meat into thin slices across grain of meat. Serves 6 to 8 people.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Pretender Ponders Career as Actress

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 11 years old and I want to become a famous actress. I think I would be very good at it because ever since I was a little girl I have been very good at "pretending" and that is what acting is, isn't it? Do I have to finish high school to be an actress?

LISA

DEAR LISA: Finish high school. And college, too, if you have a chance. Being good at "pretending" might help a lot because there may be times when you have to "pretend" that you are eating.

DEAR ABBY: About 2 years ago my husband announced that he wanted no part of our marriage or any of its responsibilities. He turned to alcohol, "go go" girls, sports cars and everything he once considered immoral, irresponsible and extravagant.

We are now having a lot of problems with our children. They are doing poor work in school and are hard to handle at home. The school counselor called me to inquire into our "home situation."

My husband insists it is none of their business, and how our kids do at school has nothing to do with the way we live at home. He has pointed out other families in which the home life is a mess, but the kids seem to come out all right. Is he right, or am I just nit-picking?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: When home is a battleground, the casualties are usually the children. Some do survive in spite of the odds, but show me a rebellious, troubled child, and I will show you a home situation riddled with discord.

DEAR ABBY: About the cross-eyed woman who chewed out her daughter's boyfriend because she offered him a cup of coffee and he said, "I didn't answer you right away because I never realized before that you were cross-eyed, and I didn't know you were talking to me."

My sympathy is with the boy. When I was in school, I had a Spanish teacher who was very cross-eyed. She would ask a general question and three people would answer her from different parts of the room. Naturally, this caused a lot of embarrassment.

If this cross-eyed woman is sensitive about her eyes, she should not leave herself wide open for such embarrassment to herself and others. I also learned from my mother that it is proper and courteous to address a person by his name.

NEW PROJECT IN HONOR OF CHARTER

The Victoria Altrusa Club, at its meeting this week, decided to undertake a new project to commemorate the receipt of the group's charter at a recent banquet in the Empress Hotel. In honor of the event the group has undertaken to furnish a room at the Gorge Road Hospital Rehabilitation Centre.

Computer Makes Decisions On What Women Will Wear

TORONTO (CP) — If they can be used in industry and research, why not in women's fashions? So one of Canada's largest dress firms is using a computer to help decide dress sizes and colors.

"It's a monster," said Jack Kirstein, vice-president and manager of J. K. Posluns, Toronto. "We have to keep it going and right now we can produce 8,000 dresses a week.

"Since we have the facts about what can sell, we can commit ourselves much earlier, buy cloth much earlier and get the jump on the market. We can tell mills what we want, create our own fabric patterns, and still deliver on time. Eighty per cent of our line is in exclusive fabrics."

Mr. Kirstein said in an interview the computer has helped speed up Canadian stylings. Five years ago the firm was a year behind New York in styling — "now we're ahead by six months."

GUIDELINES FOR THE TEEN-AGE GIRL

Double Standard on Sexual Desires Now Outdated

By Dr. TOM McGINNIS

(Editor's Note — This report on tene-age boy-girl relationships is adapted from the book, 'A Girl's Guide to Dating and Going Steady." The author is a well-known New Jersey psychotherapist and professor at New York University.)

One of the many advantages of being a girl in these days is that for the first time in history it is possible to recognize, freely and openly, the true nature of your femaleness. Until now, it was not generally recognized or admitted that women could have legitimate sexual desires and could want and be able to love a man in a physical way. The woman who admitted having such desires was often considered bad.

If unmarried, she was cast out from society. The good woman, such as the lawfully wedded wife, felt guilty about such feelings when and if they cropped up. She pushed them out of her mind, for they were considered to be temptations which should never be encouraged.

We generally think that men had the better of it where the double standard existed. Under this standard, men usually considered their own sexual feelings as being almost entirely physical. They felt that they had the right to enjoy intercourse with whomever they pleased.

The "double standard" stemmed from a failure to realize that sexual intercourse has other purposes than the achieving of physical satisfaction, or, noble though it is, the conceiving of a baby. In recent times, we have come to look upon the sexual relationship between men and women in a new light. We realize that, in addition to being an act which gives physical pleasure, it is a means by which men and women can demonstrate their deepest love.

Nevertheless, other aspects of sex are also important. They relate to the unchanging fact that intercourse between a male and female can lead to the birth of a baby.

The fact that intercourse can result in pregnancy is one of the main reasons why, down through the years, societies one after the other have believed that it must not be engaged in by the young. This prohibition has been based on the fact that a girl begins to menstruate and becomes able to give birth to a baby before she is really ready to take care of him. Societies ancient and modern, therefore, have adopted the attitude that if you are not fully prepared to be a parent, you are not ready for sex.

This reasoning perhaps makes more sense today than ever, because we now know that parents have a greater influence on their children than was realized before. The kind of care a baby gets in his first few years—the amount of love, attention, and acceptance he receives from his parents—affects his entire emotional, social and intellectual development and perhaps even his physical development as well.

SEX AND LOVE

The second point about sex is that, in its finest form, it is the outgrowth of the desire by two persons who sincerely love each other. When we analyze this statement, we can see how true it is. If you dislike someone, you prefer to be as far from his as possible. If you really dislike him, you may even walk on the other side of the street to avoid seeing him or speaking to him. If you must speak to him, you want to get away from him as quickly as possible.

But you want to be close to someone you like—to talk to him, to hold his hand, to snuggle up close. If someone you love has hurt himself, or suffers physical or emotional pain, you tend to reach out to him—to touch him, to make physical contact, to let him know that you want to be with him in his suffering.

On a natural basis, then, the expression of love results from a feeling of love. The sexual relationship is the most intimate contact of which men and women are capable. It seems logical to say, therefore, that this act should be indulged in only by people who are truly in love.

CONTRACEPTIVES

Much has been published and broadcast in the last few years about the use of contraceptives as a way of preventing pregnancy by men and women who engage in sexual intercourse, but do not want to have a baby. Various means have been developed to contracept—to "work against conception"—and thus to achieve this result.

Contraceptives achieve the purpose intended only when the couple knows well in advance when intercourse will take place and takes the necessary steps to prevent the sperm from reaching the ovum. No known treatment, drug or device will effectively prevent conception after intercourse has taken place. Then the only effective means is an abortion—an operation, illegal except under special circumstances, which consists of destroying the fetus.

I mention this subject to give you the facts which prove that the consequences of sexual intercourse have not changed as much as many people believe.

Available figures indicate that, despite the development and apparent widespread use of various contraceptive methods, the rate of premarital pregnancy is as high today as ever before. The introduction of so-called effective contraceptives has not seemed to change matters much insofar as unmarried persons are concerned, primarily because the unmarried often do not use them as they are intended to be used.

MEANING OF REPUTATION

A girl's reputation has, in most parts of the world today, a distinct bearing on her position in the community. While most husbands today do not advertise the fact that their bride was completely inexperienced, it is also true that they do not want her to have the reputation of being fast and loose. They still want a girl they confidently expect to be faithful to them, and especially to have children they are sure are their own. To say it another way, they still want a girl with a good reputation.

A modern girl would be mistaken, I think, to minimize the importance of this factor. What is true of men seeking brides is also true of boys seeking girl friends for lasting friendship. They want a friend they can feel proud of, someone they can introduce without embarrassment to their parents and friends—someone in whose reputation they have confidence.

This is not to say that boys will not date girls with bad reputations. They will, and sometimes to such an extent that inexperienced girls sometimes get the idea that the way to be popular with boys is to be very liberal about "making out." It is often true that girls known as pushovers have a temporary popularity, because many boys feel that engaging in heavy sexual activities with a girl proves their own manhood.

But as soon as they gain their purpose, there is no base of affection upon which the girl can build an enduring friendship. Thus, easy-to-get girls may seem to be highly popular for a time, but they soon discover that boys are interested in them for only one reason and they cannot get boys who want to be real friends with them.

Next: Why do boys always want to make out?

Local Altrusa Club Receives Its Charter

The Victoria Altrusa Club received its charter Saturday night at the Empress Hotel after years of waiting.

The club was formed years ago but membership problems prevented it from qualifying for the charter.

Despite this the group has been active in a variety of public service projects. A few of the projects have been the adoption of a Korean orphan; the organization of an annual Christmas party for elderly citizens; the building of a bus stop shelter; the giving of temporary financial aid to a deserted mother, and donations of equipment for rehabilitating the handicapped.

Here from Seattle to present the charter to Mrs. Nellie Ormond, president of the Victoria club, was Mrs. Marion Seeley, governor of District Twelve, Altrusa International.

Other members of the district executive here for the event were Miss Roberta Shumann, Seattle, governor-elect; Mrs. Kathryn Wise, Eugene, Ore., first vice-governor, and Mrs. E. J. Brewster, Nanaimo, second vice-governor.

SEND GREETINGS

Greetings from the International Club were read.

Before the charter banquet, a reception was held in the Duke of Kent Room. Among the guests were Victoria members and their friends, representatives from other Altrusa clubs in the district, affiliated service clubs and local governments.

Soloist John Bray sang for the gathering. He was accompanied by Charles Palmer on the piano.

Will Give Talk At Night School This Thursday

Gray Campbell, owner of Gray's Publishing Limited, and Lt.-Cmdr. John Barclay, who is in charge of the company's administration and accounting departments, will act as a team when Mrs. M. Lindo instructs an evening class in writing for publication in room 206 at Oak Bay Junior Secondary School this coming Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

The class is open to all interested writers.

Mr. Campbell and Lt.-Cmdr. Barclay will discuss the processing of a manuscript after it reaches a publishing company. Mr. Campbell will talk about the technical aspects of printing, while his associate will outline the financial considerations.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

For More Exercising Fun Start a Neighborhood Club

Lowman

Quite frequently I receive letters from readers telling me about "Why Grow Old" Clubs they have formed in their neighborhoods. These letters are always so enthusiastic, and it is such a great idea, I like to pass this suggestion along periodically.

Many women who cannot make themselves exercise when alone, would do so if they had company. Especially today, with the emphasis an the value of exercise, there must be many women in every neighborhood who want to exercise regularly. You have to try it to believe what it can do for your figure and how much more alive it makes you feel!

This is a recent note from a reader:

A few months ago we formed a "Why Grow Old" club in our neighborhood. We named it that because we use your exercises. When we started there were only four of us, but now there are ten.

We take turns taking care of all of the children. In this way no woman has to be absent more than once every ten weeks. The attendance has been surprisingly regular.

One reason is we have so much fun! Also, we are losing in pounds and inches as we all wished to. We meet once a week. I really do not think any of us would have been successful alone. We measure and weigh one another, and discuss calories and compare notes about our diets. I thought you would like to hear about this.

I do love to hear about the projects and successes of my readers! This plan is excellent for many reasons. In the first place, women who would not have done so otherwise, exercise. This is also a great idea for young mothers who have no one with whom to leave their children. It really provides the tied-down mother with a couple of social occasions each week.

Here is one of this group's favorite exercises. Lie on the floor on your back with your legs straight and your arms resting on the floor overhead. Bend both knees up close to your abdomen and grasp your knees with your hands. Straighten your legs up toward the ceiling as you return your arms to overhead position. Now slowly lower your legs to the floor with stiff knees.

If you would like to start a club in your neighborhood and would like some information on dieting and exercising, send for my new booklet, Dial-A-Figure. This booklet has a dial which tells how much you should lose, how to do it, a calorie chart, exercises and a chart for your progress. For your copy send one dollar and your name and address with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Toys That Teach Give Hours of Fun

By PENNY SAVER

Parents today are caught between the horns of a dilemma—one that has its feet set squarely in the toybox. When buying for their offspring they are asked to choose between the "educational" toys that teach the child skills, both simple and complex, while he "plays" and the wind-up, plug-in, push-the-button, realer-than-real toys that the manufacturers are pushing in slick ads on cartoon shows. While the former toys can teach anything from simple motor skills such as hammering or matching round pegs to round holes to arithmetic or geography, few of the latter group seem to offer any bonuses of that sort. In fact when a little girl receives a doll that talks better than she does I begin to worry. And when a doll is so complex that it plots the way the game will go, I suspect that the child's imagination will suffer. Because of this I am a firm supporter of educational toys despite the critics who say they will bore today's sophisticated children.

After all, what little boy could be bored by a train? I am not speaking of the kind of train that runs on electricity and requires that Daddy set it up. That kind of train comes with only so much track; it can go only so many places and it usually gets "hogged" by Daddy. It could be boring. On the other hand, there is the kind of train that the youngest child can use with supervision. This train may need to be pushed, but it will make the "station" at the corner of the dining room table even if it has to travel through the kitchen chair "underpass" to get there. Meanwhile the young engineer is learning first-hand about such things as friction and rolling motion. One train set of this kind I saw also taught about magnetism. The $2 set consisted of three brightly colored magnetized cars, each with a depression in the centre so it will carry marbles or other small objects. Since the cars are held together by magnetism there are fewer pieces to break.

Wooden Cars From West Germany

For $2.95 and $1.50 I saw sets of wooden cars that hook together by a simple but sturdy hook and eye arrangement. Made in West Germany, these cars are beautiful in themselves. While the lines are simple, there are such details as windows you can look through, and, of course, wheels that really turn. The finish is waxed and the pieces of wood carefully joined together so that the different grains give almost an inlaid look to each. The sets come with two sizes of cars, each set containing five cars in a carrying sack. (When I saw these sets hanging on display I immediately thought of Christmas morning. These, to my mind, are the sort of stocking toys that will keep a child quiet until his parents have accumulated some extra 'shut-eye.')

A child learning to use his hands is wonderful to watch. First he is doggedly concentrating on his task, then, as he succeeds, he is radiantly proud to have solved his problem. His face shows it all. For children this age, I think that take-apart, put-together toys are best. I saw some interesting ones the other day at prices ranging from $1 to $1.29. These were based on a tall wooden screw with rings of different sizes held on by a screw-down "head." One was of an Indian on his pony with the rings making up his necklace. Another was a caterpillar with a ringed body.

Please call 382-3131 if you would like to know where to shop for these items.

Amateur Artists To Auction Works

Amateur artists will auction off their works Saturday to raise money for the Unitarian Church. The pictures will be on display from 1 to 4 p.m. in the Servitus Hall, 106 Superior Street. At this time reserve bids will be taken. The auction proper will begin at 4 p.m.

In conjunction with the viewing there will be a boutique bazaar with stalls of hand-made items, miscellaneous items and home baking. The Unitarian Service Committee women will sell coffee.

There will be games for the children.

Mrs. Ken Tebbutt is general convener of the affair which will be open to the public.

Drapery Department May Relieve Problem

Use Wedding Ring Detail

Dear Eunice Farmer,

Will you please tell your readers how to make the thick, rolled, padded hems and the rolled look repeated at the neckline on many high fashion dresses?

I have seen this look on sleeves and pockets as well. Yet, I haven't seen a single pattern with this detail. Mrs. J.P.

Dear. Mrs. J.P.: This rolled effect is used by many designers and is often referred to as the wedding ring detail because it resembles a ring with its thick, rounded effect.

If you can't find the cording at your fabric shop, you may have to search the drapery departments. This very thick cording is used more for the corded effect in draperies and home furnishings than it is in ready-to-wear.

Cut a bias strip of your fabric, about 4 inches wide. Using your zipper foot, you must fold the fabric, right side out, over the cording and machine stitch as close to the cord as possible. Be sure to keep both edges of the fabric even as you stitch or you will have diagonal folds in the covered cording.

Trim the excess fabric ⅝-inch from the stitching line. Next, place the stitching line of the cording on the seam line, pin in place and stitch with the zipper foot again exactly on the original stitching line.

Next, place the facing over this cording that has been stitched to the garment, pin firmly and restitch from the wrong side of your garment to insure stitching on the correct line.

Esquimalt Church Holds Bazaar

It was a colorful scene when the annual bazaar took place in the parish hall of Queen of Peace Church on Saturday. The decor was set with huge paper flowers and brilliant streamers. Decorated tea tables and article-laden stalls added to the picture.

Guests arriving at the event, which raised $1,300 for parish activities, were greeted by Fr. M. J. McNamara and general convener Mrs. W. J. Sullivan, president of the Catholic Women's League. Making the official opening was Mrs. W. W. Rogers, Victoria, first provincial CWL vice-president.

FORMER PASTOR

Another special guest at the affair was Fr. L. McLellan, former pastor of the Esquimalt church.

Several of the young parishioners assisted with the serving of the tea which was convened by Mrs. J. Pryke, Mrs. H. Wakelin and Mrs. J. Sharpe. The three conveners were assisted by Mrs. J. McGrath and Mrs. H. Doucet.

Stall conveners included: Needlework, Mrs. N. Hall, Mrs. P. Slaney, Mrs. M. Kokran and Mrs. P. C. Shaw; novelties, Mrs. R. Stirling and Mrs. E. Callan; candy, Mrs. H. Kallrath and Miss D. Gillis; home cooking, Mrs. E. DeCosta, Mrs. A. Smith and Mrs. P. Awalt; Lucky Seven, Mrs. E. Barnabe, Mrs. K. Gillis and Mrs. F. Blackley; white elephants, Mrs. J. Comerford and Mrs. J. McLaughlin; religious articles, Mrs. A. Dickie.

Doll raffle tickets were sold by Mrs. F. Brown, a ham raffle was handled by Mrs. C. D. Macklin and tombola receipts were in charge of Mrs. K. Bendall and Mrs. C. Praud.

The Men's Club ran bingo games during the evening. Coffee and donuts were served while the games were played.

The Ladies' Division of the Uplands Golf Club will hold a harvest bridge at the clubhouse on Tuesday, November 19. Reservations can be made by phoning the office at 383-2414. Door prizes will be awarded.

Lifts Faces Out Of Lines and Wrinkles

Most mothers, of any age, now can know the thrill of a 2nd Debut by letting an amazing discovery lift their faces out of the aging maze of lines and wrinkles at home the new easy way. It's the Wiesbaden Discovery called CEF 600 and 1200 double strength blended into the new skin lotion called 2nd Debut. Moisture is carried under the wrinkled skin layers to push up and out. Once again skin is smooth, soft and so much younger looking most mothers call it a 2nd Debut. Most drug and department stores feature 2nd Debut. Results are almost immediate.

Hands Off Juries Lawyers Warned

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three judges of British Columbia Court of Appeal Tuesday issued a flat warning to lawyers: "Stay away from jurors."

The warning came as the court ordered a new civil hearing of a damage suit arising from a motor vehicle accident.

The court was told a B.C. Supreme Court civil jury awarded $25,000 damages to Joseph Francis McCready against Robert Edward Scott in November, 1967.

But at the same time it found Mr. Scott, the driver, had not been grossly negligent, thus wiping out the damage award.

Mr. McCready's lawyer, John Laxton, and Mr. Scott's counsel, R. H. Guile, said a casual conversation with jurors showed the jury had intended Mr. McCready to receive the damages.

JURY PERVERSE

The appeal court judges held that the jury was perverse and should have found Mr. Scott guilty of negligence.

But the judges criticized the "practice that has grown up in recent years" of lawyers quizzing jurors. Chief Justice H. W. Davey said the two lawyers had merely followed the practice.

"But that practice must stop. Jurors are entitled, after they have left the privacy of the jury room, to go their way without being badgered and hounded as to the reasons for reaching their verdict."

The chief justice was supported by Mr. Justice M. M. Mcfarlane and Mr. Justice A. E. Branca.

Judge in the original hearing was Mr. Justice Nathan T. Nemetz, now an appeal judge.

Flunkeys on Island Lower Than Others

Vancouver Island flunkeys outnumber lower mainland flunkeys four-to-one but they don't make quite as much money.

That's part of the mass of data compiled in the province's first annual regional salary and wage rate survey.

Issued by the provincial bureau of economics and statistics with the help of the federal labor department, the 111-page survey shows the comparative wage and personnel figures for almost 800 occupations in each of the 10 census divisions of B.C.

Flunkeys—the loggers' title for the non-cooking members of the cookhouse crews—appear on Page 84 where it is shown that the 15 flunkeys working in the lower mainland division earned an average daily wage of $22.35.

The 62 flunkeys in the Vancouver Island division earned an average of $22.24 a day while the eight remaining flunkeys to be found in the province—in Census Division 9 (northwest B.C.) — earned $20.80 a day.

OPEN TO ANYONE

This kind of comparative information may not only be of interest to flunkeys but also to company management men as well as union officials, the provincial devartment of trade, commerce and industrial development believes.

That's why it will provide copies to anyone writing in for the first or subsequent surveys.

The first survey covers the period up to September of last year. A preliminary survey on 1968 wages in the 10 census divisions is expected soon.

Jury Blames Driver For His Own Death

A man killed after his car struck a tree Friday was responsible for his own death, a coroner's jury ruled Tuesday night. The jury held that Josef Szczepanek-Barclay, 63, of 2323 Trent, took responsibility for the car he was driving while he knew he didn't have a B.C. driver's licence.

The man died of internal injuries after the car he was using to push another slammed into a tree after going out of control near his house. The jury was told Mr. Barclay had driven previously in England but never in Canada and had never held a licence here.

The jury attached no blame in the accident to anyone else.

4-H Trophy Awarded To Goat Club

A new 4-H trophy awarded to the club with the highest number of points in demonstration and educational displays was awarded to the Saanich 4-H Goat Club at an achievement banquet at the Saanichton federal research station.

The cup was donated by George R. Pearkes, former lieutenant-governor, who attended the banquet. Ten southern Vancouver Island farm clubs competed.

Guests at the banquet included Ken Jameson, district horticulturist, and Peter Ivatts, a director of the Victoria Kiwanis Club, sponsors of the goat club.

Achievement trophies for showmanship and judging were presented to Floyd McKee, junior class; Paul Gurr, intermediate; and Carol Gurr, senior.

The award for fodder projects went to Paul Gurr.

Winners of showmanship trophies are Rosiland Logan, junior, and Kathryn Logan, senior.

John Greenwood won an award for the best progress in husbandry.

The Kiwanis Club presented six cups to Diane Andrew, public speaking; Debbie Hitchen, club office work; Dan McKee, fair work, Jill Rogers, best fodder garden; Paul Gurr, good citizenship.

Kathryn Logan also received a stockmanship pin for outstanding marks in 4-H competitions.

From Mouths Of Children: Teeth

TORONTO (CP) — At least four persons in Canada are chewing their food with someone else's teeth.

For 10 years Dr. Samuel Leslie, 65, a Toronto physician and surgeon, has been transplanting teeth from children into the mouths of adults.

Dr. Leslie said Monday that of the seven operations he has performed, four of the grafts have been "alive" and in place for up to eight years.

He reported on his first three cases in London, England, in 1959 to the International Society of Plastic Surgeons. One of his earliest patients was his own son who was given two teeth eight years ago when he was 25. One is still fine but the other was removed because it developed decay.

Dr. Leslie said that to be a success the transplanted tooth must still be in the growing stage and have some remnant of the sac in which it was encased before it cut through the donor's gum.

The donors' teeth—bicuspids and molars—were taken from the children because of overcrowding which was pushing their jaws out of shape.

LIONS WANT TO DUMP EASTER SEAL FACTION

A splinter group threatening the success the Easter Seal campaign will be dumped if local Lions clubs have their way.

At a joint meeting of area Lions clubs Tuesday, the splinter group was defined as a minority faction on the B.C. Society for Crippled Children Vancouver Island management committee which contends that money raised through the Island campaign should be spent entirely on the Island.

Last year's campaign raised $28,000 and although only $14,000 was spent on the Island, George MacDonald, chairman of the board of the B.C. society, said this was sufficient for Island needs.

NO ONE NEGLECTED

He said he knew of no case where an Island child was not given help when it was sought.

Money collected through the Vancouver Island and other provincial Easter Seal campaigns is sent to the Vancouver headquarters and distributed throughout the province according to the needs of each area.

Lion Frank Roach said the local dissenters seem to be "a splinter group of four or five who are causing all the trouble," and that the Island's nine directors should go to Vancouver and make it clear that most of the Vancouver Island clubs think crippled children on the Island are getting a fair deal.

Beauty Cleansing The Skin

Many of the world's most beautiful women attribute the clear, fine loveliness of their complexions to the toning qualities of a special lemon cleanser that floats away all beauty-robbing impurities without depriving the skin of its natural beauty. The complexion immediately reflects the rewarding benefits as the cleanser is smoothed over the skin. Dry, ageing lines are eased and the skin becomes clear and softly endowed with a radiant bloom. Jelvyn cleansing milk is the perfect cleanser for all skin types.

WORKING MOTHERS

Children Need Better Break

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

I've always subscribed to the idea that married women (with our without children) have a right to work outside the home if they desire. I still do, for that matter.

At the same time, I am concerned with the needs of mothers who must leave youngsters to fend for themselves during working days.

This concern was sharpened recently by a simple little happening that included a small boy with a very bad cold.

He had been sent home from school because of the cold. Only to remember when he got there that his older sister had the key to the house. And she was in school.

Returning the several blocks to get the key he evidently began to wonder how he was going to find his sisters.

* * *

That's when he stopped to share his troubles with a group of men working near by. It was then I happened along.

I'd say the lad wasn't more than six or seven years of age. He was plainly and neatly dressed. His clothes were well worn but clean and warm. He carried a good size lunch box.

Obviously he did have a cold. And, just as obviously, he looked lost and forlorn.

The men were sympathetic but not quite sure what to advise. One did come up with the suggestion that the boy go to his principal and he would find the sister.

This idea was mulled over for a few moments. Then the youngster walked off toward the school.

No doubt he got the key. There is also no doubt he went back, cold and lonely, to an empty house. A sick little boy in need of care.

The more I thought about it, the more disturbed I became. The little boy with the runny nose was a symbol of all those who wander in and out of empty homes in the hours when mothers are working.

Why, I reasoned, isn't it possible to make better provision for such youngsters?

I know there are some who would say "a woman's place is in the home." Believe me, that's a phrase which still causes many employers to discriminate against the well-over-a-million married women who work in Canada.

Let's remember however, the majority of women with family responsibilities enter the labor force because of economic necessity. Many are breadwinners in their families. A good percentage have been deserted, divorced and left with children to care for.

* * *

Remember too, that without them today (particularly those with specialized skills and training) many of the vital services of community life could not be maintained.

Why then is not more effort put into improving working conditions for married women with children and to changing public attitudes toward working mothers?

The best way that comes to my mind is through provision of more adequate day-care facilities.

Immediately I think of Edmonton's Glengarry Project, to be located on five blocks of city-owned parkland in an area where low income families are well established.

When I was in that city a few months ago, I was shown a plan of this centre. It will have space not only for children in the ages from three to six but also some room for under three's.

* * *

The centre is near several elementary schools and it intends to provide hot lunches for that age group as well as a pre-and-after school program.

Working mothers will find help there in better home management, child-rearing problems, easy nutrition schedules, hobbies and other things.

The Alberta government is helping to finance the project to the tune of 80 per cent of construction and 80 per cent of operation costs. The city will pick up the tab for the remainder.

Tin Lizzie Era Still Grips Air Transport

VANCOUVER (CP) — An aviation expert says jumbo jets and supersonic transports are still in the Tin Lizzie stage of development in terms of what's still to come in future years.

William Irvine, who retired this fall as Pacific region controller of civil aviation for the federal transport department, said in an interview that automatic take-offs and landings will be the next major development in aviation.

He said all the pilot will have to do is sit back and make sure the computers are running smoothly.

"I think we're still in the Model T stage in aviation," said Mr. Irvine. "It will be only a few years before supersonic aircraft are bringing in 500 passengers automatically and being serviced for a quick turnaround."

Mr. Irvine earned his wings during the era when the Tin Lizzie was the common method of ground transport. He learned to fly in the RCAF, left the service in 1929 and pioneered airmail routes in Eastern Canada.

He joined the transport department in 1939 and spent the war years building training airfields for the Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

Mr. Irvine came to his job here 10 years ago.

Public Buildings To Close Monday

Firm Offers Rich Fiction Prize

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — Struggling authors in Britain and the Commonwealth have a new incentive to produce that great unborn novel — a £5,000 annual prize for fiction which the donors hope will develop a prestige comparable to that of France's Prix Goncourt.

The benefactors are Booker McConnell Ltd., an international combine dealing in rum, sugar, mining machinery and thriller writers—they own shares in the work of Agatha Christie, the late Ian Fleming and others. They claim that the prize, guaranteed for seven years, is the first example of an industrial company sponsoring literature in a big way, though similar support is often given to art, sport or music.

The Booker Prize, administered by Britain's Publishers' Association will be awarded to the best novel, in the opinion of five judges, to have been published in Britain between Dec. 1 and the following Nov. 30. First award will be made in April, 1969.

JUDGES DISTINGUISHED

Eligible are any novels by writers from Britain, the Commonwealth, Republic of Ireland and South Africa first published in Britain between those dates. Publishers may submit not more than two books from their lists.

The judges will be Dame Rebecca West, novelist and author of books ranging from travel to treason; poet Stephen Spender; London University professor Frank Kermode; W. L. Webb, literary editor of The Guardian, and publisher David Farrer, who is completing a personal memoir of his wartime service with the late Lord Beaverbrook. That book is provisionally titled G for God Almighty.

Britain is notoriously low on literary prizes of any value or international stature. There are about 50 assorted prizes here for various categories of writing, ranging from inscribed quills to £1,000 and including such oddities as a bronze medal—for a lyric poem—accompanied by a sum of £5, from which the cost of the medal is deducted.

CARRIES PRESTIGE

Not that the celebrated Prix Goncourt is worth much more in terms of cash, but its immense prestige can boost sales enormously in and out of France. A Goncourt winner is assured of an advance order of 50,000 copies for his novel. Britain's Hawthornden and Somerset Maugham prizes carry some weight in literary circles but make scant impact in the bookstores.

To encourage a heightened awareness among the British public, the Publishers' Association plans to release a short list of possible winners some weeks before the final decision. The kind of speculation that goes on in France before the Goncourt award reaps a rich harvest in sales not only for the eventual winner but for the other short-listed novels as well.

Announcing its plans, the association said: "A substantial literary prize should mean that a writer does not need to be censored, imprisoned or labelled outrageous and controversial before hitting the headlines."

PNE TO OPEN ON SUNDAYS

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council Tuesday gave formal permission to the Pacific National Exhibition to stay open Sundays after 1:30 p.m.

The permission was given in a bylaw amendment which had been requested by officials of the annual exhibition.

REJECTED BY CANADA —WINS U.S. MEDAL

ALDERGROVE (CP)—Staff-Sgt. Mike Male, 26, turned down by the Canadian Armed Forces because he wore glasses, has been awarded the Bronze Star for meritorious service with U.S. forces in Vietnam. He has been with the 39th Engineer Battalion Group for almost two years.

INSIDE PEOPLE there can be few secrets with equipment around like St. Joseph's radioisotope scanner. It peeks into solid organs the way X-rays peer into hollow ones. The Drug Caddies, a local organization of pharmaceutical supply men Tuesday gave the hospital a $700 industrial polaroid to record the scanner's findings. In the picture technician John Bouz explains things to Peter Busfield and Bob Kay, right, of the Caddies, in the department of nuclear medicine. (Times photo.)

Before the Magistrate

Kenneth Jolley, 2033 Kendal, who pleaded guilty to failing to file a 1966 income tax return, was fined $200 in central court Tuesday.

Crown prosecutor Cory Stolte, replying to a question from Magistrate J. A. Byers, said the maximum penalty is $10,000. The minimum is $200.

Counsel for Jolley said he didn't think the return had been filed yet as the accused has been sick and is still recuperating. Magistrate Byers said he'd like to see something done about it.

Roosevelt Olsen, 1178 Beach, was fined $300 after pleading guilty to impaired driving. The offence occurred on Oak Bay Avenue May 31.

William Campbell, CFB Esquimalt, was fined $100 after he pleaded guilty to driving while his licence was suspended. He drove on Tyee Road Oct. 18.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Funeral service Thursday at 1:30 p.m. in HAYWARD'S FUNERAL CHAPEL, 734 Broughton St., Mr. F. Steifox officiating. The remains will be forwarded by Air Canada to Calgary for committal service and interment. Supervised parking adjoining the chapel.

PALMER—Max Bayard Palmer, 777 Pemberton Road, Victoria, passed away at his home, Nov. 1, 1968. Born in Maple Creek, Sask., and moved to Calgary at an early age. He was Canadian Trade Commissioner in Germany, Mexico, U.S.A., Trinidad and Jamaica, and retired to Victoria in 1956. Survived by his wife, at home; three daughters, Mrs. Donald Graham, Montreal; Mrs. Flanigan, Montreal; Mrs. Ian Chester, Brisbane, Australia, and a son, Dr. J. S. F. Richards, Vancouver; a brother, Harold Palmer, Enderby, B.C., and several grandchildren.

A memorial service will be conducted by Rev. Canon George Biddle at 3:30 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 9, in St. George The Martyr Church at Cadboro Bay. Cremation.

SALTER—At the Royal Jubilee Hospital on Nov. 6, 1968, Mary Eva, widow of the late Dr. Arthur P. Salter of 1970 Fort Street and formerly of Saskatoon, Sask. Survived by two sons, Arthur William Salter and Robert Laurence Salter, Victoria; also four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral service Friday at 1:30 p.m. in HAYWARD'S FUNERAL CHAPEL, 734 Broughton Street, Canon H. J. Jones officiating. Interment, Royal Oak Burial Park.

SZCZAWINSKI—At St. Joseph's Hospital on Nov. 3, 1968, Mary Margaret, beloved wife of Adam F. Szczawinski. Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Alan, at home; and a brother, Jim McAlpine in Scotland.

Funeral service Thursday at 3:15 p.m. in HAYWARD'S FUNERAL CHAPEL, 734 Broughton St., Rev. Dr. H. W. Kerley officiating. Cremation. Supervised parking adjoining the chapel.

SZCZEPANEK-BARCLAY — Jozef Peter Szczepanek-Barclay, in Victoria on November 1, 1968, fatally injured in a car accident. Born in Poland, he formerly resided in Adelaide, South Australia, becoming an Australian citizen. He leaves his loving wife Zoe.

The Rev. Joe Qualls will conduct the funeral service on Thursday, November 7, 1968, at 11:00 a.m. from Chaplin's Funeral Chapel, followed by cremation.

WAGSTAFF—In Victoria, B.C., on Nov. 6, 1968, Mr. Walter George Wagstaff, aged 90 years; born in Nottingham, England, and a resident of Victoria, B.C., for the past 28 years, late residence, 1523 Hillside Avenue; formerly of Courtenay, B.C. for many years. He leaves his daughter and son-in-law, Patricia and Eric Simmons, 1523 Hillside Avenue; daughter, Mrs. Blanche McIntosh, San Francisco, Calif.; son and daughter-in-law, Norman and Rose Wagstaff, Port Hardy, B.C.; three grandchildren and one great-granddaughter.

Service will be held in the Sands Mortuary Limited, "Memorial Chapel of Chimes," on Saturday, Nov. 9, 1968, at 1 p.m., Rev. Dr. E. H. Lee officiating. Interment in the Royal Oak Burial Park. Flowers gratefully declined. Donations may be made to the B.C. Cancer Fund, Box 202, Victoria, B.C., or to the Heart Fund, 620 View Street, Victoria, B.C.

8 CARD OF THANKS

We sincerely extend thanks and appreciation to friends, neighbors, fellow workers and family members who were so kind and thoughtful during the recent illness and bereavement of our dear husband and father, John Thomas Schlitz. Special thanks to Drs. Giovando and Balchwal and the Nanaimo General and St. Joseph's Hospital staffs, the Island Ambulance Service, Rev. Canon Greenhalgh and Mt. Benson Funeral Home. Mrs. J. Schlitz and family.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to all our many friends and former workmates, for their thoughtful cards and expressions of sympathy during my recent bereavement in the loss of my dear wife, Alyce. Also for the many donations to the Heart Foundation and to the Order of the Eastern Star cancer dressing station.—C. W. Armstong

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to our friends for their many acts of kindness and sympathy during our recent tragic loss.—Mrs. Allan Castley and family.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

You don't often find yourself with a part score of 20. The bidding seldom stops at one club or one diamond. When you have 20 on your side of the ledger, you don't have to pay much attention to it except to bear in mind that three in a major or four in a minor will now give you game.

The advantage of a 4-4 fit in a suit is enough so that the Stayman Convention is in general expert use to find this fit in a major suit after a no-trump opening, but under normal conditions you prefer three no-trump to five-odd in a minor with one of those 4-4 fits.

With 20 on score it becomes common sense to look for minor-suit games since you only need 10 tricks.

South's three-club call represented a common-sense effort to do just that. He had a normal no-trump opening with only 16 high card points, which included three aces and a king. He wanted to go on after his partner raised him to two. At the same time he was looking at a 3-4-2-4 hand pattern and instead of bidding three no-trump, he bid three clubs to suggest a club instead of no-trump contract.

North raised to four clubs and South had no trouble making that contract. He simply timed his play so that he could make a total of six tricks with his trumps. He won the spade lead and played ace and one heart. Later he was able to trump his other two hearts in dummy.

The best South can do at no trump is to make eight tricks. Of course, the defence might slip and give him a ninth, but it is better to have a sure thing going for you.

$42,000
A unique and delightful property that exemplifies the charm of Victoria. A Tudor home plus a Tudor cottage. Heavy hand-split shakes, leaded windows and Tudor styling blend with beautiful landscaping. The exceptional views (from every window); the wharf; the float; the wildlife that visits daily all combines to provide the living pleasure the city is famous for. The home is not large but there are three bedrooms and full basement. There are numerous inclusives (stove, fridge, etc.) and the cottage is furnished (and rented). The bridge, the tall trees and a most unusual oak and arbutus add atmosphere that can only be had by years of growth. Not an old property, but a unique one with a Disneyland flavour. An exclusive listing. Full details and an appointment to view from Mr. Yells, 382-2101, Res. 383-5039.

EASY TO FINANCE
This is better than new. The grounds are like a park and the lot is so long you can even offer some of your land for sale to adjacent property owners. Close-in, just by a small park, near schools and shops this is a fine family home. The living room is so restful with W-W and the kitchen is most modern bright and large. Even the big double-sized range goes with it. Two lovely bedrooms with one leading out a sliding glass door to a wonderful sundeck, all surrounded by a glass wind-break. In the basement is a finished bed-sleeping room, making up to 4 bedrooms. But if you wish, one room, plus another improvised sleeping room, making up to 4 bedrooms. But if you wish, one bedroom upstairs is now used as a lovely TV den, and suits a retired couple. Really Del and I would encourage you to see this. Young couples, let us explain how Crown can take your house in trade on this lovely home. Asking $19,900.

Rescuers Home At Last

COMOX — Eleven Canadian forces rescuers who were stranded for two weeks at a remote lake in northern British Columbia returned home Tuesday.

They were flown by chartered helicopter from Cold Fish Lake, 630 miles north of Vancouver, to Watson Lake, Y.T., and returned here by military aircraft.

"We had adequate food—combat rations—and adequate clothing, but ran out of cigarettes," said Capt J. D. McNeil. "It was very cold at nights."

The saga of Cold Fish Lake began Oct. 19 as a routine mission to pick up the bodies of Merrill Rose and Ralph Hobson, two fliers from Wenatchee, Wash., whose light plane crashed in the lake Oct. 17.

PROP SMASHED

An amphibious Albatross which was sent there smashed a propeller on takeoff. Then a Labrador helicopter, dispatched to rescue the crew and bring out the bodies, crashed.

This left 20 men at the lake with the bodies. The bodies were taken out by light aircraft, and nine military personnel flew to Watson Lake in the Albatross after temporary repairs.

The remaining 11, with Capt. McNeil in charge, remained at Cold Fish Lake awaiting rescue. A second Labrador sent to the lake developed engine trouble.

The men were stranded until a chartered helicopter arrived there Monday and took them to Watson Lake.

Christmas Toy Sites Announced For Deprived

Christmas toys can be donated to underprivileged children at 11 locations in Victoria.

Last year, organizers of the drive, the Saanich Kiwanis Club, collected 600 new and used toys. These were distributed throughout the city to needy children.

Toys are being accepted at the Salvation Army, 521 Johnson; Clark and Pattison, 760 Princess; Hanley Agencies, 3293 Douglas; Hobb's Grocery, 530 Craigflower; Pacific Coast Insurance, 685 Burnside; Matthew's Refrigeration, 2317 Quadra; Norrington's Bakery, 1025 Cook; Belmont firehall, Belmont Park; Tommy's Auto Upholstery, 752 Princess; Walter's Lumber Co. Ltd., 1080 Goldstream; Redmore Carpet, 910 Esquimalt Road.

Saanich Kiwanis president Stan Clark said pickups could be arranged at 384-5241.

Another Youth Sent to Jail In Bastion Theft

NANAIMO (CP) — A 15-year-old New Westminster boy was jailed for nine months definite and nine months indefinite Monday for breaking into the Bastion, an historical landmark, and stealing a $4,000 coin collection.

The boy, and a 14-year-old companion, also from New Westminster, admitted the theft in magistrate's court Oct. 17 after both were raised from juvenile court. The younger boy was sentenced to nine months at that time.

The pair was caught after they checked into a hotel and were heard discussing plans for disposing of the collection.

Veterans Honored At Monday Rites

Arrangements have been completed by the Royal Canadian Legion and the Canadian Armed Forces for Greater Victoria's Remebrance Day ceremonies on Monday.

Separate cenotaph services, each to be conducted at 11 a.m., will be held in Victoria, Esquimalt, Oak Bay, Langford and Sidney.

The largest of the ceremonies will be a joint service at the Victoria cenotaph with groups from Saanich and Victoria participating.

A parade led by Naden Band will march to the cenotaph in front of the Legislative Buildings from Government and Wharf Streets prior to the 11 o'clock ceremony.

The parade commander will be Lt. Cmdr. Leonard Forrest, Fleet School, Esquimalt.

FROM HELIPORT

Marking a change in tradition, the 21-gun memorial salute will be fired by the 5th Base (B.P.) Field Battery from the city's heliport instead of at the Causeway. The salute will start at 11.

At the end of the two-minute period of silence, Herman Bergink will sound a tenor note on the centennial carillon bells in the provincial Museum complex. Following cenotaph services, Mr. Bergink will play a selection of tunes reminiscent of the two world wars.

As the parade marches away from the Buildings, a salute will be taken by Lieutenant-Governor Nicholson, from a dais in front of the Empress Hotel.

The parade will consist of marching platoons of veterans; the Royal Canadian Navy; the 1st Battalion Queen's Own Rifles; Victoria militia units; the Victoria city police, and militia cadet organizations.

A Canadian Armed Forces wreath will be laid at the Victoria cenotaph by Rear Admiral John A. Charles, Commander Maritime Forces Pacific. His representatives will lay wreaths at other cenotaph ceremonies in the area.

Commodore R. V. Henning, Commander of HMC Dockyard, will lay a wreath at the Esquimalt ceremony; Captain F. C. Frewer, Commander Canadian Forces Base Esquimalt, will be at the Oak Bay ceremony; Lieutenant-Colonel K. O. Moore, senior staff operations officer will attend the Langford ceremony; and Lieutenant Robert Spicer, air engineering officer, will be at Sidney.

On Sunday the Royal Canadian Legion will conduct its annual Greater Victoria Remembrance Day memorial service at St. John's Anglican Church. The lesson at this service will be read by Lieutenant-Governor Nicholson.

VIET CONG BLOW UP MAJOR SPAN

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong guerrillas today blew out the two central spans of the 1,000-foot Phu Cuong Bridge, the biggest permanent span built by United States engineers in South Vietnam.

A military spokesman said frogmen evidently floated a massive charge beneath the heavily-guarded bridge just before dawn.

The bridge, 18 miles north of Saigon, was one of the busiest in South Vietnam, handling supply traffic for two U.S. divisions northwest of the capital.

Masked Men Rob Train

HOME GARDEN

Frost Disguised Blessing

By HILDA BEASTALL

Overnight frost which visited most sections of Greater Victoria areas at the weekend will be a blessing to gardeners. The blessing may be disguised by blackened foliage and wilted flower stems but these same conditions will force the decision to do something about our frost-tender plants.

Hilda

Procrastinators that we are, we have so far neglected to do anything about dahlias, fuchsias, geraniums and a number of the tougher bedding annuals. They still had flowers and green leaves, so we left them.

Now frost has made the decision easier.

Methods for winter storage of all these plants, apart from bedding annuals which are discarded, have been fully explained in these columns recently.

The work of cleaning up is now much simpler, since all that is necessary with dahlias is to cut off growth a couple of inches above soil level before digging the tubers.

Put all this material on the compost heap instead of burning.

The good soil it will make is needed in the ground next spring when planting again.

Before lifting dahlia tubers, or geranium and fuchsia plants, be sure to attach a legible tag securely, bearing variety name if known or at least the color.

Information on height, time of flowering and any other features important to the care of the plant, will be useful next year if written into a garden notebook.

Where no suitably cool and light storage space for these plants is available, the gardener must make the further decision whether to purchase new plants each spring, or choose reliably hardy plants to give comparable results.

Frequently this latter decision opens up an entirely new interest in gardening, since it brings more leisure to enjoy results.

Heartburn Answers Provided

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Heartburn is supposed to be due to extra acidity in the stomach, but this is not the answer. For instance, years ago when I made a special study of many people with heartburn, I had my stomach pumped out, and I had twice the normal amount of acid—and yet — very rarely felt any heartburn. Also, one can have heartburn without any acid at all in the stomach, which proves acid is not the only factor. I have found many sufferers from heartburn with no acid in their stomachs. This has been reported by several authorities.

Alvares

Some able men, like Dr. A. M. Babey, in 1937, injected acid gastric contents, or sometimes strong solutions of hydrochloric acid into the gullet, and often the people felt nothing. Also, I have known people who had inherited a tendency to regurgitate part of almost every meal they ate; they had acid in their gastric juice, but they rarely had any heartburn. One of these women suffered heartburn only during one out of her four pregnancies, when her tendency to regurgitate was exaggerated. Many a time I have regurgitated enough food so that it came up into my mouth, but I suffered no burning. Evidently at that time my stomach and my gullet could not feel hydrochloric acid.

There is good evidence obtained by research workers that in order for a person to feel acid in his gullet, its lining must first be made irritable in some way.

When in 1944 I made a study of 123 patients who came to me complaining of heartburn, I asked them to show me with their hands where the burning was, and they all put their hands first on the pit of their stomachs and then moved them up over the fronts of their chests, sometimes up to their necks. This showed that they felt the burning going up their gullets (the tube that runs from the throat to the stomach). That movement of the hand up the breast bone is diagnostic of heartburn. If the patient leaves his hand over the pit of his stomach, that practically always means his trouble is purely nervous in origin, and is probably in the nerves of the skin. I have never seen such burning relieved by an abdominal operation.

Upon asking people what caused their heartburn, some said, "I inherited the tendency." One eminent doctor said he, his five brothers and his father all had it. Other patients said, "I have terrible heartburn for several days if I lose my temper and 'blow my stack,' or if I get much worried about something." Some said, "I get heartburn if I eat too big a meal, or if I eat certain foods, or drink certain liquors or smoke too much of a certain tobacco."

Some research workers found sometimes they could produce heartburn by quickly distending a tiny balloon in the gullet, and some sufferers from hearburn said what they felt was a rending feeling.

★ ★ ★

If many of us only thought a minute, we would see how essential it is to health and comfort that we rarely can feel the acid juice normally present in our stomachs. If we could feel it, we would be in pain most of the time. Oftentimes, I have felt some heartburn when reverse waves were running up my digestive tract to produce some regurgitation and belching. When a pregnant woman has the waves in her bowel reversed by her growing womb, she can have weeks of heartburn.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

French Interference Began in Early Days

By BOB BOWMAN

When Britain got Canada in 1763, French statesman Voltaire gave huge party to celebrate "the deliveranve from a vast stretch of frozen country." It was a case of sour grapes because France made several efforts to regain Canada.

Bowman

Prime Minister Trudeau's recent exposure of Philippe Rossillon as a French agent who had been stirring up trouble in Quebec and Manitoba since 1956 was not the first time that French agents have been active in Canada.

The most notorious was "Citizen Genet" who was sent to North America in 1793 to try to get the U.S. to support France in a war against Britain, and also to stir up trouble in Canada. George Washington did not like his attitude or activities and sent him back to France. The story is well worth reading in light of recent developments.

When Britain got Canada in 1763, it was realized that the vast area, although unexplored, provided access to three oceans: the Atlantic, Pacific, and the Arctic. Captain Cook, who had guided Wolfe's armada up the St. Lawrence, was sent to explore the Pacific coast by sailing around South America.

EIGHT WIVES

Samuel Hearne, a young employee of the Hudson's Bay Company, was asked to find a route to the Arctic. He left Fort Prince of Wales (now Churchill, Manitoba) Nov. 6, 1769, but had to make two more efforts before he got to the mouth of the Coppermine River in 1771.

Hearne's successful trip was made possible by a remarkable Indian, Matonabbee, who took along eight wives to carry heavy loads and work around the camps. During the trip that lasted two and a half years Hearne discovered Great Slave Lake.

Canadian historian George M. Wrong wrote: "Stanley in Africa is more famous, but he did not face greater labors on dangers than Hearne faced. He charted a huge territory, and was the first to show the trend of the Arctic shore."

Other events Nov. 6:

[illegible] France occupied Placentia, Newfoundland.

1763 no person over 21 years of age was allowed to leave Canada without a pass.

1837 Lower Canada rebellion led to riots in Montreal.

1860 L. B. Vaughan struck oil at Petrolia, Ont.

1867 Canada's first parliament opened after Confederation members were paid six dollars per day.

1917 Canadian troops captured Passchendaele Ridge.

1919 judicial report issued on Winnipeg general strike.

1933 CNR put oil-electric locomotive in service between Saint John and Moncton, N.B.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Beverly Graves, age 13, of Cross Plains, Tennessee, for her question:

What is a grosbeak?

His name means Fat-Beak, and you would expect to find him in the bird world where beaks of all sorts are always in style. Actually the grosbeak is a pretty finch bird. His gaudy red cousin, the cardinal, has the same kind of beak and some people call him a grosbeak also.

A duck uses her flat beak to dribble in the mud. The heron uses his long, thin beak like a pair of chopsticks to pick up fish and passing frogs. The shape of a bird's beak tells a lot about how he finds his food. The grosbeak has a short, very strong beak shaped like a stubby cone. It is fine for grabbing tough-skinned beetles and cracking seeds. He also uses it to grab helpings of soft caterpillars and soft, juicy fruits. His pretty plumage is also quite remarkable and like his cousins, the finches, he is a sweet-sounding songbird.

The colorful dressers of the bird world usually are the males. Most females wear quiet tones of brown and grey. There are several grosbeaks and, true to this rule, the males are more gaudy than the females. Grosbeaks are almost as large as robins and they feel most at home in leafy shrubs and trees. Several types visit North America for the summer and stay long enough to bring up families of young grosbeaks. They spend the winter in South America and return to us the following spring.

The so-called evening grosbeak flies north to Canada and also settles in our Western Mountains as far south as Arizona. The handsome father bird has a yellow body with black and white wings and his sturdy beak is white. He was named the evening grosbeak because people thought he sang only at sundown. Bird watchers now claim that he sings more often. The black-headed grosbeak wears a black cap and jacket with a bright orange-brown vest. He summers in the west. The blue grosbeak summers in the southern United States and the grey and red pine grosbeak favors the piney woods of Canada.

Eats Potato Bugs

Our favorite members of the family is the rose-breasted grosbeak. He brings his wife to spend the summer in the northeastern states. The handsome poppa bird wears a shiny black cap and jacket with snowy white plumage on his chest and under his tail. His striking black and white outfit is set off by a vivid red pointed bib under his chin. Mrs. Red-Breasted Grosbeak wears a drab-looking outfit speckled with yellowish browns. Farmers welcome these grosbeaks and call them the potato-bug birds. This is because they are very fond of potato beetles. All the grosbeaks are welcome visitors because they remove caterpillars and other insect pests from our crops and feed them to their growing children.

Grosbeaks build rather shabby nests, often as high as 20 feet up in the boughs. Their favorite building material is rootlets. The eggs, as a rule, are pale blue and speckled with brown. There may be three, four or five of them in the nest and the young birds are ready to fly away after a few weeks. The parents have time to bring up a second and sometimes a third brood before the summer ends and the time comes to fly south.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Dennis Mahoney, age 12, of Rensselaer, New York, for his question:

What exactly are air plants

Some people mistake the air plants for parasites, such as mistletoe, that draw their food supplies from other plants. This notion is unfair because the true air plants use their hosts only as step ladders. Most of them live in dense forests and crowded jungles where air and light is screened from the lower vegetation by high canopies of dense foliage. They are smallish plants and in order to get their quota of air and sunlight they must perch on the shoulders of taller plants. Botanists classify them as "epiphytes," a term meaning "on a plant."

Many mosses and lichens that seem to be sprouting from the trunks of trees in our wet north woods are classified as epiphytes. They perch themselves above the ground to get a fair share of light and moist air. The most glamorous air plants thrive in tropical jungles, adding their brilliant blossoms to the foliage of the high trees. Many of them are varieties of bromeliad plants. And the majority of the world's glamorous orchids are epiphyte air plants. Certain cactuses, ferns and liverworts also perch themselves on taller plants and live epiphyte lives.

Pulp Workers Vote to Strike But Urge Talks

GOLD RIVER—A labor showdown is looming here which could put 5,000 pulp workers across the province out of work.

Workers at the Tahsis Co. pulp mill voted 244 to 28 Tuesday to strike if necessary to back contract demands.

Employers have indicated a strike at Gold River could produce a lockout at six other B.C. mills where labor is also represented by the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

STRIKE

The union said Tuesday it has invited employers to continue negotiations and no steps would be taken towards a strike until next Monday when the invitation expires.

Don Lanskail, spokesman for the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau, said in Vancouver this morning employers haven't received the invitation yet.

INDUSTRY-WIDE

The bureau bargains for employers on an industry-wide basis and mills have a "united we stand" policy which says a strike against one is a strike against all.

Other mills which could be affected are at Crofton, Harmac, Prince Rupert, Castelgar and Prince George.

All but Gold River pulp workers have accepted or taken no position on a memorandum of agreement offering a new two-year contract with pay raises of 36 cents an hour.

$90 EXTRA

Employees here want additional travel and cost-of-living allowances which they argue are justified by isolation, bad roads and high costs.

The bureau says employers do not intend to give "special terms" to Gold River men and consider the agreement industry-wide. Mr. Lanskail says the extra allowances come close to $90 a month.

Current base rate under a contract which expired July 1 but remains in force is $2.84 an hour.

DOUGLAS
. . . "infringement"

Election Delay 'Inexcusable'

NDP national leader Tommy Douglas says the setting of February 10 for a byelection leaves Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands federal constituency without representation in the Commons for "an inexcusably long time".

Mr. Douglas said the delay is "an infringement of the democratic right to representation in Ottawa."

He added that he was pleased the prime minister "has finally made up his mind to call the byelection."

The byelection was made necessary by the death last summer of NDP member Colin Cameron.

Mr. Douglas has been named candidate for the NDP party. Former magistrate Eric Winch has been noninated for the Liberals.

The Progressive Conservative Party will name its candidate at a nominating convention in Nanaimo Dec. 7.

"I personally welcome the opportunity to meet several thousand more people before the election," Mr. Douglas said, "but I regret the delay."

35 DAYS NEEDED

Mr. Douglas said only 35 days is required for a byelection following the appointment of enumerators. The Feb. 10 election means a wait of 97 days.

In Ottawa NDP parliamentary leader Davis Lewis accused Prime Minister Trudeau of not announcing a byelection date earlier for "purely partisan considerations."

He said leaving the riding without representation for seven months is "inexcusable and unfair."

The vote in the Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands will be the first since the Liberal government was re-elected June 25.

Mr. Douglas, 64, suffered a surprise personal defeat last June in the riding of Burnaby-Seymour. He has been campaigning in Nanaimo-Cowichan The-Islands since winning the NDP nomination Sept. 9.

Notoriety 'Surprises, Saddens' Principal

By ALAN WHITE

"There has been a lot of notoriety about my school in Campbell River," principal John Young told a group of Victoria librarians Tuesday night.

"This has been a surprise to me . . . and it fills me with a certain sadness."

But if other schools in the province — in fact, in Canada — were doing their jobs of educating children properly, there would be no publicity, he said. No one would notice anything different about Campbell River senior secondary.

As the education system stands, however, the school has come in for the excited and speculative attention of the written medium.

Mr. Young was speaking to the annual dinner of the Institute of Victoria Librarians for his latest tilt at the windmill of learning, in the faculty centre of the University of Victoria.

True to the reputation he has had since he took over the school three years ago, he continued his prodding at what he called the failures of the education system for nearly two hours.

Schools have improved over the last 30 or 40 years, he said. But they haven't changed.

In a free-wheeling talk with examples and statistics picked at random, he told the librarians how the emphasis in education is the wrong way around.

●

Schools are still teaching students — but they should be stressing learning, and finding ways that are new.

The attention paid to his experiments in Campbell River only points to the shorgage of new views on educating, Mr. Young said.

School buildings show they are places for teaching—boxed rooms with rows of desks, a blackboard and "maybe a National Geographic picture on the wall."

What they are not is student-oriented centres for learning, he said.

"I don't think of myself as radical or revolutionary—I think of other teachers as conservative.

"Now the schools are all for teaching—desks all in a row. They are no place to go and learn and the child is not the focus of the school."

●

Students are expected to copy notes from the blackboard and "spew them back on a little test."

"Many teachers are hard-pressed to keep up with assignments, with groups of students coming in every 50 minutes.

"The system has thought of students as groups. It works with them in groups and forces each one to do the work in the same time as the others.

"It is wrong to group students and treat them in the same way. They should be allowed to go through at their own rate.

"We shouldn't expect the children to fit the school," Mr. Young said.

And the alternative?

YOUNG
. . . students respond

At Campbell River, he is trying to run the school in the interests of the students, he said.

If a student cannot complete his work in a certain time he should be given more time.

"Schools are not organized according to the way children learn. Sometimes I think education is verboten.

"We train them, but we don't educate them."

●

In his own school the students come to class or don't come to class, according to what they want. They study at their own rate and are tested when they think they are ready.

The school is open at night and students can work in the library unsupervised. They take out books on an honor system.

Such trust in the student has been of benefit to the school—the losses of books from the library dropped when the honor system was introduced.

"Basically, most students are decent and I think this is probably part of the reason for the success of the school."

No longer do his students come to classes responding "like Pavlov's dogs." They have responded to the chance to do independent studying and independent learning.

They are allowed to progress at their own rate so they can get an education, rather than dropping out of school, he said.

"By eliminating all petty rules and regulations, we have eliminated all sources of friction between student and teacher.

"I spend no time at all on discipline, at my school."

In three years, he said he has only had to deal with one student discipline problem.

Another sign of apparent success was the increase in attendance rates that followed the shift of responsibilities to the students.

●

Many of them cut a class to spend time in the library—which has study facilities for about 80 students at a time.

"About 90 per cent of the students attend 90 per cent of their classes 90 per cent of the time," he said.

"If the student has any sensitivity at all . . . he perceives he is trusted in the school," Mr. Young said.

Harmac Mill To Cut Odor

HARMAC — MacMillan and Bloedel will spend $1,708,000 on pollution controls at the Harmac pulp division during the next two years, Donald Blake, divisional manager, said today.

Another $113,000 will be spent on improving methods of controlling air and water discharge from the mill, he said.

A modern, high-frequency electrostatic precipitator will be installed and is scheduled to go into operation early in 1970.

Mr. Blake also said a major addition is planned to the oxidation capacity of the Harmac plant which will reduce the odor from the mill.

Mother Fears For Family As Horse Shot

DUNCAN — Careless hunters are making life miserable for families on the outskirts of Duncan.

Mrs. Reg Pywell, of Marshall Road in the Glenora district, said today she won't let her seven-year-old son play outside their yard since their little mare was killed recently.

The RCMP are investigating the shooting of the horse which belonged to Nelda Pywell, 15.

"The horse was shot at night and we didn't find it till next day, Mrs. Pywell said.

'WHO ELSE?'

"It was lying inside our own fence. I'm really leary about letting our kids play near the woods anymore. It must have been a hunter, who else would shoot a horse?"

A four-year-old miniature Shetland belonging to John Sidwick of River Bottom Road also wick of Rivergottom roda also was reported shot.

Dr. R. F. Abernethy, veterinary surgeon, said he treated the Sidwick horse for a wound that "looked like a bullet grazed it."

The horse recovered.

61 Million Feet Of Lumber Sent From Chemainus

CHEMAINUS — A total of about 61,000,000 board feet of lumber was exported aboard 33 vessels during October, a customs and excise official said today.

The port of Chemainus — which also includes Crofton and Ladysmith — shipped nearly 25,50,000 board feet of lumber to Japan and United States bought nearly 12,750,000 board feet.

In addition, Japan bought 11,857,000 board feet of logs while the U.S. took 2,340,000 board feet.

A total of 12,400 tons of pulp, 7,000 tons of newsprint, 1,600 tons of plywood and 150 tons of roofing felt also was shipped.

Students Ready To Repeat Sit-Ins At Faculty Talks

By ALAN WHITE

Students who walked uninvited into a faculty meeting at the University of Victoria Tuesday said they would do it again.

Jeff Green, a member of the students' council, told Dean Jean-Paul Vinay and other faculty members they will continue sitting in on the meetings if not asked to attend.

The 150 students were asked three times by Dean Vinay to leave. They refused.

The meeting had been called in the Elliott Building for a closed discussion of prerequisite courses by members of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences.

Mr. Green told Dean Vinay the students objected to closed meetings and believed the sit-in the only way they could force their demands.

'RATIONAL PROCESS'

At that, all but a few professors stood and walked out of the room.

Robert Wallace, acting president of the university, had said just before he entered the meeting the students were "trying to interrupt a rational process of orderly discussion."

He said he had spoken without any luck to leaders of the student delegation about calling off their protest.

"They won't listen to me," he said, echoing the remarks of several other professors.

The students' action had been planned for several days, but was announced only Tuesday morning when handbills were passed out on campus and posted on noticeboards and doorways.

LECTURE INTERRUPTED

A lecture was still under way in the room when the first students began to arrive. When it ended, the group filed in over a period of 15 minutes.

Several professors appeared before the meeting time of 12:30 and waited in the foyer before entering the meeting.

Most of the 60 faculty members vacated their seats when the students refused to leave.

The specific complaint was the fact the meeting was closed — students demanded they be allowed to sit in and participate.

When Dean Vinay told them a senate subcommittee already existed to hear their suggestions in open meetings, they indicated this was not enough.

In a student session after the departure of professors, one complained the subcommittees investigating changes to the system were "artificially separated" and that he could not get across to them what he wanted.

BOYCOTT PROPOSED

The students remained for nearly two hours discussing the changes they want and the best ways to bring them about.

One suggested a one-day boycott of required courses in one department.

The students said they should have parity on university committees with professional staff. This would give them some power to obstruct "arbitrary decisions" made by departments against students or staff.

Some of their disenchantment was indicated in the handbill spread about the campus during the morning.

Outlining the points to be discussed in the faculty meeting, it concluded:

"This is a closed meeting and students are not allowed to go. But students are going because they think it's about time they had a say in the decision affecting their environment."

During the meeting, four-page flyers containing proposals and demands printed by the Simon Fraser Student Society were handed out to the 100 students remaining.

Among demands made by the sheet were complete parity with faculty on the university senate and advisory committees; adoption of a pass-fail marking system with "social self-criticism" evaluation eventually replacing it; parity in decision made in departments by collective agreement between faculty and separate student unions; parity in choosing the department chairmen, deans and the university president.

Bennett Rapped In Slander Appeal

OTTAWA (CP) — Vancouver lawyer Tom Berger argued Tuesday that Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia had "no honest belief" that the former head of the province's purchasing commission was unfit for office.

Berger was appearing before the Supreme Court of Canada on behalf of George Jones, removed from the commission by an act of the British Columbia legislature in 1965.

Jones is asking the Supreme Court of Canada to reinstate a trial judge's finding that he was slandered by Bennett in remarks the premier made about him in a speech before the Social Credit Association in Victoria that year.

He was awarded $15,000 in damages at trial but the award was thrown out by the B.C. Court of Appeal.

Bennett's government introduced the bill ousting Jones from his job after charges were laid against Jones that he accepted benefits from persons doing business with the government.

He was later acquitted of the charges.

Berger said the controversy over the firing of Jones was the single most important political issue to come before the provincial legislature in 1965.

DEFAMATORY MEANING

Because of the politically-charged atmosphere, Bennett's remarks about Jones not only had a defamatory meaning but could be interpreted only that way.

He said the words carried the "unmistakable impression that the reason for removal from office of Mr. Jones was discreditable to Mr. Jones."

Berger said that never had the premier offered any reasons for Jones being removed fom his office.

"The fact that he never offered any grounds for his belief in the truth of the words he used, and that when asked by Mr. Berger he was unable to give any grounds, justifies the inference that he had no grounds and therefore no honest belief in what he said," declared Berger.

Chief Justice J. R. Cartwright asked both lawyers to argue whether Bennett was protected by the law of qualified privilege. He said while this was conceded by both lawyers in the appeal court, it was still open to question here.

While a person may be protected from legal action by reason of his remarks at meetings such as the one attended by Bennett, the chief justice said the fact that Bennett knew newspaper reporters were there to "broadcast his words" may make a difference.

John J. Robinette of Toronto, appearing for Bennett, said Jones's suit was based on remarks made to the 200 persons present in Victoria for his speech.

It had nothing to do with the reports printed later in newspapers.

He said Bennett had been reporting to party members on the conduct of his government in the legislature and was therefore protected by the law of privilege.

He also said that the bill ousting Jones made provisions for him to be paid for a number of months after the bill became law. It also gave him the option of collecting his pension contributions in one lump sum or of drawing a pension instead.

Strikers Cause Heavy Damage

WINDSOR, Que. (CP) — Domtar Pulp and Paper Ltd. says striking employees who took over its Windsor mill for 26 hours caused damage estimated at $100,000.

Raymond Pinard, general manager of Domtar's kraft and boxboard division, said in an interview Tuesday night that the strikers, some armed with rifles, broke into foremen's offices and smashed typewriters and calculating machines during the occupation that ended Monday night.

"Other office machines and desk drawers were thrown into the river. Two clocks were smashed with rifle bullets — you can see the bullet holes.

"Many control instruments and control panels were damaged. They cut the felts and the wires on the paper machines. They also broke precision instruments in the laboratories."

Windows, vending machines and scales were also on the damaged list.

Mr. Pinard said he inspected the mill, along with a photographer and two Windsor policemen, after the strikers ended their occupation to march on the legislature in Quebec City.

"We are considering, with our lawyers, the appropriate steps to take."

The 1,200 employees of Domtar kraft and boxboard mills in the Eastern Townships communities of Windsor and East Angus have been on strike for higher pay since July 18.

Talks in Quebec City under a government conciliator were broken off last Friday over what Domtar described as "intimidation of security personnel and plant foremen" by strikers. The company said it would resume negotiations when the union "decides to respect law and order."

Labor Minister Maurice Bellemare told the legislature Tuesday, while about 200 strikers paraded outside, that he hopes talks in the Domtar dispute will resume shortly.

Meanwhile, the National Union of Pulp and Paper Workers, a Confederation of National Trade Unions affiliate which represents the Domtar employees, announced that strike pay of $45 a week for married strikers and $30 a week for single persons will be paid starting next week.

Mayor Wants Staffs On the Job Dec .27

Municipal employees will work Dec. 27 if Greater Victoria area mayors have their way.

The chief magistrates of Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and Central Saanich left no doubt that they wanted their staffs on deck the day following Boxing Day.

Provincial government and University of Victoria employees get the extra day holiday tossed in to give them a five day Christmas break.

S. T. Fitzpatrick, personnel director for Victoria, advised the intermunicipal committee to do the same.

He stated in a written report to the committee that although the cost of the one-day holiday would be high, so would the rate of absenteeism if December 27 was declared a work day.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said he hadn't discussed the matter with his council but that he leaned towards a work day.

"A five-day closure of the municipal hall is a long break," he said. "We have to remember that the people paying the taxes will not be able to take five days off."

Oak Bay Mayor Fred Hawes agreed.

"We are opposed to the idea of the extra holiday," he said. "It closes the municipal hall for too long a period."

Pollution War Set In Michigan, Illinois

WASHINGTON (AP) — Voters in five states Tuesday authorized spending a total of more than $2,500,000,000 on pollution control, veterans and education.

But a liquor-by-the-drink proposal failed in the face of strong Mormon opposition in semi-dry Utah. Nevada, where gambling is a major industry, rejected a private lottery. Nebraska rejected a proposal to lower the voting age to 19 from 21.

The issues highlighted local referenda that appeared on the ballots of three-fourths of the states Tuesday. Most were money issues.

The biggest financial proposal was in Illinois, where a measure providing $1 billion for air and water pollution control appeared headed for approval.

New Jersey approved its biggest money proposal in history —$990 million for education, low-cost housing and transportation. Michigan's largest bond issue ever passed provides $335 million for a 10-year battle against water pollution.

VET BONUSES

In Pennsylvania, a plan to give Vietnam war veterans cash bonuses of up to $750 won overwhelming approal. It was the first time the state's citizens had voted on such a bonus during a war.

The Utah liquor referendum ended a hassle that stole campaign attention for Vietnam and the presidential race. The Mormon church, which considers drinking a sin, battled the measure's sponsors, who said the state needed over-the-bar liquor to attract tourists and conventions.

Nevada voters rejected a constitutional amendment to permit a priate lottery, which would have handed 30 per cent of the profits to the state.

Streamlining Of Grants Approved

The Greater Victoria intermunicipal council agreed Tuesday to streamline its grant procedures.

The decision was made after Victoria's treasurer James Bramley listed some of the problems facing his staff under the existing system which has all shareable grants forwarded by a variety of cheques.

"The organization or group receiving the money receives anywhere from one to seven cheques, calculated in various ways and sometimes sent to different locations," Mr. Bramley said.

Mr. Bramley suggested that in future, after the intermunicipal group reports that its councils are in favor of a grant being made, the total amount be sent out by the city of Victoria which in turn will beill the participating municipalities for the amount pledged.

"It would certainly end a lot of confusion," commented Mayor Hugh Curtis.

GRANT TURNED DOWN

The committee agreed to the streamlined procedure and asked Mr. Bramley and other municipal treasurers to work out the details.

But that didn't mean that members were in a granting mood.

An application for close to $1,000 from the Federation of Music Teachers' Association was rejected by the committee.

The association was asking the grant to pay for a banquet and other expenses during the 17th biennial convention scheduled for July 1969.

"Again it is a matter of feeling sympathetic but having to decide where we distinguish between this type of convention and others," said Mayor Hugh Stephen.

City Sailor To Be Cited For Bravery

A young Esquimalt sailor will receive a commendation for brave conduct Friday morning aboard HMCS Yukon in the dockyard.

Able Seaman W. E. French, 21, will receive the citation from Rear Admiral John A. Charles.

Able Seaman French is credited with helping to restrain a man from taking his own life on the Dartmouth Bridge in Halifax Sept. 9, 1967.

The ceremony Friday will involve the CFB Esquimalt band and a 48-man guard.

City Marine Pilot To Attend Meet

Capt. Anthony Appleyard, Victoria marine pilot, will attend the annual meeting of the association of Canadian Marine Pilots at the Skyline Hotel in Ottawa Nov. 12.

The initial meeting will be followed by a two-day seminar on part one of the report of the Royal Commission on Pilotage.

In addition to Capt. Appleyard, four other B.C. pilots — three from Vancouver and one from New Westminster — will attend the conference.

Thief Selective

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police said Tuesday that a thief who took $1,000 in gold and silver coins from a downtown store knew his coins. The man concentrated on one section of the display after forcing the door of the Stamp and Coin Shop and left less valuable coins alone.

Late Returns Break Presidential Stalemate

'Don't Want Sympathy', Says Hubert

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey, his voice choking with emotion, conceded the United States presidential election today to Richard M. Nixon.

"I've done my best," he said. "I've lost. Mr. Nixon has won. The democratic process has worked its will so let's get on with the urgent task of uniting this country."

Humphrey spoke to several hundred cheering admirers at his hotel headquarters.

Earlier, Humphrey had placed a telephone call to Nixon, the Republican winner.

He turned to friends in his hotel suite and said: "I don't want any sympathy from any of you."

These developments were reported to reporters by the vice-president's press secretary, Norman Sherman, who said Humphrey later would deliver a statement in person.

Sherman would not say himself that Humphrey was conceding. But the phone call to Nixon and the comment to friends made it clear that Humphrey was admitting defeat in the long, arduous struggle that began 100,000 miles and more than six months ago.

Sherman said Humphrey would return to his home on Lake Wagerly, 40 miles away, and then go on vacation.

If he had won, Humphrey planned to go to the Virgin Islands. His plans in defeat remained uncertain.

At Humphrey headquarters there was quiet depression but no visible grief or tears among those who had helped their 57-year-old boss make the greatest political challenge of his life.

People began planning their returns to Washington and a quieter life than they had the last six months.

Popular Vote Contest Still Very Close

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Republican Richard M. Nixon, 55, capped a political resurrection today as late returns assured him the U.S. presidency he was denied by a handful of votes eight years ago.

In the closest and most dramatic election of modern times he won at least 290 electoral college votes, needing only 270 to win.

In popular voting, however, Hubert Humphrey held a narrow lead at press time this afternoon.

Results with 92 per cent of the vote counted:

		Electoral Votes
Humphrey	29,201,188 — 43 per cent	203
Nixon	29,198,105 — 43 per cent	290
G. Wallace	9,066,975 — 13 per cent	45

Even if Humphrey's vote lead held up it would not affect Nixon's victory in the all-important electoral college.

George Wallace, 49, the white-supremist third-party force from Alabama, played a powerful spoiler role that threatened to prevent a clear-cut verdict until late returns in Illinois put Nixon over the top.

Final votes were still awaited from Alaska, Maryland, Missouri and Washington State but they could not affect Nixon's victory.

In Minneapolis, Minn., Humphrey apparently conceded victory to Nixon when he placed a telephone call to his Republican rival.

Turning to friends in his hotel suite, Humphrey said: "I don't want any sympathy from any of you."

Nixon's delayed victory, at the end of a long, costly, turbulent and sometimes-tragic campaign, came despite frustrations that recalled his narrow loss in 1960 to John F. Kennedy.

That defeat, coupled with failure to win the California governorship in 1962, relegated Nixon to the political scrap heap, many concluded.

But the man who had made his reputation as a hard-nosed anti-Communist in the early 1950s was a party loyalist in the Republican debacle of 1964, when Johnson trounced Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

ELECTION STORIES 2, 9, 13

Nixon Glued His Party

When 1968 rolled round, Nixon more than any other senior Republican had helped glue the party back together and his presidential nomination in Miami Beach in August was repayment from the party professionals.

He campaigned as the obvious front-runner, but a hard-fighting Humphrey managed to rally enough members of the dissent-ridden Democrats to make it close at the end.

The delay in Illinois was caused by the disappearance of more than 1,000 precinct totals.

Nixon was reversing his razor-thin loss to John F. Kennedy in 1960 by outscrambling Humphrey.

In popular votes Nixon and Humphrey were in a virtual tie. But as the morning wore on, Nixon's electoral vote count surged comfortably ahead of Lyndon B. Johnson's vice-president.

The Nixon gap had narrowed slowly today hours after heavy voting had ended. CBS, ABC and NBC said he had won.

But the prolonged battle to succeed President Johnson as the 37th president remained in doubt. Humphrey trailed with 172 electoral votes.

Early returns had threatened to delay a decision until Dec. 16 and perhaps until the new 91st Congress—still under Democratic party control—could tackle the deadlock Jan. 6.

Re-Run of Kennedy Race

For Nixon the former vice-president, it was a rerun in many respects of his paper-thin loss in 1960 to John F. Kennedy.

The results in the major states of Illinois, California and Ohio controlled the outcome.

The magic number required to put either man over the top was 270 of the 538 Electoral College votes.

Americans voting for a president actually choose slates of persons by state who comprise the college. These slates normally support the candidate getting the most votes in each state.

In cut-and-dried presidential contests, the electors meet in state capitals Dec. 16 as a formality.

'Ignominious Defeat' Charge Irks Wallace

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — It began as a one man adventure and at the end George C. Wallace seemed terribly alone.

He sat in a beige leather chair opposite the large brick fireplace in his panelled den, almost oblivious to the few around him, and watched the results of his long U.S. presidential election ordeal flicker on the color television screen.

"I've got a good popular vote," he said. "It's all right. It's all right."

He finally napped on the floor between the folds of a thick quilt, to be awakened when it was time to go to the huge coliseum where a disappointingly small crowd of followers awaited him.

His staff was at a motel across from the arena waiting for him. His running mate, Curtis E. LeMay, was watiing there too, and Wallace talked to him once by phone early in the evening. He talked twice by phone to a top assistant, Cecil Jackson, but both calls were incoming and apart from them his staff did not bother him.

DIDN'T AGREE

At one point, a television commentator remarked that Wallace had "gone down to ignominious defeat." He made the remark when 17 per cent of the vote was in and Wallace's total was 3,436,000. Wallace bristled.

"A deep Southerner getting that many votes is not ignominious," he said.

He said it looked as though he would get 10,000,000 votes in all.

"I think 10,000,000 would be a mighty good vote, he said.

"A third party movement from the Deep South—why that would be fantastic."

Wallace seemed genuinely unshaken by the number of states he won.

He rarely revealed disappointment.

At one point, he said: "Maybe we should have concentrated more in the border states and the South—but we didn't want it to be a sectional movement."

At length, he could delay his trip to the Coliseum no longer. His speech there was brief. He introduced his family, his staff and his running mate.

Open to New Ideas—Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Richard M. Nixon, wearing a broad victory smile, thanked his campaign workers today and said he hoped "we'll be worthy."

Nixon praised his defeated opponent for the United States presidency, Hubert T. Humphrey, saying: "He never gave up."

He said that in a telephone conversation with Humphrey he had told the current democratic vice-president: "I know how it is to lose a close one."

Nixon said his would be "an open administration, open to new ideas."

"We want to bridge the generation gap," the president-elect continued, saying he was confident about that task.

Nixon said he and his family plan to go to Key Biscayne, Fla., but en route would stop in Washington to visit former president Dwight D. Eisenhower, who is in Walter Reed Hospital.

He said that he looks forward "in the next administration to having a relationship with former president Johnson such as President Eisenhower has had with him (Johnson)."

Nixon remained up getting election returns until 7:30 a.m., when he retired for what was described as a 90-minute rest. In the morning, he visited with members of his family in his Manhattan hotel suite, then went back to checking returns.

LBJ Pledges Smooth Changeover

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — President Johnson today wired president-elect Richard Nixon his congratulations on winning the election and promised to do everything in his power to make his burdens lighter when he takes over the White House.

"I hope our people will now turn from the devisive contentions of the political campaign to a united search for peace and justice." he said.

"You can be certain that I shall do everything in my power to make your burdens lighter on the day when you assume the responsibilities of the President."

U.S. Breaks Agreement On Talks, Hanoi Charges

PARIS (Reuters) — North Vietnam accused the United States today of breaking its promise of an enlarged Vietnam peace conference.

A statement issued by the Hanoi delegation spokesman said the U.S. and the "Saigon administration" must bear full responsibility for the failure to hold an enlarged meeting today as scheduled.

The statement said the U.S. had told the Hanoi delegation in a communication Tuesday that in view of the absence of the representatives of the Saigon government, today's scheduled first meeting of the four-sided conference would not be held.

"Thus the United States side did not implement its agreements and pledges with the representatives of the government of the Democratic Republic of North Vietnam," the statement said.

The 500 word statement, issued in English and French, said that in order to show "its good will and to move towards peace," after consultations with the National Liberation Front, the North Vietnamese government had agreed with the United States on the holding of a four-party conference.

The enlarged conference would have brought together representatives of the United States, North Vietnam, the Saigon government and the National Liberation Front.

The four-sided conference was announced by President Johnson in connection with the U.S. bombing halt of North Vietnam.

But President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam said later his government would not attend the Paris talks because it refused to talk with the NLF. He said direct Saigon-Hanoi negotiations was the only road to peace in Vietnam.

The statement, issued at a news conference, said Hanoi chief negotiator Xuan Thuy proposed that if the Saigon representative could not come in time, a three-party meeting should be held today.

Such a meeting would comprise representatives of North Vietnam, the NLF and the U.S. The Saigon representatives would participate in the conference when they arrived, it said.

"But the representative of the United States government did not agree to this," it added.

"This is not an enlarged conference between the Democratic Republic of North Vietnam and the United States, but a four-party conference to find a peaceful settlement of the Vietnam problem," the statement said.

Oldtimer Saved Quarters And Waited for the Knock

By W. RALPH THOMAS

The United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal canvasser knocked on the door of a small weather-beaten cottage in the Colwood area, half expecting she would go away empty-handed.

An elderly man answered and smiled when he saw her United Appeal card. He asked her in.

The canvasser was surprised and thought the householder might give a dollar or two after all.

She sat down and the man told her he was not very well off, but he had been saving "quarters" all year for the United Appeal campaign.

He gave her a little more than $50 and apologized for not being able to give more.

The canvasser, aware that such a large contribution was probably more than he really could afford, assured him that a smaller donation would be just as welcome.

The man declined. He was a member of Silver Threads and his $50 donation could not begin to pay for the "good times" he's had there.

He explained he saves his quarters every year for the canvasser and his target for next year is $70.

The canvasser said she thanked him for his donation and walked away from the house "feeling very warm inside."

A Long Night of Waiting

PERHAPS THE MOST OUTSTANDING casualties of the confusion and indecision that for many hours marked last night's presidential election count were the computers and electronic predicters which had been expected to convey the winner's name to a waiting public long before the balloting was completed. So close were the results in key states that the machines were unable to indicate a sure victor and the experts were unwilling to go out on a fluctuating statistical limb.

The election could therefore best be assessed as a reflection of the nation's mood rather than of its specific preference for a new tenant for the White House. And it is very tempting in this regard to draw a parallel with the pre-Trudeau decade in Canada. Admittedly, the voting for Senate and House of Representatives was relatively clear cut, with workable Democratic control being continued. But in the presidential contest the country provided no clear directive, and Mr. Nixon will have no unassailable mandate on which to base his administration.

This situation corresponds to the period in Canada when we failed to give either Liberals or Conservatives a bright enough green light, when Mr. Pearson struggled to manage two minority governments, and the political doldrums of the electorate were duplicated in the periods of ineffectiveness which reduced Parliament to petty bickering and public criticism.

Today's situation in the United States is surprising, in view of the very strong tides of public opinion that have swept the country in the past few years. A strong leaning to the right followed an equally strong trend to mob demonstration and the demand for greater speed in social developments. But the polls have not reflected the heated social opinions of the American citizen, the extremism of the war-and-anti-war dichotomy, and the violence of crowd action in the streets and universities.

As one commentator pointed out, the United States voting appears to have been dominated by the traditional rivalries of city versus rural populations, North versus South, East versus West, and so on. There has been no domination of the polls by the extreme Right, and there has been no discernible extreme Left. Behind all the ostensible furore and unrest of the United States today, the election results have indicated a marked adherence to the social patterns of the more stable past. There was, however, no apathy, as the vast voting total shows. The whole election, so unsatisfactory in some ways, might with some justice be interpreted as an indication of the underlying soundness and orthodoxy of the country.

Whether this aspect eventually develops as a weakness or a strength will depend on the manner in which the nation supports the new president. If the inherent indecisiveness of the eventual choice results in widespread rejection by dissidents, then the United States will enter upon a still sorrier period, and the resulting chaotic conditions may well encourage the ambitions of a "strong man" to restore order. But if the new leader governs with a proper appreciation of the many people who opposed him at the polls, the country's passage through these difficult years will be greatly eased. As close friends and neighbors, Canadians cannot avoid a keen concern for what lies ahead.

Who Runs the Hospitals?

FOLLOWING THE RECENT hospital construction referendum there has been increasing discussion in this area about ways in which to encourage greater public participation in the hospitals system. The proposal causing most debate is that members of hospital boards be elected rather than appointed as at present. The idea has merit and deserves further study.

The suggestion springs not so much from dissatisfaction at the way hospitals have been run in the past as it does from a belief that the public is entitled to a greater say in their operation. In the past when provision of financing was left largely to the individual hospital associations, the system could be justified. But now that the citizen is paying the bills directly through municipal, provincial and federal taxation he has a right to be heard.

The Victoria Labour Council recently called for an elected regional board which would administer all hospitals in the district. Mayor J. B. Cumming of North Saanich has also publicly supported wider public participation.

Mayor Stephen disagrees, arguing that some volunteers who have given valuable service as board members would not be willing to stand for election and their contributions would be lost. This would be unfortunate but should not be allowed to stand in the way of improvements to the system. The same argument could be applied to other levels of administration including municipal councils and school boards, but democracy requires that persons be found who are willing to face the public and be responsible to it.

It might be practicable to open up the membership of hospital associations to the public, advertise their meetings and hold board member elections at their annual sessions. This would at least give the public an opportunity to demonstrate its interest and concern. Or consideration might be given to electing the board on a community-wide level in conjunction with municipal elections, as with school boards.

Pencils, Not Shovels

IN MAKING HIS BID FOR THE top job at B.C. Hydro Mr. Gaglardi said he was well-qualified because the Crown corporation is so involved in his specialty of construction work. "Rate-setting and other administrative chores are a mere detail when the overall role of Hydro is viewed," said the former highways minister. That is an interesting view of the Hydro operation, especially to the customer who once a month might wish the corporation's top executives could direct a sharper focus on the setting of rates.

Now that the Peace River dam is switched on and the Columbia River projects are moving toward completion B.C. Hydro construction can be expected to slow down for a while. When all the bills are in for the two-river projects the cost will come close to one billion dollars. That should take care of our power needs for a few years.

The task ahead should be, Mr. Gaglardi's opinion notwithstanding, to consolidate, pay off some of the enormous debt and attempt to reduce costs so that British Columbia's consumer bills do not continue among the highest in Canada. Hydro needs sharp-pencilled accountants now, not dam-builders.

Military Toll Forcing Hanoi Negotiation

Alsop

HANOI'S negotiators in Paris are now talking with time against them—with time, indeed, as their prime enemy. Unless all signs deceive, that is the real meaning of the remarkable and dramatic recent developments. One must begin by pointing out, of course, that the signs may too easily be deceptive. Hanoi's concessions to secure a complete bombing halt may be mere elements in a cover plan, intended to mask the preparations for the big "winter-spring offensive" that some of the captured documents have mentioned.

Or the problems between Washington and Saigon may become further inflamed. They are troublesome enough in any case, and Hanoi will inevitably do everything possible to make them more toublesome.

With these provisos, however, and other things being equal, a grave and progressive deterioration of the enemy's military situation in South Vietnam can now be logically forecast. And if this forecast is correct, the situation of Hanoi's negotiations in Paris will also weaken gravely and progressively, reflecting the deterioration of the military situation.

The base-line for the foregoing forecast is simply the nature of the choice Hanoi had to make in early October. It was a choice, really, between going forward or going back; and the cost of going forward was horrendously high.

From January 1 to October 1 of this year, the counted toll of enemy dead had been rather more than 150,000 men. These hideous losses had in fact been the main results for the first, second and third-round offensives, the last of which was attempted in August-September. Yet to go forward, it was still necessary to prepare the winter-spring offensive.

Too Heavy a Demand

For this purpose, Hanoi had to throw in another 80,000 men, according to the minimum estimate or 100,000 men according to the more generally received estimate. Make the needed conversions to allow for the huge population difference. You then find that in the short space of nine months, Hanoi had already sacrificed the American equivalent of close to 1,800,000 men; yet Hanoi was being asked to sacrifice the American equivalent of another million-plus.

It can be understood then, why the Hanoi war-leaders chose the other alternative. This was to make the needed concessions to President Johnson in order to get a final bombing halt, and thereby to open the way for serious negotiations.

Yet the negative aspect of Hanoi's choice was, and is, more important. To keep the pot of the southern war boiling, the manpower requirement was the further 100,000 men that Hanoi has seemingly decided not to throw in. And if the men to keep the pot boiling are in fact not thrown in, then the pot can only be expected to go off the boil.

Here, of course, is the crucial military factor which makes it so important to watch for indications of a cover plan. For if there is no cover plan and if Northern reinforcements to the South are therefore held to a bare minimum, the military consequences are bound to be far-reaching.

The military consequences are bound to be far-reaching, simply because the whole VC military-political infrastructure in South Vietnam squarely depends on the actively supporting presence of the enemy's main force units. For many months, moreover, those main force units have been almost exclusively manned by North Vietnamese in the three more northerly corps areas.

Weakened Corps

In I Corps, in the provinces to the north of Da Nang, there are no longer any main forces at all, at any rate operating as organized battalions. In the rest of I Corps and in II Corps most of the main forces have again retired across the Laotian border. There is a heavy divisional concentration on the fringe of III Corps, but what seemed like a forward movement has now turned into a retreat to the Cambodian border. In the Delta, finally, the only place where VC-South Vietnamese have continued to carry the burden of the fighting, the enemy's situation is now reported as quite literally coming apart at the seams.

Maintaining Pressure

In these circumstances, General Abrams intends, with the President's authorization, to maintain relentless pressure on all remaining enemy main force units and above all on a VC infrastructure now deprived of main force support. There are strange signs already, such as reports from VC-controlled areas of leading VC cadres surreptitiously selling their land and other property — obviously because they think the villages they have tyrannized so long may soon become too hot to hold them.

There is no way, in truth, of getting away from the central fact. If Hanoi is unable for unwilling to pay the manpower bill, the enemy's military situation must deteriorate. Hence Governor Averell Harriman probably holds much stronger cards than he perhaps suspects.

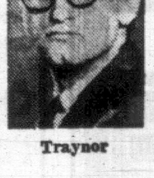
Backlash From Student Militancy



Traynor

STUDENT demands for dialogue in the lecture hall and the de-emphasis of examinations are far more inimical to Continental academic traditions than to those of Britain, where much emphasis has always been placed on the tutorial and the essay. In large measure, discontent here arises from the relentless and mechanical extension of the university system throughout the post-war period. This is seen as the source of a besetting bureaucratization and dehumanization which, it is said, aggravates traditional rigidities. The university student population has grown from 40,000 to 400,000 since the beginning of the war but, it is said, there has been no corresponding development in university attitudes and procedures.

The National Union of Students, for its part, has foregone grandiose claims for control of academic affairs. The agreement recently reached with university authorities stipulates that administrations should have exclusive responsibility for decisions related to staff appointment and promotion and student admission and assessment. It is also stipulated that student participation in decisions on course content and teaching must be subject to the teachers's right to decide how he is to present his material. "Once this right is infringed from whatever quarters ... the way is open to censorship and interference of every kind," the agreement states.

Assessments of Ability

There is also a recognition that student interests are served by assessments of ability, or at least those which "recognize the very varied abilities of university students, and which are accepted by the public and employers generally." Finally, it is stated that nothing should be allowed to inhibit freedom of discussion and that students share a responsibility for ensuring that within universities all sides of a controversy get a fair hearing.

The comparative moderation of the NUS has not, however, forestalled a public reaction against the goings-on in the university world. There is the inevitable disgust with the revolutionary militants, and one hapless academic found himself in the middle of a terrific row after advocating mixed residence facilities at a northern university. Central and local governments bear the cost of student fees and there have been proposals to cut grants and replace them with loans.

There have, too, been deep rumblings within the academic community. Some professors fear that university administrators are ready to buy off student militants with concessions that could detract from scholastic endeavors. There have been warnings against the erosion of facilities for professorial research and writing. One vice-chancellor has mounted a strong attack against the basic assumption underlying the trend toward expanded student influence. He sees in the current student agitation symptoms of lingering adolescence rather than the claiming of adulthood — as depicted, most notably, in the concordat between the NUS and the body representing university authorities.

Logic Questioned

He further questions the logic of democratic participation by students in university government. "The talk this year will be of 'democracy' in the university. The analogy with the state is tempting. Yet even the most stalwart nineteenth century radical would have hesitated to advocate granting universal suffrage to a population the vast bulk of which would emigrate in three years time, which had no stake in the country's future, which was not committed to its values, and which on the contrary threatened to distort the nation's life in such a way as to destroy its greatness." Students whose appetite for power is not yet satisfied can expect to encounter strong resistance from here on in.

Looking Back

From the Times, November 6, 1908.

Many of the Indians who were employed on the sealing schooners have been in the city for their wages which are always paid them here. The rest of the Indians will arrive soon. They prefer to be paid in gold and silver, preferably silver, if the amount is not too large.

This year they drew large amounts, especially those who came down on the Bayard. The Indians now think she is a lucky ship and they will want to sail on her next year.

Greeted as Citizens

With reference to the editorial, "Belated, Broke, and Disbanded" which appeared in the Times Wednesday, October 23, 1968, we wish to state that the Greater Victoria Citizenship council, though formerly affiliated with it, is not affected by the disbandment of the Canadian Citizenship Council. We also wish to clarify our position with regard to what takes place at the time of a Citizenship Court presentation ceremony.

Admittedly we do not have personal contact with the candidates prior to the ceremony. The process of immigration has changed in the past few years. Newcomers now are either sponsored by relatives or have some connections which help them on arrival here. We realize that they should receive much more attention but when this council is not allowed to have the names and addresses of these people until after they receive their citizen status a definite difficulty arises. It is our hope that this situation will be changed in the near future and then immediate steps will be taken to establish personal contact with all landed immigrants on their arrival or very shortly afterwards.

At the citizenship ceremony, after the presiding court officer has presented the certificates, this council welcomes the candidates, a speaker addresses them and all are invited to a coffee party arranged for at a place convenient to the Law Courts.

This is not a belated welcome to New Canadians, it is a warm, friendly hour spent with people, as our guests who have ended a period of great decision. They have finalized the transition from one part of their lives to another. It is an important day and we endeavor to add just a little to it.

The court ceremonies are open to the public, representatives of the groups affiliated with the council, members of the Girl Guides, CGIT and students are often present and anyone interested in attending the reception may do so for a minimal sum.

May we say that our effort has been appreciated by our guests, we greet them, not as New Canadians but as Canadian Citizens and there is a difference.—Ethel Carson, president, The Greater Victoria Citizenship Council.

Grateful

Canadian Aid for Vietnam Civilians extends kindest thanks to all people in your province who have helped us to raise over $70,000 in cash for the people of Vietnam. Much of it has been spent on medical and surgical supplies, school supplies, powdered milk and artificial legs for the children of Vietnam.

Your readers may not realize that we assist people in all three sections into which Vietnam is divided:—the North, the Southern liberated areas, and the U.S.-controlled sections.

We will do our best to carry on our efforts to help all Vietnamese by sending aid so long as their agony continues.—A. M. Inglis, M.D., F.R.C.S. (C) Chairman Canadian Aid for Vietnam Civilians, Box 2543, Vancouver 3, B.C.

Canada's Historic Sites

Ottawa Journal

A man just back from a New England holiday remarked on the many historical sites and landmarks that dot the highways in those states. Along the Kennebec River in Maine Col. Benedict Arnold's 1775 Quebec expedition is well chronicled. Besides the markers showing where Arnold made a portage, there are excerpts from his diary which make the man and his times more relevant.

Driving in Canada later, our man said he noticed that historic markers were less common and he regretted it.

His point is well taken. Ontario has been energetic in marking points of interest but more has to be done in preservation.

Historians this year welcomed the announcement that the Dominion and Ontario governments had made a working agreement to accelerate the acquisition and preservation of historic structures in the province. The sums involved are not large by present standards of Government spending — each government has agreed to make $50,000 available annually — but some historic buildings in danger of being replaced by a plaque or a cairn can now be saved.

Nothing becomes so tiresome to a tourist driver as the white line in the middle of the highway. Give him markers showing the way to worthwhile historic sites, even those far off the highway and his trip will be the easier, happier and more interesting.

Teachers Charge Harsh Treatment in Quebec City Hall

MONTREAL (CP) — Six directors of the Syndicat des professeurs de l'etat du Quebec, among 13 who served brief jail terms for violating an injunction, levelled some heavy criticism Tuesday at Quebec's penal system.

Twelve directors of SPEQ, a teachers' union, were released Saturday and another was set free Monday after serving most of their 20-day terms for ignoring a back-to-work injunction during a 1966 teachers' strike.

The six told a news conference Tuesday they did not receive special treatment in the Quebec City jail, where terms for 12 of them began Oct. 18 and that of the 13th started Oct. 19.

"I am really ashamed of being a citizen of Quebec when it has such a deplorable penal system," said Claude le Lorimier, SPEQ's president.

"Although we were imprisoned under civil law and did not acquire a criminal record, we believe we were more badly treated than those imprisoned under the penal code."

Mr. de Lorimer said the teachers were incarcerated "a few feet away" from the solitary confinement section which prisoners call "the hole."

"That's where we lived in three damp and dark rectangular vaults . . . clothed in the humiliating garb of the prisoner.

"We were confined to these cells so as not to be in contact with the other prisoners. And apparently for this reason we were refused permission to walk in the interior courtyard of the prison."

Only after "strong protest" were they "allowed to go out for one hour." But other prisoners were permitted "three hours out in the open air."

The teachers told reporters that visiting time to other prisoners was reduced to 10 minutes from 30 because jail officials said the teachers needed the visiting room.

But the teachers said they had only five minutes on Sundays for visits from relatives and friends.

Claude Sabourin—last of the teachers to be released, for good behavior—said he entered jail 15 hours after his 12 colleagues, but was released 30 hours after they were.

The SPEQ officials said another example of arbitrary behavior by jail officials was how the teachers had to mount pressure to obtain newspapers and even shaves.

Their food was cold and their cells were like echo chambers. Their cells were "bugged" with microphones so their conversations could be recorded.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, NOV. 6, 1968—PAGE 11

The alders down by the cove are still green as summer, but in the wildlands above, the autumn leaf-fall is well along.

It began with the broadleaf maples, perhaps because the enormous leaves they flaunt are fair game for every passing breeze. Let a brisk wind strike in among them, and almost overnight, their boughs are stripped.

Up where we maintain a truce between encroaching second growth and tame garden, this foliage yield means present or future raking. The pawky compost their leaves, and so do we, until we run out of patience. Then we dump our loads in a pile and burn them, trading soil enrichment for the autumn incense that tolerant Saanich still permits its residents to enjoy.

Beyond the garden fringe all's different. There, nature can be left to her own disposal scheme, which is carried out quietly and efficiently.

Before the maples are green again, their old leaves will be weathered and leached to frail grey skeletons.

That time will come; but in November, those leaves still lie in brown carpets and windrows. Stand quiet . . . listen . . . and you may hear sounds among them that are blanked out when summer's in possession.

A deciduous tangle offers a home to many crestures, and the woods of fall reveal their presence.

★

Most mornings, we step into the rubber boots that sit handy in their back-porch box, and jog down to the beach stairs by a way of fallen leaves.

Lancer the Lab ranges ahead, nose busy with the scents that night and first-daylight foragers have left behind them.

These are tangled trails, and he unravels them as a matter of duty.

Close by in an ocean spray-thicket, the dry-leaf rustle betrays a brown wren smaller than a mouse. It darts from its twig into thicker cover. Off to the right, a pheasant is tramping about on spurred feet. We can't see him, but we can picture him easily enough.

He flushes with a cackle, a fine, long-tailed rooster, launched rudely into flight. But he does not go far. Give him an hour or two, and that plump ringneck will be picking and scratching at the foot of the garden.

For anticlimax, two quail whirr out and away in the opposite direction. Dog emerges, grinning. He has put up game birds, and is well pleased with himself. For a while now, he will be content to pad sedately along the leaf-brown path.

★

Farther down where the trail opens out, the leaves lie very thick. Our coast does not run to the brilliant colors of eastern fall, but the cascara makes a fair enough show with such boat-shaped leaves of lemon as still cling to its slender twigs.

The late-shedding Pacific willows make a tracery of flawed gold against a sky turning blue for a sunny day.

These last are not especially handsome trees. Their trunks are crooked, and their limbs tend to be brittle. But they are hardy where their roots are well-watered, and they make a background for fall long after the maples stand leafless.

Being deciduous, shed they must when the great gales come crashing in.

Even then, though, color remians. There are evergreens, and plump white snowberries hanging in clusters from their wiry twigs.

And always on this mild south coast, there is the copper-limbed arbutus, to glow against the dark of fir or balsam. The arbutus flowered well this year, and never have we seen such a richer berrying.

As for the leaf-cycle, winter in these parts is no more than a breathing space. In January, from a trail made sodden by the rains, I expect we'll spot the first green of a new season.

BUSY BOOM BOAT scuttles about its chores, cutting swath across tranquil scene of sea and rafts at booming grounds of Sooke Forest Products in Cooper Cove. Versatile little boats carry a one-man crew and a variety of colorful names—log broncs, boom cats, sea dozers, side winders—and are used to sort logs, make up booms and to straighten out "jackpots", jumbles of logs. Powered by inboard motors ranging from 80 to 150 horsepower, they can turn on a dime to ride herd on logs, filling the same role as the cattle-herding quarter horse of the early West.

Delays Inexcusable Hellyer Probe Told

City, B.C. Roasts Housing Red Tape

Present procedures for housing developments are slow, frustrating and creat unnecessary costs, the province and the City of Victoria said today.

Administrative delays and the absence of information on how a municipal request is faring within the red tape of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation "is acutely embarrassing," says the city in a brief to Transport Minister Hellyer's housing inquiry which sat at the Empress Hotel this afternoon.

The brief cites the Rose-Blanshard urban renewal development and says it was seven months before the federal financing agency gave its formal approval in December, 1966.

Nearly two years later the land is available in downtown Victoria but contract documents and drawings are not available for the 180 vitally needed housing units.

The city has not been able to call tenders although Mr. Hellyer was expected to announce a go-ahead today.

While the delay "is inexcusable for a renewal scheme involving redevelopment by public agencies," the city says it makes it impossible to interest private money in such projects.

The prospect of drawing private capital into the field is negligible "unless an effective decision-making process is evolved by government."

B.C. Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, in the provincial brief, suggests a solution:

"Our primary recommendation . . . is that we simplify the procedures."

Four-Year Wait for Houses

He says it usually requires four years for a housing development idea to become houses. The recommended system could cut this time by half.

It goes like this: the municipality applies for a number of houses for a particular group of people in certain areas; the province gives approval in principle and makes a recommendation to the federal government.

Federal approval is forwarded to the B.C. Housing Management Commission—an existing body of federal, provincial and municipal representatives—which works out details and acquires the necessary land.

A final proposal, incorporating builders' recommendations, goes to CMHC for financial arrangements and a final recommendation is made to the three levels of government.

It still sounds complicated, but the brief says it is streamlined compared with the present system. It suggests over-all building costs might thus be reduced as much as 20 per cent.

It says the benefits of this system will be partially "thwarted" if technical decisions continue to be made in Ottawa.

In the past the "nit picking—not to mention the red tape" there has led to "the absurdities under which we have already suffered."

Unless the system is changed, says the province, "we really do not feel that we can justify to the public the protracted time and cost involved."

The city describe's CMHC's present approach as "you-come-to-us-and-we'll-think-about-it-and-let-you-know."

The approach "simply will not work."

Particular mention is given housing needs of elderly persons. It notes that the city now has a greater percentage of citizens over 65 than any other Canadian city and says this number grows annually.

"With the increasing scarcity of all types of housing units, there is little incentive to the private investor to build accommodation suited to the needs of older persons at rentals that they can afford."

Closer Communication Asked

This housing burden is placed on voluntary non-profit groups and "few have the ability or the resources to raise their share of the capital and operating costs or to thread their way through the maze" of local, provincial and federal housing regulations.

The city calls for closer communication between technical advisers to the three levels of government.

In a section on urban renewal, the province says present methods often create as many problems as they solve and do not always "lead to the rejuvenation of an area."

It recommends "less dramatic approaches" such as street improvement and beautification, addition of parks and play areas.

"These can be supplemented by demolition orders in respect to structures beyond reasonable repair and by loans for the rehabilitation of buildings where such is possible."

"Not only would this approach be less disturbing to the social fabric of the community but would retain much of the housing which, at far less cost than the construction of new housing, could be brought up to acceptable standards."

MINISTER TAKES FIRST-HAND LOOK AT CITY PROJECTS

By JOHN SLINGER

Rose-Blanshard was lifeless and silent as the face of the moon when Transport Minister Hellyer got off his tour bus today to look at urban renewal in Victoria.

He walked into the windowless bungalow recently expropriated from an elderly Chinese couple and saw the shattered remains of a half-destroyed chimney strewn across the living-room floor.

Mr. Hellyer doesn't know the Chinese couple. He didn't hear them talk a month ago about the home they had been forced to leave after 20 years.

He didn't hear the husband say moving "breaks my heart."

But it is for them and for the thousands of other Canadians unable to afford a home in the first place that the 45-year-old minister has led his housing task force on a two-month journey across Canada to Victoria.

In the bungalow, Ald. Ian Stewart described the city's plan to build 180 housing units in the 30-acre area around the new Blanshard elementary school.

FIRST TIME

The Victoria hearing is the first time all seven members of the federal inquiry have been together to listen to local presentations.

Members include a builder, an economist, a planner, a banker, an architect and an urban development specialist.

From Rose-Blanshard they travelled to Yates Street to see what the merchants assocition has done in the 700 Block.

And they made stops in Bastion Square, at the centre of the planned Inner Harbor renewal scheme and at Centennial Square.

'REINFORCED'

With the task force were Mayor Hugh Stephen, city manager Dennis Young, local planners, architects and members of city countil.

Earlier Mr. Hellyer met for an hour with Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell. Mr. Campbell said he "reinforced" some of the recommendations included in the B.C. brief to the inquiry.

A housing contractor himself before enterning politics, Mr. Hellyer said a report on the task-force's findings would be prepared by the end of the year. After that it would be up to governments, the building industry, banks and unions to put the recommendations into effect.

Saanich Terminal For Hovercraft?

Pacific Hovercraft Ltd. is proceeding with plans to begin Vancouver Island service Dec. 21.

But whether the terminal will be in Greater Victoria remains in doubt after Oak Bay council's rejection Monday.

Separate statements issued by company officials at Vancouver left the future of the wave-skimming craft literally "up in the air."

Executive vice-president B. W. Heeney said council's decision "must quite logically force us to a serious re-appraisal of our plans for Southern Vancouver Island . . . our plans for Vancouver-Nanaimo service are continuing."

DOOR OPEN

But he left the door open for Oak Bay to change its stand, pointing out that council's decision apparently stemmed from objection by only 25 people.

"I personally find it difficult to accept or comprehend that some 25 people purportedly representing some 400 residents of Oak Bay is an accurate indication of the will of some 18,000 residents.

"It is obvious then that there are more than 17,000 people who have not yet made their wishes known to council."

He said it was a classic example of a well-organized minority exerting influence over apathy.

Mr. Heeney said a re-appraisal of plans might not be necessary if "a significant number of those taxpayers not represented at the meeting . . . make their wishes known to council."

Barry Jones, president of the firm, told newsmen that fears of excessive noise, expressed to council Monday, are completely unfounded.

"Properly operated, a hovercraft is not even as noisy as a boat with two big outboard engines."

GOING AHEAD

He said his company will go ahead with plans to open service next month, using another site as a Vancouver Island terminal. But wouldn't pin-point it.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said this morning the company has not approached the municipality on the possibility of a terminal site.

But if they did they would be "received warmly," he said, adding he would like to see a hovercraft service between the mainland and the lower Island.

While he did not want to sound negative, terminal possibilities are obviously "pretty limited" by open water conditions, private and public land holdings.

Meanwhile, Oak Bay alderman G. Scott Wallace, charged Tuesday that council was pressured by "lynch mob rule" into refusing the hovercraft berthing rights without a one-month trial.

He said Ald. Frances Elford had "played to the gallery" throughout the council meeting.

Two weeks previously council had indicated approval would be granted the hovercraft scheme under certain conditions.

"Ald. Elford could have objected at that time. She didn't. But Monday night she couldn't place her negative motion on the floor fast enough. We couldn't even have any general discussion.

"This wasn't fair to the applicants. It reminded me of the things you see on TV with a lynch mob where people are so worked up they don't know what they are doing . . . refusing to listen to reason in case somebody came up ith facts that disagree with their preconceived ideas."

Not Guilty Plea On Drug Counts

A second charge of possessing certain hallucinogenic drugs illegally imported into Canada was read against an American doctor in central criminal court today.

James Sutherland Watt, of California, elected trial by magistrate on the charge and also on a previous charge. He pleaded not guilty to both. He is represented by Lloyd McKenzie, Q.C.

Trial dates have been set for Nov. 26 and 27.

The new charge under the customs act reads that between Nov. 1, 1967, and Oct. 28, 1968, at or near Vancouver he did without lawful excuse have in his possession certain goods unlawfully imported into Canada, namely a quantity of LSD and a quantity of mescaline, the value for duty of said goods being $200 or over.

Dr. Watt is not in custody and is on a court remand.

Leslie's Got a Secret: It's Mind Over Muscles

By PETE LOUDON

If somebody hands you a trowel and tells you to rebuild the pyramids in Victoria, the helper to get is a girl named Leslie.

If you had to mend a spider web, Leslie would be right there.

●

Any job that calls for determination, solution for one problem at a time, for putting one foot ahead of another — get Leslie.

Leslie is like the ant that couldn't possibly budge the rubber tree plant. You believe that until you see the rubber tree disappearing in the distance.

Leslie is 15, a pleasing brunette in mesh stockings and a mod-leather dress. She remains in your mind once you've met her because she is also physically handicapped by cerebral palsy.

●

She's one of the 107 youngsters at the Handicapped Children's Clinic at 1937 Argyle Street. But it's a tossup whether she's there to help or be helped.

She's been taking classes and treatment since she was an infant lacking any muscle control. She had to learn to crawl, walk, talk and feed herself with limbs which wouldn't behave. She still can't make her rebellious muscles co-ordinate sufficiently to enable her to write.

She conquered that problem with a typewriter. And although it takes her 45 minutes to fill a page of paper, she qualifies as a brilliant academic course pupil. She belongs to horticultural and nature study groups — even struggles along on hikes with them. She plans an entry in the next science fair.

●

Two years ago she decided to build a miniature garden, so tiny that she had to make the fence with toothpicks — over and over again. She entered it in a contest and won a silver bowl.

She cooks, she trains dogs, she cares for tropical fish. She goes shopping and she swims. In the water, aided by natural bouyancy and the muscle-relaxing effect of submersion, she recaptures some of the ease of movement she lacks on land.

Yet before she could swim she shared the terror of deep water that stops many other people from ever learning.

People in the process of fighting cerebral palsy often draw stares. This doesn't bother Leslie. She's got a secret strength more powerful than muscles.

She wishes her physical shackles would let her move faster. But if the little kids need their coats and if it takes Leslie 10 trips to help them, she makes the 10 trips.

●

And the teacher who could do it all in two trips often finds Leslie on the job ahead of her.

If the toddlers need feeding, Leslie is in the front line of the volunteer helpers.

"Her future won't ever be dull," say her teachers, nor will her physical problems ever conquer her natural friendliness or good cheer.

Leslie is one of the finest examples of how the Handicapped Children's Clinic can teach a child to live a whole life despite an incurable ailment.

●

They told her story to remind Victorians of the importance of wholehearted support to United Appeal which donates about a third of the clinic's $60,000 annual operating budget.

If everyone gave as much to others as Leslie does, they say, the target would be oversubscribed long ago.

CONSTANT BATTLE to make vocal chords and limbs obey can leave a cerebral palsy victim locked in a cage without a key. But Leslie, right, somehow projects herself through the bars. Helen Keller and John Milton did this. Leslie may never achieve their triumphs but she has their spirit. Here she assists physiotherapist Mrs. Norma Wilson with clinic sweetheart, Lianne, three-and-a-half. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

Ask The Times

Q. Would you please tell me the highest speed limit on a highway in B.C.? J.F.D.

A. Two highways in the province have top speed limits of 70 mph in certain parts. Highway 401 has a top speed of 70 mph between Vancouver and Chilliwack. Parts of the Deas Tunnel Throughway from Vancouver to the U.S. border also have 70 mph speed limits. On all other highways in B.C., however, maximum speed is 60 mph.

Q. Could you tell me where to write film star Oskar Werner, whose movie "Interlude" was recently shown in Victoria? S.M.B.

The market was higher from the start in fairly cautious trading when the result of the vote was in doubt.

Prices were also up at Toronto as the market reacted to Wall Street's gain.

AT TORONTO in industrials, Ford of Canada gained 3 to 275, Dylex Diversified 2½ to 70, Nabors Drilling 2 to 10½ and OSF Industries 1⅛ to 2⅜. Bay Mills fell 1⅜ to 8.

Hollinger rose 1⅞ to 34⅞, Placer 1¼ to 34 and Bankino 45 cents to $6.35. Frobex lost 60 cents to $1.90 and Kerr Addison ¼ to 19¼.

Canadian Superior Oil was up 2⅝ to 55, Canadian Homestead 65 cents to $8.05 and Chieftain Development 30 cents to $9.80.

AT NEW YORK motors, mail-order-retails, oils and building materials were mostly higher. Steels eased.

A huge block of 627,600 shares of Aetna Life and Casualty traded at 53, off ½, placing Aetna far ahead of the list on volume.

Among Canadian stocks, McIntyre Porcupine was up ⅞, Walker Gooderham ¼, and Granby Mining ⅛. Distillers Seagrams was down ⅝, International Nickel ⅜, Canadian Pacific and Dome Mines ⅛.

AT MONTREAL industrial and bank issues led a moderately upward trend in brisk trading today. Papers and utilities were off.

Radio Engineering climbed 2⅛ to 43¼, Seagrams ¾ to 47, Bank of Nova Scotia ⅝ to 23, Du Pont ½ to 39 and Royal Bank ⅜ to 22⅞. Dominion Bridge lost ⅝ to 17¼.

Senior oils were strong. Home A advanced 7⅛ to 32⅛, Imperial 1 to 76½ and Texaco ½ to 34½. Senior Mines were off fractionally.

AT LONDON the stock market was restrained today.

In dollar stocks, U.S. issues were virtually all unchanged, reflecting Wall Street. The investment dollar premium fell 1-32 to 39 1-16 per cent.

AT VANCOUVER, all sections of the board showed good gains in pre-noon trading today.

In the industrials, PWA was up $1 at $13.25 and Great National Lands was .25 better at $2.70.

Stampede was up .30 to $7.90 in the oils and Bata put on .10 to $4.

Dynasty led the mines with an 87-cent jump to $13.25 and Arctic regained .26 to $1.9 on 67,300 shares. Copper Ridge rose .15 to $2.20 Northlode was up the same amount to $4.10 and Venus improved .27 to $2.87.

Rising Costs Force Newsprint Price Hike

NEW YORK (AP) — Producers say advancing production costs have forced them to raise the price of newsprint.

Most suppliers of newsprint to newspapers in the U.S. West recently announced a price boost to $142 a ton from $137, effective Jan. 1.

Earlier, eastern suppliers increased their price to $147 a ton from $142, also effective Jan. 1.

A spokesman for Crown Zellerbach Corp. of San Francisco, a major producer, listed these factors increasing prices:

Rising costs of wood, transporation, labor and other manufacturing operations; higher capital costs involved in additional newsprint capacity; higher costs in delivery terms, and considerable improvement in the quality of newsprint.

"Production is booming," says Richard Crane of Garden State Paper Co. of Claremont, Calif. "In fact, that's what puzzles a lot of the publishers. They can't understand why prices go up when there is a flood of newsprint coming out of Canada and elsewhere. But what they don't see is the increase in labor and transportation costs that are forcing our prices to rise."

Most producers decline to speculate on the price outlook beyond the Jan. 1 increase.

Among companies going from $136 a ton to $142 are Crown Zellerbach, Southwest Forest Products Co., Flagstaff, Ariz.; Powell River-Albany Sales Co., Vancouver; Macmillan, Bloedel Ltd., Vancouver, and British Columbia Forest Products Co., Vancouver.

Eastern suppliers raising to $147 from $142 include Kimberly-Clark Corp., Neenah, Wis.; Bowaters, Inc., Calhoun, Tenn., Newfoundland; International Paper Co., New York; Great Northern Paper Co., New York, Price Co., Quebec; Domtar Ltd., Montreal; Consolidated Bathurst Ltd., Montreal; Southland Paper Mills, Inc., Lufkin, Tex.; Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd., Toronto, and Great Lakes Paper Co. Ltd., Fort William, Ont.

Awarded Contract

OTTAWA (CP) — Allan and Viner Construction of Vancouver has been awarded a $38,400 federal public works contract for alterations to the Vancouver customs house.

The basement and three lower floors will be painted and altered to provide accommodation for the customs and excise branch of the national revenue department.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Nixon Win Sparks N.Y.

Showing relief when Richard Nixon's victory was announced in the U.S. presidential election, Wall Street rallied and posted a gain in trading today.

The market was higher from the start in fairly cautious trading when the result of the ovte was in doubt.

Prices were alos up at Torohto as the market reacted to Wall Street's gain.

AT TORONTO Ford of Canada vained 3 to 275, Dylex Diversified 2⅞ to 70⅜, Westeel-Rosco 1½ TO ⅛—½, Nabors Drilling 1½ to 10 and Massey-Ferguson 1 to 20¾.

Among the most active stocks, Great Northern Capital advanced ¾ to 15⅛, Revenue Properties ½ to 19 and Calvert-Dale 060 cents to $2.0.

Seaway Hotels gained ¼ to 34⅝ and Levy Industries ¾ to 36½.

Union Acceptance lost ¼ to 8¼ before trading was halted at the compny's request pending the release of information. Noranda, in which there was also a trading halt, was steady at 60 after announcing plans for a 2-for-1 stock split.

AT NEW YORK motors, mail-order-retails, oils and building materials were mostly higher. Steels eased.

A hugeblo ck of 627,600 shares of Aetna Life and Casualty traded at 53, off ½, placing Aetna far ahead of the list on volume.

Among Canadian stocks, McIntyre Porcupine was up ,⅞ Walker Gooderham ¼, and Granby Mining ⅛. Distillers Seagrams was down ⅝, International Nickel ⅜, Canadian Pacific and Dome Mines ⅛.

AT MONTREAL INDUSTRIAL AND BANK ISSUES LED A MODERATELY UPWARD TREND IN BRISK TRADING TODAY. Papers and utilities were off.

Radio Engineering climbed 2⅛ to 43¼, Seagrams ¾ to 47, Bank of Nova Scotia g to 23, Du Pont ½ to 39 and Royal Bank ⅜ to 22⅞. Dominion Bridge lost ⅝ to 17¼.

Senior oils were strong. Home A advanced 1⅛ to 32⅛, Imperial 1⅛ to 32⅛, Imperial 1⅛ to 76½ and Texaco ½ to 34½. Senior Mines were off fractionally.

AT LONDON the stock market was restrained today.

In dollar stocks, U.S. issues were virtually all unchanged, reflecting Wall Street. The investment dollar premium fell 1-32 to 39 1-16 per cent.

Canadian issues, however, were broadly higher on the overnight Montreal and Toronto exchange gains. West Coast Transmission and Hiram Walker added $2. each. Rises of around 50 cents were recorded in Central Del Rio, Cominco, International Nickel and Noranda. Dome Mines and Brazilian Light and Power eased.

Canadian banks were strong.

AT VANCOUVER, all secgtions of the board showed good gains in pre-noon trading today.

In the industrials, PWA was up $1 at $13.25 and Great National Lands was .2 better at $2.70.

Stampede was up .30 to $7.90 in the oils and Bata put on .10 to $4.

Rising Costs Force Newsprint Price Hike

NEW YORK (AP) — Producers say advancing production costs have forced them to raise the price of newsprint.

Most suppliers of newsprint to newspapers in the U.S. West recently announced a price boost to $142 a ton from $137, effective Jan. 1.

Earlier, eastern suppliers increased their price to $147 a ton from $142, also effective Jan. 1.

A spokesman for Crown Zellerbach Corp. of San Francisco, a major producer, listed these factors increasing prices:

Rising costs of wood, transporation, labor and other manufacturing operations; higher capital costs involved in additional newsprint capacity; higher costs in delivery terms, and considerable improvement in the quality of newsprint.

"Production is booming," says Richard Crane of Garden State Paper Co. of Claremont, Calif. "In fact, that's what puzzles a lot of the publishers. They can't understand why prices go up when there is a flood of newsprint coming out of Canada and elsewhere. But what they don't see is the increase in labor and transportation costs that are forcing our prices to rise."

Most producers decline to speculate on the price outlook beyond the Jan. 1 increase.

Among companies going from $136 a ton to $142 are Crown Zellerbach, Southwest Forest Products Co., Flagstaff, Ariz.; Powell River-Albany Sales Co., Vancouver; Macmillan, Bloedel Ltd., Vancouver, and British Columbia Forest Products Co., Vancouver.

Eastern suppliers raising to $147 from $142 include Kimberly-Clark Corp., Neenah, Wis.; Bowaters, Inc., Calhoun, Tenn., Newfoundland; International Paper Co., New York; Great Northern Paper Co., New York, Price Co., Quebec; Domtar Ltd., Montreal; Consolidated Bathurst Ltd., Montreal; Southland Paper Mills, Inc., Lufkin, Tex.; Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd., Toronto, and Great Lakes Paper Co. Ltd., Fort William, Ont.

Britain Phasing Out Coal for Gas

VANCOUVER (CP) — Britain's nationalized coal industry is being phased out in favor of nuclear energy and natural gas development, says Lambton Wilkinson, public relations director for the United Kingdom's national coal board.

"Twelve years ago coal supplied nine-tenths of England's energy needs," Mr. Wilkinson said in an interview while on vacation in Vancouver. "Now it accounts for little more than half the fuels."

He said bulk shipments of oil to the U.K. and development of natural gas deposits in the North Sea have cut sharply into Britain's coal requirements. In addition, he said, Britain leads the world in development of nuclear energy.

"We have learned to adjust to a situation where coal shares the energy needs with other resources," said Mr. Wilkinson. "Because of the present limitations on markets, we have had to close a large number of collieries, mostly the uneconomic ones."

He said 40 collieries have been closed so far this year "and there are 15 more to go."

"We're even selling our mining equipment in the United States."

Additional Gas Export Bid Granted

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta Oil and Gas Conservation Board gave approval Tuesday to an application by Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. to export an additional 2,100,000,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas from the province during a 25-year-period ending Oct. 31, 1993.

Trans-Canada, which earlier held permits allowing exports of 17,100,000,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas by Oct. 31, 1992, may now remove from the province 19,200,000,000,000 cubic feet over the extended period.

The board also gave approval to a company application to increase the amount of gas that may be removed in any 24-hour period to 2,715,000,000 cubic feet from 2,270,000,000. The amount that may be exported in any year ending Oct. 31 was increased to 860,000,000,000 from 720,000,000,00.

Trans Canada, when applying for the increase, said the sales of additional gas would bring $42,000,000 in revenue to the provincial government, Alberta gas producers and the Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co.

Rising Costs Force Newsprint Price Hike

NEW YORK (AP) — Producers say advancing production costs have forced them to raise the price of newsprint.

Most suppliers of newsprint to newspapers in the U.S. West recently announced a price boost to $142 a ton from $137, effective Jan. 1.

Earlier, eastern suppliers increased their price to $147 a ton from $142, also effective Jan. 1.

A spokesman for Crown Zellerbach Corp. of San Francisco, a major producer, listed these factors increasing prices:

"Rising costs of wood, transporation, labor and other manufacturing operations; higher capital costs involved in additional newsprint capacity; higher costs in delivery terms, and considerable improvement in the quality of newsprint.

"Production is booming," says Richard Crane of Garden State Paper Co. of Claremont, Calif. "In fact, that's what puzzles a lot of the publishers. They can't understand why prices go up when there is a flood of newsprint coming out of Canada and elsewhere. But what they don't see is the increase in labor and transportation costs that are forcing our prices to rise."

Most producers decline to speculate on the price outlook beyond the Jan. 1 increase.

Among companies going from $136 a ton to $142 are Crown Zellerbach, Southwest Forest Products Co., Flagstaff, Ariz.; Powell River-Albany Sales Co., Vancouver; Macmillan, Bloedel Ltd., Vancouver, and British Columbia Forest Products Co., Vancouver.

Eastern suppliers raising to $147 from $142 include Kimberly-Clark Corp., Neenah, Wis.; Bowaters, Inc., Calhoun, Tenn., Newfoundland; International Paper Co., New York; Great Northern Paper Co., New York, Price Co., Quebec; Domtar Ltd., Montreal; Consolidated Bathurst Ltd., Montreal; Southland Paper Mills, Inc., Lufkin, Tex.; Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd., Toronto, and Great Lakes Paper Co. Ltd., Fort William, Ont.

Strikers Cause Heavy Damage

WINDSOR, Que. (CP) — Domtar Pulp and Paper Ltd. says striking employees who took over its Windsor mill for 26 hours caused damage estimated at $100,000.

Raymond Pinard, general manager of Domtar's kraft and boxboard division, said in an interview Tuesday night that the strikers, some armed with rifles, broke into foremen's offices and smashed typewriters and calculating machines during the occupation that ended Monday night.

"Other office machines and desk drawers were thrown into the river. Two clocks were smashed with rifle bullets — you can see the bullet holes.

"Many control instruments and control panels were damaged. They cut the felts and the wires on the paper machines. They also broke precision instruments in the laboratories."

Windows, vending machines and scales were also on the damaged list.

Mr. Pinard said he inspected the mill, along with a photographer and two Windsor policemen, after the strikers ended their occupation to march on the legislature in Quebec City.

"We are considering, with our lawyers, the appropriate steps to take."

The 1,200 employees of Domtar kraft and boxboard mills in the Eastern Townships communities of Windsor and East Angus have been on strike for higher pay since July 18.

Talks in Quebec City under a government conciliator were broken off last Friday over what Domtar described as "intimidation of security personnel and plant foremen" by strikers. The company said it would resume negotiations when the union "decides to respect law and order."

Labor Minister Maurice Bellemare told the legislature Tuesday, while about 200 strikers paraded outside, that he hopes talks in the Domtar dispute will resume shortly.

Meanwhile, the National Union of Pulp and Paper Workers, a Confederation of National Trade Unions affiliate which represents the Domtar employees, announced that strike pay of $45 a week for married strikers and $30 a week for single persons will be paid starting next week.

Mayors Want Staffs On the Job Dec .27

Municipal employees will work Dec. 27 if Greater Victoria area mayors have their way.

The chief magistrates of Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and Central Saanich left no doubt that they wanted their staffs on deck the day following Boxing Day.

Provincial government and University of Victoria employees get the extra day holiday tossed in to give them a five day Christmas break.

S. T. Fitzpatrick, personnel director for Victoria, advised the intermunicipal committee to do the same.

He stated in a written report to the committee that although the cost of the one-day holiday would be high, so would the rate of absenteeism if December 27 was declared a work day.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said he hadn't discussed the matter with his council but that he leaned towards a work day.

"A five-day closure of the municipal hall is a long break," he said. "We have to remember that the people paying the taxes will not be able to take five days off."

Oak Bay Mayor Fred Hawes agreed.

"We are opposed to the idea of the extra holiday," he said. "It closes the municipal hall for too long a period."

Pollution War Set In Michigan, Illinois

WASHINGTON (AP) — Voters in five states Tuesday authorized spending a total of more than $2,500,000,000 on pollution control, veterans and education.

But a liquor-by-the-drink proposal failed in the face of strong Mormon opposition in semi-dry Utah. Nevada, where gambling is a major industry, rejected a private lottery. Nebraska rejected a proposal to lower the voting age to 19 from 21.

The issues highlighted local referenda that appeared on the ballots of three-fourths of the states Tuesday. Most were money issues.

The biggest financial proposal was in Illinois, where a measure providing $1 billion for air and water pollution control appeared headed for approval.

New Jersey approved its biggest money proposal in history —$990 million for education, low-cost housing and transportation. Michigan's largest bond issue ever passed provides $335 million for a 10-year battle against water pollution.

VET BONUSES

In Pennsylvania, a plan to give Vietnam war veterans cash bonuses of up to $750 won overwhelming approal. It was the first time the state's citizens had voted on such a bonus during a war.

The Utah liquor referendum ended a hassle that stole campaign attention for Vietnam and the presidential race. The Mormon church, which considers drinking a sin, battled the measure's sponsors, who said the state needed over-the-bar liquor to attract tourists and conventions.

Nevada voters rejected a constitutional amendment to permit a priate lottery, which would have handed 30 per cent of the profits to the state.

Streamlining Of Grants Approved

The Greater Victoria intermunicipal council agreed Tuesday to streamline its grant procedures.

The decision was made after Victoria's treasurer James Bramley listed some of the problems facing his staff under the existing system which has all shareable grants forwarded by a variety of cheques.

"The organization or group receiving the money receives anywhere from one to seven cheques, calculated in various ways and sometimes sent to different locations," Mr. Bramley said.

Mr. Bramley suggested that in future, after the intermunicipal group reports that its councils are in favor of a grant being made, the total amount be sent out by the city of Victoria which in turn will beill the participating municipalities for the amount pledged.

"It would certainly end a lot of confusion," commented Mayor Hugh Curtis.

GRANT TURNED DOWN

The committee agreed to the streamlined procedure and asked Mr. Bramley and other municipal treasurers to work out the details.

But that didn't mean that members were in a granting mood.

An application for close to $1,000 from the Federation of Music Teachers' Association was rejected by the committee.

The association was asking the grant to pay for a banquet and other expenses during the 17th biennial convention scheduled for July 1969.

"Again it is a matter of feeling sympathetic but having to decide where we distinguish between this type of convention and others," said Mayor Hugh Stephen.

City Sailor To Be Cited For Bravery

A young Esquimalt sailor will receive a commendation for brave conduct Friday morning aboard HMCS Yukon in the dockyard.

Able Seaman W. E. French, 21, will receive the citation from Rear Admiral John A. Charles.

Able Seaman French is credited with helping to restrain a man from taking his own life on the Dartmouth Bridge in Halifax Sept. 9, 1967.

The ceremony Friday will involve the CFB Esquimalt band and a 48-man guard.

City Marine Pilot To Attend Meet

Capt. Anthony Appleyard, Victoria marine pilot, will attend the annual meeting of the association of Canadian Marine Pilots at the Skyline Hotel in Ottawa Nov. 12.

The initial meeting will be followed by a two-day seminar on part one of the report of the Royal Commission on Pilotage.

In addition to Capt. Appleyard, four other B.C. pilots — three from Vancouver and one from New Westminster — will attend the conference.

Thief Selective

Additional Gas Export Bid Granted

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta Oil and Gas Conservation Board gave approval Tuesday to an application by Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. to export an additional 2,100,000,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas from the province during a 25-year-period ending Oct. 31, 1993.

Trans-Canada, which earlier held permits allowing exports of 17,100,000,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas by Oct. 31, 1992, may now remove from the province 19,200,000,000,000 cubic feet over the extended period.

The board also gave approval to a company application to increase the amount of gas that may be removed in any 24-hour period to 2,715,000,000 cubic feet from 2,270,000,000. The amount that may be exported in any year ending Oct. 31 was increased to 860,000,000,000 from 720,000,000,00.

Trans Canada, when applying for the increase, said the sales of additional gas would bring $42,000,000 in revenue to the provincial government, Alberta gas producers and the Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co.

Awarded Contract

OTTAWA (CP) — Allan and Viner Construction of Vancouver has been awarded a $38,400 federal public works contract for alterations to the Vancouver customs house.

The basement and three lower floors will be painted and altered to provide accommodation for the customs and excise branch of the national revenue department.

Rising Costs Force Newsprint Price Hike

NEW YORK (AP) — Producers say advancing production costs have forced them to raise the price of newsprint.

Most suppliers of newsprint to newspapers in the U.S. West recently announced a price boost to $142 a ton from $137, effective Jan. 1.

Earlier, eastern suppliers increased their price to $147 a ton from $142, also effective Jan. 1.

A spokesman for Crown Zellerbach Corp. of San Francisco, a major producer, listed these factors increasing prices:

Rising costs of wood; transporation, labor and other manufacturing operations; higher capital costs involved in additional newsprint capacity; higher costs in delivery terms, and considerable improvement in the quality of newsprint.

"Production is booming," says Richard Crane of Garden State Paper Co. of Claremont, Calif. "In fact, that's what puzzles a lot of the publishers. They can't understand why prices go up when there is a flood of newsprint coming out of Canada and elsewhere. But what they don't see is the increase in labor and transportation costs that are forcing our prices to rise."

Most producers decline to speculate on the price outlook beyond the Jan. 1 increase.

Eastern suppliers raising to $147 from $142 include Kimberly-Clark Corp., Neenah, Wis.; Bowaters, Inc., Calhoun, Tenn., Newfoundland; International Paper Co., New York; Great Northern Paper Co., New York, Price Co., Quebec; Domtar Ltd., Montreal; Consolidated Bathurst Ltd., Montreal; Southland Paper Mills, Inc., Lufkin, Tex.; Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd., Toronto, and Great Lakes Paper Co. Ltd., Fort William, Ont.
